Married Men Facing Draft, Vinson Says

House Approves Allowances Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee said today the draft will be extended to draft-age married men with dependents soon.

Such men, under 26, are now deferred.

Asked what he meant by "soon," Vinson told newsmen:

"Right away."

At Selective Service headquarters, officials said they could not tell when it might be necessary to draft married men.

Officials estimated there are 1,000,000 married non-veterans of draft age—19 through 25—and that up to 400,000 would qualify for induction.

House OKs Allowance Bill

Vinson made his statement to reporters shortly after the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill providing allowances ranging from $85 to $165 a month for the families of enlisted men.

Selective Service officials said no announcement on expanding the draft would be made until after final congressional action on the family allowances bill.

A spokesman said, however, that President Truman could order the drafting of married men under the present law, by amending the regulations. It would not require legislation.

In other mobilization developments:

1. A bill designed to prevent sneak air attack—by requiring identification and advance clearance of planes flying over strategic defense areas—passed the House without opposition.

The Senate has already passed a similar bill. Differences will be adjusted in conference.

Disperal Plan Debated

2. House Republicans and Democrats wrangled hotly over President Truman's request for $139,800,000 to scatter key federal agencies well outside Washington as a safeguard against atomic attack.

Rep. A. L. Miller (R-Neb) denounced it as "another boondoggling project to protect some of the waffle bottoms in Washington."

While spectators still tittered over this reference to lolling in cane-bottomed chairs, Rep. Edward T. Miller (R-Md) suggested that Congress "save some hides and money at the same time by removing 40,000 bureaucrats from the payroll."

Under the administration plan, 40,000 government workers and numerous important agencies would be moved out 10 to 50 miles from Washington.

American Fighter May Have Strafed Red China Airstrip By Mistake, Austin Tells U.N

Commission To Probe Reported Attack Is Proposed; Malik Ends Council Presidency

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin told the Security Council tonight that a United States fighter plane may have strafed a Manchurian airstrip by mistake Aug. 27.

Austin spoke as Russia's Jakob A. Malik ended his presidency of the council in the midst of another bitter procedural wrangle like those that have paralyzed the council for 31 days.

The U. S. delegate proposed that the U. N. set up a commission to investigate at once the reported attack and to assess damages. He said the United States would be willing to pay whatever damages the commission decided were fair.

Austin also proposed that Communist North Korea and Communist China be asked to give the proposed commission a safe conduct pass to permit a full inquiry.

Not Fully Confirmed

The U. S. still has not fully confirmed the reported attack, he said, but there is reason to believe that one F-51 aircraft of the 67th Fighter Bomber Squadron may have by mistake violated Manchurian teritory and strafed an airstrip five miles across the border from Korea.

Austin also delivered a blistering attack on Malik, charging him with "a colossal contempt for the simple rules" of the council during his month as president. He got a laugh when he referred to August as "a red letter month" with the emphasis on the word red.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb, who succeeds Malik as president tomorrow, also blasted Malik for trying to place on the already crowded calendar of the council allegations of terrorism in Greece.

Jebb proposed that the council strike this item from the provisional agenda submitted by Malik. He called it "a nauseating spectacle of Satan rebuking sin" for Malik to attack Greece while Russia holds millions in forced labor and deports millions in cattle cars to Siberia.

Jebb Agrees With Austin

Jebb agreed with Austin that the question of the Manchurian attack should be taken up and he expressed the hope it would come next week.

Malik touched off the long wrangle by proposing that the Greek issue and Red China's charges of American air attacks on Manchuria be added to the council's agenda.

Austin's announcement came as a surprise. He said the United States had several times warned air forces in Korea to exert every care to avoid crossing the borders of China. He added that as soon as the first complaint was received from Chou En-Lai, Chinese communist foreign minister, the government ordered an inquiry.

Conferees Okay National Defense Production Act

May Reach Truman Before Talk Tonight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — A compromise bill giving President Truman war-style powers to speed production and curb inflation was approved finally tonight by a House-Senate conference committee.

Prompt acceptance by both chambers is expected; the "National Defense Production Act of 1950" may be on President Truman's desk when he delivers his "fireside chat" tomorrow (9 p. m., E.S.T.).

The President's half-hour message to the people, to be broadcast and televised, may give the public its first knowledge of what domestic sacrifices are to be imposed under the broad mobilization bill.

Compromise On Expiration Date

Agreement had been delayed for hours while the conferees heard administration leaders appeal for a two-year law expiring June 30, 1952, instead of the 10-month bill previously agreed on. The upshot was this schedule of termination dates:

Wage-price controls, restraints on credit, and machinery to settle labor disputes would expire next June 30.

Other powers would run until June 30, 1952, including rationing, allocations, priorities, and defense production loans.

But the government's power to enter new emergency contracts would expire June 30, 1951.

Legislators explained that this means materials could be allocated, plants requisitioned, or loans made under defense contracts until mid-1952, provided the contracts had been signed by mid-1951.

Other Final Settlements

Other final settlements reached today were:

1. Striking out a Senate provision which would have assured meat packers a "reasonable margin of profit" under any price controls imposed.

2. Providing that any wage-price controls and consumer rationing be administered by a single agency. This was a Senate provision.

3. Adopting in revised form a Senate amendment which would compel the President, if he imposes any price freeze, to prevent hardships or inequities to sellers who hold bona fide contracts for future delivery of materials.

George Proposes Tax Compromise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga) today asked Congress to wait until January to write an excess profits tax and make it retroactive for three or six months.

George thus sought to remove the worrisome issue from the administration's $4,508,000,000 emergency tax increase measure to get it rolling.

The Senator, chairman of the Finance Committee, offered the idea as a substitue for a widely-favored $4,000,000,000 excess profits levy sponsored by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) and Connally (D-Tex). O'Mahoney has claimed he has the votes to nail it into the bill. The House has not acted.

But George, whose argument all along has been that such a tax requires lots of consideration and a full hearing, told the Senate that the O'Mahoney-Connally proposal is "a plain misunderstanding of the basic principles of an excess profits tax."

The Georgian would put his compromise into the bill in the form of a directive to Senate and House tax-writing committees that they prepare an excess profits tax bill early next year and make it retroactive to July 1 or Oct. 7, 1950.

Court Asked To Reverse Rutledge's Conviction

DES MOINES, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Iowa Supreme Court today was asked to reverse the conviction and 70-year murder sentence of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr.

The attorneys for the 29-year-old St. Louis doctor described his conviction of the slaying of Byron C. Hattman, St. Louis aircraft expert, as unjustified. Their appeal brief said the 70-year sentence was "monstrous."

Hattman, bachelor admirer of Dr. Rutledge's pretty blonde wife, was found dead in a Cedar Rapids, Ia., hotel room in December, 1948.

Amnesty Offered Kidnapers If Boy Returned Unharmed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP)—State's Attorney George P. Coutrakon, acting on the theory that missing two-year-old Earnest Cagle, Jr., has been abducted, offered immunity from prosecution today if the child is returned unharmed in 24 hours.

The boy, son of a 34-year-old Illiopolis farmer, disappeared early Sunday morning from the family car parked outside a tavern at Buckhart. An intensive search has yielded no clues to his whereabouts.

Coutrakon said the child, a diabetic, requires special medical care.

"At the urgent request of the family, I have agreed to offer complete amnesty to those responsible for his disappearance," the prosecutor said in a statement.

"If he is returned to the parents alive and unharmed or arrangements made with this office for his return within 24 hours there will be no prosecution.

"I also agree to keep the identity of those involved in strict confidence."

Coutrakon said it is "highly improbable" that the frail boy could have escaped from the car alone.

Truman Reiterates He Plans To Retain Johnson In Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—President Truman said today—for a second time—that he contemplates no change in the status of Secretary of Defense Johnson.

Johnson, and Secretary of State Acheson, have been under fire repeatedly in Congress and elsewhere.

Mr. Truman has said both can stay in the Cabinet as long as he is President. He renewed the statement about Johnson today as a result of news conference inquiries arising from a demand by Rep. Tauriello (D-NY) that the Defense Secretary get out. Mr. Truman had no comment on Tauriello's contention that Johnson has lost the confidence of the people. He said no, he hadn't been embarrassed by any actions of Johnson, or everybody would have known about it.

Hopes Red China Stays Neutral

Running rapidly through a series of subjects in response to questions, Mr. Truman told his news conference that:

He hopes there is no great danger that Red China will become involved in the Korean conflict.

Of course it will be unnecessary to keep the U. S. Seventh Fleet in the Formosan Straits if the Korean crisis is settled. The fleet is there to protect the American flag.

The President is very sorry to hear that Senate leaders plan no action now on Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood, as he is anxious to have the territories made states, primarily for defense purposes.

Longshoremen at eastern ports who refused to unload cargoes that originated in Russia are in effect trying to determine American foreign policy and they haven't any business doing that.

Not Columnist Or Pollster

His proposal to spend $139,800,000 to disperse part of the government from Washington is only the beginning of a program that has been under consideration for some time. While Mr. Truman understands some congressmen would like agencies shifted to other cities, that isn't the purpose of the program.

The Chief Executive can't very well make a prediction on the November election — he says he is no columnist or pollster.

The President said he will decide whether Spain will get a U. S. loan—Congress voted for a $62,500,000 loan — when the time comes for implementation. The President smiled broadly at that. There have been reports he would impound the loan money and not let the Spaniards have it.

The tip was his shirt—a bright red and white, dotted Swiss job that Miss Wolfe had complimented.

O'Dwyer Given Festive Sendoff

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Mayor William O'Dwyer, resigning to become ambassador to Mexico, received a festive sendoff today from a crowd estimated by police at 330,000.

A parade of seven bands and 5,000 city employes escorted him along Broadway on his final trip to City Hall as mayor.

Spectators were lined 10 and 12 deep at some points for a "last look" at the colorful figure who arrived here as an Irish immigrant 40 years ago and climbed to the city's highest official position.

His resignation will be submitted Saturday, and City Council President Vincent R. Impelliteri will become acting mayor.

Senate Upholds Veto Of Vets' Postal Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Senate today upheld President Truman's veto of a bill to grant pay increases to World War II veterans in the postal field service.

The vote was 48 to override to 29 to sustain the veto. Two thirds was needed to override.

The House previously had voted 213 to 72 to override the veto.

The bill, for purposes of promotion and salary, would have granted about 100,000 veterans, who entered the postal field service after the war and up to July 1 last, full credit for such military service.

Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle Of N. Carolina, Dies

GASTONIA, N. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle of North Carolina's 11th District died at his home here tonight.

The veteran lawyer, soldier, and legislator had been ill for a year. Some months ago, he had announced plans to retire after expiration of his present term in Congress January 1.

He served in Congress from 1921-29 and again since 1931. Maj. Bulwinkle had represented North Carolina's Ninth, 10th, and 11th Districts.

South Carolina Klan Leader Is Arrested

CONWAY, S. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Horry County Sheriff C. E. Sasser said tonight that the grand dragon of Ku Klux Klan in South Carolina had been arrested and charged with "conspiracy to stir up mob violence."

Sasser said the charge was brought against Thomas L. Hamilton in connection with a Klan parade staged last Saturday at a negro section near Myrtle Beach. A Conway policeman, James D. Johnston, was killed after the parading Klansmen had fired into a negro night club. Johnston was wearing a Klan robe over his uniform at the time.

At the same time Sasser cleared the proprietor of the club of any blame in the slaying and indirectly laid the full blame on the raiding Klansmen.

War Casualty Figures Will Be Released

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — Officials said today that the Defense Department has decided to tell the public regularly, probably once a week, the total cost of the Korean conflict in Americans killed, wounded or missing in action.

The promised summaries will be in addition to the lists of individual casualties now made public daily by the department.

Announcement of casualty totals would be a return to a policy that was last in operation on August 7, when the department said 2,668 Americans had been killed, wounded or missing in the Korean area.

Since that time, an Army spokesman told reporters that the policy was being restudied to make sure that casualty figures were not made public until they were no longer of value to the enemy.

In recent discussions among the armed services and the Defense Department, advocates of regular announcements of casualty totals are reported to have advanced two principal arguments:

1. The American public is entitled to be informed regularly about American losses.

2. Failure to do so would give communists an opportunity to try to undermine the public's confidence by broadcasting false and exaggerated reports of American losses.

Some Army officials are reported to have urged that casualty totals not be announced until the end of campaigns.

However, it was pointed out that an enemy representative might compile casualty totals for himself by checking the lists of individual casualties issued daily by the Defense Department.

Moscow Again Says Douglas Is Spying

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Moscow radio charged again tonight that Justice William O'Douglas of the U. S. Supreme Court is spying for his country in the Middle East, using mountain climbing as a blind.

The Russians made the same charge when Douglas, whose various outdoor hobbies include mountaineering, went to Iran last year.

The new Soviet comment said:

"A few days ago accompanied by a large group of guides, picked and trained by the American intelligence, he (Douglas) set out on one of his usual mountain climbing expeditions, right on the frontier of Soviet Azerbaijan."

Huge U. S. Rocket Climbs 85 Miles, Attains 3,600 MPH

WHITE SANDS, N. M., Aug. 31 (AP) — The largest and heaviest rocket launched from the White Sands ordnance installation today climbed 85 miles into the air, attaining a speed of approximately 3,600 miles an hour.

The rocket's warhead was four times as large as the original German rocket warhead and carried so many instruments the White Sands officials termed it a "floating laboratory."

Instruments ejected from the rocket were parachuted to the earth.

Col. G. G. Eddy, commander of White Sands Proving Ground, said damaged parts of the rocket were being returned to the base. He termed the rocket shoot "a success."

The rocket is the fourth of a series of experiments with an enlarged rocket. Officials said that all attained an altitude in excess of 80 miles and that performances indicated the rocket was stable.

Today's rocket contained instruments on which scientists have been working for the past two years. It was fired by the Army Ordnance Corps and General Electric engineers.

30,000 North Korean Troops, Led By Tanks, Gain Up To Five Miles On 47-Mile Battlefront

Reds Cross Naktong At 5 Points, Throw Pincers Around One Town

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 1 (AP)—More than 30,000 tank-led North Koreans with 20,000 more in reserve, unleashed an all-out drive today along a 47-mile front for the United Nations lifeline port of Pusan.

At heavy cost in men and armor they (1) punched out gains up to five miles, (2) threw a pincers around one town and (3) crossed the Naktong at five points. They drove against two outnumbered American divisions.

The central and southern walls of the front exploded into tank, artillery and ground battles.

The Americans rushed up fresh troops to reinforce the hard-pressed 25th Division in the south. The U. S. 2nd Division called on its reserves.

Korean communist infantry seized high ground in the old Changnyong bridgehead and established a road-block across the highway behind the U. S. Second Division.

Two groups of reds succeeded in forming a junction behind a forward American company on the southern flank of the division. Some isolated American units were being supplied by air drop.

The U. S. Eighth Army called the red offensive "a general attack."

Tuksong-To-Masan Battlefront

The battle flamed from Tuksong for 47 miles down to Masan, the gateway to Pusan, which is 27 air miles to the east.

A quick look down this line at the coordinated attack:

1. Two red battalions crossed the Naktong at Tuksong, 12 miles southwest of the key American advanced supply base of Taegu.

2. Near Pugong, five miles west of Changnyong, two reinforced red battalions made three crossings and advanced nearly a mile to positions where they dug in.

3. Just south of this area, 3,000 reds crossed the Naktong and pushed five miles eastward, driving toward Yongsan.

4. Two red divisions struck hard near the confluence of the Nam and Naktong Rivers, sent a large assault force south toward Haman and curved a pincers around that town.

At heavy cost in men and armor, Korean reds made two gains of a mile or more and snapped a pincers around the town of Haman, 36 miles west of Pusan.

U. S. Officers Confident

American reinforcements stalled the southernmost push near Haman and recovered some ground by 8 a. m. (5 p. m., EST, Thursday). American officers told Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton they believed this was the long-expected final offensive effort to break the United Nations line at the south end of the 120-mile battle perimeter and capture Pusan, the lifeline supply port of the defenders. They also told Swinton they felt confident the drive could be crushed by nightfall.

This morning the Fifth Regimental Combat Team rushed to support the 24th Regiment at Haman. It was reported to have regained some of the lost ground, destroying two red

U. S. OBSERVATION PLANE SHOT DOWN

It was the first American loss through enemy aerial action since the earliest days of the Korean conflict.

TWA Airliner Crash In Egypt Claims 55 Lives

23 Americans Are Carried To Death

DIST EL ASHRAFF, Egypt, Aug. 31 (AP)—A Trans World Airline Constellation crashed and burned in the desert sands west of the Nile Delta today and all 55 persons aboard perished. Twenty-three Americans and an Egyptian film star were among the dead.

The four-engined "Star of Maryland" went down 65 miles northwest of Cairo, near the village of Etay Baroud at the rim of the Western Desert. Searchers found the wreckage strewn over 500 yards. They trekked 15 miles over hot sands to reach it.

The airliner plummeted to earth shortly after the takeoff from Cairo on a regular Bombay-New York flight. The bodies of the victims were badly charred, delaying identification.

Egyptian Actress Aboard

A dozen nations were represented among the 48 passengers.

The Egyptian film actress was Camelia, a blonde who was known as the Lana Turner of the Far East. Her real name was Lilliane Cohen. Friends said she had been bound for Interlaken, Switzerland, for a vacation on doctor's orders.

Maharajah Singh Prithi of Bombay was another on the list.

Prominent among the Americans were Aubrey William Schofield, 52, New York, an oil company executive, and Everett Moore Baker, 49, dean of students at the Massachusets Institute of Technology.

Cause Of Crash Undetermined

The Egyptian Civil Aviation Department, the Civil Aeronautics Bureau in Washington and the airline dispatched investigators to hunt for the cause of the crash, one of the worst in commercial aviation history.

Justie Ervin Gist, Lake City, Ia., administration services and transportation officer at the U. S. Embassy in Cairo, had plodded silently through ankle-deep sands for ten miles to look for his son, William C. Gist, a passenger on the ill-starred craft.

But when Gist reached the scattered mass of wreckage and mangled bodies he abandoned his search. He just gazed vacantly at the ghastly scene.

Not Flying Saucer But Flying Dipper

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Aug. 31 (AP)—Now it's flying dippers.

Two Fredericksburg women, Mrs. L. P. Hitt and Mrs. W. N. LeCouteur, sisters, saw the dipper from the lawn of Mrs. LeCouteur's home last night.

They described it as a "very bright light," not very large, that moved not too fast.

The said they watched the dipper for about five minutes as it moved northward. It looked like a quart sized cup to them.

Mrs. LeCouteur's husband vouched for the dipper. He said he had seen a similar dipper about two weeks ago but had said nothing about it.

Gulf Hurricane Blows Itself Out

PANAMA CITY, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP)—A gulf hurricane mauled this coastal town before blowing out in Northern Alabama today. And a new hurricane is whirling west-northwestward 1,600 miles southeast of Florida.

Hurricane winds raked the Panama City area about midnight, damaging from 200 to 300 cottages and flooding bayside homes. Wind and tides ripped away a city dock.

High tides and weaker winds caused slight damage at Mobile, Ala., Pensacola and St. Marks, Fla. An empty 10,000-gallon gasoline storage tank washed loose from its foundation at St. Marks and bobbed in the bay like a cork.

Roads leading into Apalachicola Fla.—struck yesterday by an off-shoot tornado—were still closed today. The twister injured two persons seriously and wrecked between 10 and 15 houses.

Scattered, incomplete reports of damage amounted to $500,000.

ed Brass Loses "Party Control" In West Germany

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Stalin's trusted lieutenants in Eastern Germany have grabbed control of West Germany's communists from gaunt, gray-faced Max Reimann.

Allied officials here say the Politburo of the East German Socialist Unity (communist) Party is now running the West German communists with an iron grip.

The Kremlin has directed the East German leaders to mastermind the new communist resistance program against the Western Allies, these officials said.

To carry out the orders of the East German Politburo, a cadre of trusted communists has infiltrated into Western Germany from the east. They have booted out 100 or more old-time communist functionaries and taken their posts.

Reimann, boss of West German communists since 1945, has been allowed to stay on as chairman in name—for the time being. Allied officials say the communists do not want to weaken their drive against the occupation powers by a public party purge.

Allied officials here believe Reimann's fall from grace began with the 1949 elections to name the first parliament of the new West German federal republic. Despite a noisy campaign and boastful claims, Reimann's communists elected only 15 members to the 403-member parliament.

Since then communist strength in West Germany has withered. Thousands have quit the party. Hundreds more have been kicked out for "Titoist" activities.

At the Socialist Unity Party congress in Berlin in July, the West German communist leaders were publicly assailed. Then the West German parliament lifted Reimann's immunity as a deputy, opening the way for possible criminal proceedings in the East Berlin arrest of his deputy, Kurt Mueller.

The German state prosecutor in Hannover has accused Reimann of having a hand in the kidnaping of Mueller. After Mueller was nabbed by East German police, there were rumors that he had been spirited out of West Germany by Reimann.

Reimann's eclipse makes Moscow-trained Walter Ulbricht the real boss of the communist forces in both East and West Germany. The 57-year-old, spade-bearded Ulbricht was elected first secretary of the Socialist Unity Party in July.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Will a child dislike you "for no reason"?

Answer: No. But when he's little, his reason may have nothing to do with you or the way you treat him—it may be the situations with which he associates you. If you are a baby-sitter, for example, a small child may start to scream the moment you come in the door because he's learned that every time you appear, his mother goes away and leaves him, and to him, that is about the worst thing that could happen. Be patient and realize that he has "nothing against you"—until the first shock is over, he would be the same with anybody.

TIME IS PRECIOUS

Should you be afraid to "waste time"?

Answer: On the whole, No. In an ideal world, it would no doubt be possible to spend every moment of your waking hours in doing things that were either pleasant or profitable. But as this world is, most of us must spend many hours either "waiting around," or doing things that don't seem worth the effort. Letting this make you angry or uneasy means you haven't quite outgrown the childish feeling that if you don't get what you want at once, you won't get it at all. Make the most you can of your time, but don't expect perfection.

Can a person's eyes really deceive him?

Answer: Yes. You probably have noticed that when an airplane flies directly over you, you hear the sound as if it came from a considerable distance behind the plane. This is because light travels faster than sound. But Dr. Hubertus Strughold writes in the Journal of Aviation Medicine that in supersonic flight, the interval between the time when an image reaches your eye and the time when you perceive it, though only a tiny fraction of a second, makes a pilot "see" another plane some distance ahead when it's really abreast of him.

Telephone Tip Solves Dilemma

NEW YORK, (INS)—A telephone tip saved ailing 8-year-old Joseph Young from having to undergo anti-rabies treatment which doctors said might take his life.

Joseph, a rheumatic heart victim, was bitten by a little black and white dog last Friday. Afterwards, neighbors and friends made a block-by-block search for the dog, but it could not be found.

The New York Health Department warned that unless Joseph underwent the anti-rabies treatment, he would risk hydrophobia. Joseph's physician, warned, however, that the boy's weakened heart might not be able to withstand the treatment.

The dilemma was solved when Patrolman George Stagliano, acting on a telephone tip, found the dog,

AEC Official Indicates Uranium Production Not Meeting Needs

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (INS)—An Atomic Energy Commmission official indicated that too little uranium is being mined to meet the needs of atomic-hydrogen bomb production.

Jesse C. Johnson, manager of the AEC's raw materials operation, said that the government will be forced into the uranium mining field unless established private companies get into the business in a big way.

Johnson said:

"Uranium production must keep pace with expanding requirements for national defense."

He told a meeting of the American Mining Congress that in his opinion the government market for uranium is here to stay, "but when, if ever, there will be a commercial market, I will not attempt to predict."

The AEC spokesman announced a new price policy which, he said, guarantees a market for uranium ore at minimum prices for approximately eight years.

Johnson said the new ore-buying schedule includes a price of $2.50 to $3 per pound of U-308 content ore, including a development allowance of 50 cents per pound of the ore. A haulage allowance may be granted for delivery at a mill, and minimum U-308 content may be from two-tenths to three-tenths per cent.

Johnson praised private company results in the search for the vital ore, saying:

"Progress is being made in the search for uranium but greater effort is needed."

Top Western Pa. Reds Are Jailed

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP)—The chairman of the communist party of Western Pennsylvania and two men identified as his lieutenants were jailed on sedition charges today.

Arrested under a 1939 state law were Steve Nelson, regional party head; James Dolsen, named as a correspondent for the communist party newspaper Daily Worker; and Andrew Onda, identified as an organizer assigned to enlist steel workers in the communist party.

City detectives arrested the trio in their homes before dawn on charges filed by Judge Michael A. Musmanno, Allegheny County jurist who is the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania.

Musmanno followed up the arrests by accompanying city detectives who raided the communist party headquarters in a building just across the street from the city-county building in Pittsburgh. Party literature and records were seized.

Mahoney Denies Buffington Is Advisor

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—George P. Mahoney denied today that Delegate J. Raynold Buffington is his advisor on mental hospital problems, as Gov. Lane had described him.

Mahoney, who is fighting Lane for the Democratic nomination for governor, said that the Baltimore City delegate is "one of many interested citizens who are deeply concerned with the conditions existing in the mental hospitals."

In a campaign statement yesterday, Lane said that Buffington had proposed in 1947 that the money the Governor had allotted in his budget for food allowances at the mental hospitals be cut by $1,600,000.

Income Receipt Speedup Will Not Cut 1950 Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Taxpayers can't save anything on their 1950 income tax bills by speeding up their income receipts, officials said today.

They blasted notions apparently held in some quarters that the higher individual income tax rates in the bill now near passage will apply only to income received after October 1.

Some confusion has arisen from the fact that the scheduled boost in tax withholding rates will be effective only on wages and salaries paid after October 1—that is, in 1950's last quarter.

Officials said, however, the October 1 date for application of new withholding rates will not matter on final settlement of 1950 income tax due next March 15.

Red Guerrillas Enter Greece From Albania

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Ministry of Public Order said tonight a communist guerrilla band of 20 men had entered Greece from Albania two nights ago.

The announcement said one member of the band had killed his leader and surrendered to the Greek authorities. He told them the group was an advanced intelligence group which had gone to Albania from Poland.

State PAC Neutral

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Maryland Political Action Committee of the CIO said today it still isn't taking sides in the Gov. Lane-George P. Mahoney political battle.

State CIO President Frank J. Bender has personally endorsed Mahoney for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. But the P.A.C. said it still is neutral.

The announcement came after a meeting yesterday of about 100 CIO leaders.

1950 Traffic Death Toll May Be Second Highest

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Unless the public mends its ways, 1950 will be the second worst year for traffic deaths in history.

That is the conclusion of National Safety Council engineers based upon statistics for the first seven months of this year. The council estimated today that 36,000 persons will be killed this year.

The council has estimated that 435 persons will die in highway accidents during the Labor Day weekend holiday.

This red bid for Pusan by way of Masan was considered their second choice. The first was from Waegwan, more than 65 miles northwest of Pusan. That red push failed more than two weeks ago.

The third choice was from Pohang, the east coast anchor of the 120-mile battle perimeter. Today red forces were three to four miles north of Pohang. Yesterday they had penetrated within rifle range only to be rolled back by American and South Korean troops, aided by planes, tanks and naval fire power from warships close offshore.

Gambler Cohen Gets Bum's Rush

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 31 (AP) — Texas Rangers gave Mickey Cohen the bum's rush out of the Lone Star State today because they said he was trying to set up a "gambling and racketeering empire."

The little West Coast gambler protested he was in Texas on legitimate business, hunting more money to support his "beautiful wife" and the men on his payroll.

The ranger roused him out of his hotel at Wichita Falls, took him to Fort Worth and put him on a westbound plane for California.

When the plane arrived here at the International Airport he was arrested by police and held at headquarters until his plane left for Los Angeles.

"I got to have more money," he complained while under arrest here.

"I have a beautiful wife, but she spends a lot of money. It costs a lot of money to live."

Negro Woman Accused

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—The grand jury today charged a negro woman with getting $7,615 in relief money from the city by fraud.

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells refused to give details of the accusation but indicated the woman had gotten two sets of relief payments under different names.

Tydings Hits 'Propaganda' In Opening His Campaign

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — Sen. Tydings (D-Md) said tonight that "some designing, irresponsible individuals" are directing an "intensive campaign of falsehood, mud-slinging and political propaganda" against him.

"The core of opposition propaganda," he said, "is that I, as chairman of a Senate subcommittee established to investigate charges of disloyalty in the State Department, have been covering up and 'whitewashing' for the administration."

"These charges are absolutely ridiculous," he said in opening his campaign for re-nomination to a fifth consecutive term.

"In truth, whatever my strength and weaknesses are, it never has occurred to me that anybody could question my love of country and my opposition to and contempt for all communists and fellow travelers, whether in or out of government."

Tydings' speech was prepared for delivery over a network of four television stations and nine radio stations in Baltimore, Washington and Cumberland.

He said that "you and I are suddenly confronted with propaganda to the effect that I xxx have even stooped so low as to connive to keep disloyal persons in the employ of our government.

"To add force to this propaganda, you have been told by utterly false rumor that I am doing this because I am to be appointed ambassador to Great Britain or that I am a candidate for vice president, or out to get something else," he said, adding:

"If anyone tries to tell this to you, you tell them it is a barefaced and unmitigated lie.

"I am a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate and that is where I hope to be xxx all during the next six-year term."

He spent much of his 30-minute speech in recounting how his subcommittee had investigated the charges by Sen. McCarthy that card-carrying communists had worked in the State Department — and how the committee had gone over the loyalty files of 81 persons named by McCarthy.

World Wheat Market Reflects Dollar Troubles

Last year 42 nations entered an international agreement under which the flow of wheat in the world market was to be controlled. The United States, with much misgiving on the part of some leaders, joined the agreement. Now the first year of its operation is ended, and preliminary figures of the Canadian Bureau of Statistics indicate that the trade flow did not work out according to plan. The blame is not put on the plan itself, but on that familiar ailment, the dollar shortage.

The United States and Canada have disposed of far less than their export quotas of wheat. Australia and France, able to sell for sterling rather than dollars, got rid of almost their full quotas. The importing nations which fell furthest short of their allotted purchases were ones having severe dollar troubles, West Germany, Italy and Brazil.

To say that the United States fared better or worse under the agreement than it would have done in a free market over the past year would be hardly more than a guess. One thing seems to be confirmed. There is an incalculable obstruction to trade in the currency exchange troubles which divide the world into two monetary areas, with trade between them limited by the number of dollars which can be obtained. Until that dollar limitation can be overcome, the United States is going to have world marketing difficulties.

Live Long And Like It

Who would like to live to 110 or 120? This may become a common experience, the National Conference on Aging was told by Dr. Martin L. Gumpert, who specializes in the medical problems of old age. Medical and public health advances are steadily lengthening the average span of human life, so that before long centenarians may become frequent. Is this desirable prospect without drawbacks?

At present it may not seem so. Most old people have little with which to occupy their time, unless they have had the foresight to develop a hobby. They also have little or no money, and must depend on support by the state or the charity of relatives. Even the most devoted of descendants might be appalled at the prospect of supporting a grandparent for the 50 years between retirement at 70 and death at 120.

Longer life also is no guarantee of freedom from failing sight and hearing and enfeeblement of the mind. Jonathan Swift, more than 200 years ago, envisioned this development in "Gulliver's Travels." He described a race of "struldbrugs," doomed to immortality, and leading a ghastly existence of complete physical and mental helplessness.

To provide for the happiness of the aged is becoming a major social problem. "Live long and like it" clubs, providing lectures and entertainment, under the auspices of the public library or civic minded private organizations, are one answer. But whatever is done for them, most aging people should anticipate the future, and make some provision for mental occupation when they retire.

The Rain-Makers

Those who scoffed when New York City hired an official rain-maker last winter may yet have to change their tune. The rain-maker, Dr. Wallace E. Howell of Harvard University, has been retained for a second six-month period. Even Dr. Howell is not sure how much credit he should claim, but the fact of the weather is that rainfall in the Catskill watersheds, whence comes New York's water supply, was six per cent above normal for the first half of this year. Both the city and the meteorologist wants to run the experiment over a full year, so as to cover all the seasons.

Commenting on rainfall and water supply, Life magazine recently reported that of the rainfall which drops annually on the United States only two per cent is actually consumed by man, including what is used for irrigation. It also said that man wastes an amount equal to half of what is used. As for the rest of the rainfall, 26 per cent of the total flows back to the sea in streams and 71 per cent is absorbed by the earth or by vegetation, or evaporated back into the air.

This might suggest that the ultimate solution of water supply problems is to be found not in rain-making but in obtaining more usefulness from the rain which falls. This amount seems to remain constant; the Weather Bureau reports that in 80 years of record keeping no significant variation in average anual rainfall has been detected. If we could merely save the one per cent now wasted, water problems might be solved for many years to come.

Better Routes

An express highway, when considered solely as a means of expediting traffic and carrying more of it, seems like a simple proposition.

There are several angles to be considered when planning one of these arterial roads, however. Bottlenecks at each end must be avoided, so that already over-crowded streets or roads may not be still further burdened. A long look ahead is necessary to calculate an increase in traffic which may require the addition of several more lanes. Changes are made in real estate values, too, resulting sometimes in smaller tax returns. These problems are eminently worth solving, however, when one considers the benefits to motorists and the public in general. Travel by express highway is cheaper and safer, involving less mental strain for driver and passenger, and truck shipments are speeded up, reducing costly delays.

Travelers who make use of the express highways strongly advocate more of them. The contrast between the free flow of traffic on these roads and the constant delays caused by slow-moving vehicles on conventional highways of two or three lanes is glaring. Bottlenecks or no bottlenecks, most drivers prefer to go express.

September

Some great events in the history of the United States occurred in the month of September, including the Battle of Lake Erie, the Battle of Lake Champlain, the meeting of the First Continental Congress, Washington's Farewell Address and the writing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Yet it is none of these events which is celebrated in September. When the average American thinks of September's arrival he thinks of Labor Day, the last holiday of the summer. Always observed on the first Monday in September, Labor Day provides opportunity to enjoy a long weekend vacation trip by automobile.

The Case Of An Inventor

MOST OF US take the dental inlay for granted but there is a long story behind the invention and the inventor, William H. Taggart. His fame rested upon a single contribution—namely, the cast inlay technic that revolutionized prosthetic dentistry. He patented the process which proved to be an unfortunate mistake.

Taggert was an excellent dentist with a desire to improve everything he did. According to Dr. M. D. K. Bremner, superior skill enabled Taggart to build a large practice. He dreamed of a filling that could be made outside the mouth, inserted into the cavity and then cemented into place. This was the cast inlay and he devoted much of his spare time and energy to perfecting it. After 15 years of experimentation the device was completed, and in 1907 he described it to a group of dentists in Brooklyn, New York.

This new way of filling teeth appealed to his colleagues because it would free them from the toil of malleting adhesive gold. Taggart was willing to give the idea to the dental profession but thought he could obtain compensation by selling the supplies and casting machine. But he was an inventor and not a manufacturer or merchant and could not begin to fill the orders that poured in. This problem would have been solved had he accepted a royalty offer from a large dental firm but he was adamant. Soon other contrivances flooded the market, which sold at a price far below Taggart's.

It was at this time that the United States Dental Protective association came to his rescue. Its president, Dr. J. N. Crouse, proposed a license plan in which each dentist was to pay $15 for the right to make the inlay. There were 15,000 men in practice at that time from whom Taggart could realize close to a quarter of a million dollars and each year he would obtain additional fees from recent graduates. Taggart agreed but Crouse was as poor a promoter as Taggart was a business man. Only a handful of dentists subscribed.

Then Taggart decided to take matters into his own hands. He sent an ultimatum to dentists using his technic, demanding $150 for a license; a delay of five days increased the price to $250. If the dentists failed to pay he would bring suit against them demanding a share of all the profits on inlays for the last 20 years. He felt sure of himself inasmuch as he had won a local verdict along this line in a Chicago district court.

This matter brought together the members of the profession to fight the case. The only hope for the defense was that some one other than Taggart might have made the same discovery at an earlier date. The lawyers found that 10 years before Taggart's discovery, Dr. B. F. Filbrook, an obscure dentist from Dennison, Ia., had reported on a similar device before a handful of dentists. A copy of the secretary's report, filed in the library of the Iowa State Dental school, was located in the basement. Taggart had gambled and lost. Renown often comes to men posthumously and he is no exception. Some dentists list him after Wells and Morton of anesthesia fame and Researchers Black and Miller among the "greats" of dentistry.

E. P. writes: I use considerable perfume and cologne and apply it directly to the skin since it leaves rings on clothing. Some one told me that I can get a skin disease from doing this. Could this happen?

REPLY

Considering the millions who use these preparations they must be relatively safe because only a few encounter reactions. Some individuals are sensitive to one or more of the ingredients of perfume or toilet waters. Others become sensitized to the sun through some substance in the product such as oil of bergamot. As a result, an eruption occurs over the exposed areas that have been touched with the cosmetic.

HEART TERMS

B. T. writes: Is a dilated heart the same as an enlarged heart?

REPLY

Technically, no. There are two forms of cardiac enlargement. In one the organ is dilated like a balloon and in the other the increase in size is due to thickening of the heart muscle.

Averell Harriman Gave Truman First Peep At MacArthur's Statement; Navy Recalls That MacArthur Vetoed Its Plan To Occupy Formosa In 1944

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Here is a play-by-play account of what went on behind-the-scenes in the now historic rebuke of General MacArthur by President Truman.

First inkling that MacArthur had sent a message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the delicate question of Formosa came on Thursday, Aug. 24, when Carlton Kent of the Chicago Sun-Times queried Roger Tubby, State Department press relations office, as to whether the MacArthur statement had been cleared by the State Department.

Tubby passed the query on to the White House and the Defense Department, found that neither had either seen or heard of the MacArthur statement. It had been sent direct to newspapers in a personal letter on Aug. 21 with a release date for Aug. 28. This was in direct violation of the White House directive laid down during the famous Henry Wallace-Jimmie Byrnes row, after which it was decreed that no statement on foreign policy could be published by any official without clearance.

President Truman himself did not see the MacArthur statement until Saturday, Aug. 26, during a conference scheduled to hear the report of Navy chief Admiral Forrest Sherman and Army chief General Joe Collins, following their return from Tokyo.

At this conference, Averell Harriman handed the President a copy of the MacArthur statement. Harriman, who is part owner of Newsweek magazine, had obtained a copy of the press release.

Harriman Has Explained

Harriman told Truman that he had carefully explained American policy to MacArthur during his recent visit to Tokyo and that there was no reason for his misunderstanding it. Actually Harriman's trip was largely inspired by MacArthur's urge to occupy Formosa with American troops and his much-publicized hand-kissing visit to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek. It was felt that Harriman could diplomatically explain that the United States must work through the United Nations in regard to Formosa and that if the United States got embroiled in any conflict with China the Korean war would then last indefinitely, for the Chinese communists would have an excuse to pour troops into Korea.

Truman read the MacArthur statement and hit the ceiling. Without asking Secretary Acheson or any others present for their opinion, he directed Secretary of Defense Johnson to order MacArthur to withdraw his statement.

"I am charged by the Constitution with the sole responsibility for the conduct of our foreign policy," he told those in the room. "There can only be one voice of authority in expressing that policy. We can't have two, or three or ten people acting as official spokesmen. This is a fundamental rule.

"In the case of Formosa, we cannot act unilaterally," the President continued. "We must continue our efforts through the United Nations.

"If we let the MacArthur message go unchallenged every diplomat throughout the world will believe—despite our denials—that MacArthur was really speaking for the White House. The diplomats will be convinced we're floating a trial balloon. No diplomat would ever imagine MacArthur would presume to make such a statement without the direct authority of the White House."

Cable To MacArthur

The cable which Secretary Johnson immediately dispatched to MacArthur read pretty much as follows: "The President of the United States directs that you immediately recall your statement addressed to the Veterans of Foreign Wars containing your views regarding Formosa. Your statement is not in accord with the established foreign policy of the United States as enunciated by the President."

At this writing no reply has been received.

Though Secretary Johnson has agreed with MacArthur on Formosa and once worked backstage to overrule the State Department on Formosa, other high military men in the Pentagon Building now take a different view. This holds true of many in both the Army and Navy.

MacArthur Once Banned Formosa

In fact, Navy strategists are now recalling that during 1944 the Navy wanted MacArthur to occupy Formosa as a step toward bombing Japan and that MacArthur was vigorously opposed.

Plans for taking over Formosa were worked out in great detail by Admiral Nimitz in 1944 and approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington. But MacArthur, who was determined to liberate his old love, the Philippines, overruled them.

Chief reason, however, that U. S. military men disagree with MacArthur on Formosa is that the Joint Chiefs of Staff are now among the eagerest people in Washington to avoid any conflict which would cause Chinese troops to be sent into Korea.

If Chinese troops stay out of Korea, there seems to be a pretty good chance the war will be over early this winter. But if the Chinese pour their vast hordes into Korea, the war could last almost indefinitely.

On top of this, U. S. Intelligence reported vitally important information to the Joint Chiefs of Staff last week—namely that Mao Tse-Tung and ex-Foreign Minister Molotov were at odds over Korea and Formosa. Molotov has been urging Mao, according to this information, to intervene in Korea and also invade Formosa, but Mao has hesitated.

These reports indicated that the rift between Russia and China was inceasing, and that there might be some chance of patching up relations between China and the United States.

This information, of course, was not definite. No information out of China can be definite these days. But it seemed convincing enough so that top U. S. military men are most anxious not to cause any further rift with China now.

Supporting this information is the fact that Mao had twice postponed the date for a Chinese invasion of Formosa, and now has postponed it a third time to Sept. 15.

If the Chinese communists do send an armada of junks across the straits of Formosa and if hundreds of them are sunk by American airplanes and naval vessels, the reaction in China will be such that a Chinese invasion of Korea is almost inevitable.

Thus, the military men argue, we might be able to hold Formosa but be thrown out of Korea.

Good News

WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA

THE folly of making forecasts about this Korean war can be simply illustrated. After spending some days in the line with the hospitable 1st Battalion of the 27th Infantry Regiment, this reporter briefly returned to the rear. Here, among the big wheels as the brass is called in this war, the balloon was up. A great and menacing enemy effort was momentarily expected.

Next morning, however, a trip back to the front revealed no scenes of bloody carnage or last ditch stands. Instead, the enemy had begun a general withdrawal precisely where the big wheels had anticipated a massive onslaught. And by that afternoon my friends of the 1st Battalion were loudly rejoicing because the big wheels felt safe enough to pull the 27th Regiment out of the line, send it halfway across Korea, and reunite it after many weeks with its parent division, the 25th.

While one therefore wishes to avoid prophesy, it is none the less allowable to report that the men who do the actual fighting believe that the first great crisis is over in Korea. If they are right, the danger of a full-scale catastrophe has passed at last.

No one at home seems to realize how great that danger has been. Yet not so many days ago, Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker called for total, immediate mobilization of all air transport in Japan, in order to evacuate as many American troops as possible after an enemy breakthrough that was expected in twelve hours. We then had no reserves to cover a withdrawal and no prepared positions to withdraw to. If our incredibly thin defense line had been breached that day, even the greatest of air evacuation could hardly have prevented the loss of half our men and most of our equipment in Korea. Such was the danger.

Line Still Thin

Even now, the line remains alarmingly thin. Even now, the line's security mainly depends on certain small crack outfits like the 27th Regiment and the First Marine Brigade, which are pushed into the line like corks wherever a break theatens. The men who do the fighting feel new confidence not because of any high level strategical gains, but because they consider the North Koreans are growing visibly weaker while we grow visibly stronger.

This recently altered balance of strength was strikingly evident in the fighting this reporter has just seen with the 27th Regiment's 1st Battalion. In what may have been its culminating effort as a cork, the regiment had been used to meet a serious enemy threat on the main highway to Taegu, the provisional Korean capitol and hinge of our defense line. Although the North Koreans were locally driven back by the 27th's aggressive exploitation of our superior artillery fire power and air superiority, the enemy commanders continued trying for a breakthrough for five more days before they at length withdrew.

But they had no air. They used their armor gingerly. They employed their artillery largely for counter-battery fire. They were even fairly sparing with their mortars. And the few prisoners taken testified that the North Korean divisions on this front were feeding their men only once every two or three days, and were hardly able to keep up their stocks of small arms and machine gun ammunition.

All this of course resulted from the attrition imposed by our resistance, plus the increasing isolation of the battlefield by our air power. The North Koreans are still being supplied by the Soviets, but they are more and more unable to get the supplies to the front.

Strength Being Returned

While the North Koreans are thus losing their offensive capability more rapidly than seemed possible, our own units are at last getting back the regiments, battalions and rifle companies which "economy" docked from them. When people here speak of an American division, they are positively beginning to mean the real thing, and not a poor enfeebled skeleton with "courtesy of Louis A. Johnson" written all over its emaciation.

With 2,500 estimated aircraft within range of our Japanese bases, with great armies in Siberia, with satellite power in China, the Kremlin can of course reverse this whole new tendency of the Korean war in the short space of a single night.

But if the Kremlin does not choose to intervene here more directly, our existing forces are now probably sufficient to contain the whole strength the North Koreans can muster. If this is true, even a fairly small additional force, if well equipped, can rather quickly strike at the enemy's unprotected rear, either by direct breakthrough, or by securing a beachhead, or even from an airhead. And once the North Korean rear has been successfully attacked, only the nasty trick of mopping up will then remain.

In short, we might get out of this mess in Korea rather more quickly than seemed likely when catas-

Retroactive Profits Tax May Stimulate Inflation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 — When the Chrysler Corporation the other day voluntarily raised the pay of its workers even though it was not provided for in the union contract, and was not the result of any request from the Auto Workers Union, there were many persons who wondered just what motivated the step.

Here in Washington, where labor unrest is getting to be matter of more and more concern, the Chrysler action was viewed as significant in many ways. The first impression was that the company had taken the step as a means of demonstrating that it is continuing, as it did many years before there were unions in its plants, to make wage increases whenever conditions warranted. There were some critics here however, who felt that the move might stimulate an inflationary trend.

The truth about the situation, it now develops, is that the simple and fundamental provocations of competition between Chrysler and General Motors brought about the wage increase.

Maintain Differential

Chrysler officials state that, due to the recent General Motors five-year contract, the wages paid came to eight cents per hour higher than those of Chrysler. So, by raising its workers' wages ten cents an hour, the Chrysler Corporation hopes to maintain a two-cent differential in favor of its own employes. The statement is made by Chrysler spokesmen that they have always maintained a differential in wages of about two cents better than G. M. The reason given is the desire to get premium labor.

Curiously enough, an employer nowadays cannot raise wages of his own initiative. He must call in the union representatives and get their consent, or else it's an "unfair labor practice" under the law. Sometimes the union officials use the occasion to ask for more than is being offered and negotiations ensue which permit the union officials to claim credit for the raise.

In the Chrysler instance, the company officials set forth their plan to the union for a raise of ten cents an hour and asked immediate acceptance or rejection, stating their intention to make public the offer in either event. The union officials agreed and the announcement of acceptance was issued.

Meanwhile a small strike has developed at the Ford Motor Company, some of whose employes feel they should be given an increase, too even though the contract doesn't call for it at this time. The strike is called "unauthorized" by the union but sympathy is expressed publicly just the same by the union officials for the point of view of the strikers — something that doesn't augur well for the sanctity of contracts with "no strike" pledges in them.

The General Motors Corporation, in its five-year contract signed before the Korean war, stipulates progressive increases in wages and an upward rise based on a cost-of-living index of the federal government. It remains yet to be seen whether workers will accept a serious downturn in the index as a basis some day for a wage cut.

Contribution To Inflation

What lurks in the background of the entire situation at present is the possibility that a wave of wage increases will be set off due to competition for manpower, and that this will contribute to the inflationary spiral.

The most serious prospect of an inflation panic may come out of the proposed passage of an excess-profits tax law. The big companies with large profits will be tempted to increase wages and other expenses, especially when the government applies an 85 per cent maximum rate for excess-pofits purposes. Prices and wages would have skyrocketed if wage and price control had not been instituted during the last war.

Those who are proposing excess-profits taxes at once seem to be pressing for more and more inflation on the one side and no immediate restraint on prices or wages on the other. The three things are interwined and interdependent. The mere announcement this week that an excess-profits tax bill, when passed next January, will be made retroactive through half of the year 1950 will produce a dangerous price situation. The President had announced that no bill was desired till next year but radical Democrats are pressing for a promise to have the law made to apply back through the second-half of 1950. Apart from the difficulty of administering such a law, the stimulus to inflation is obvious.

Principles Of Life

EVERY once-in-a-while, someone attempts to restate the principles of Americanism, the latest being an article in "Look," prepared by Sigurd S. Larmon and Thomas W. Lapham of the advertising firm of Young and Rubicam. It needs wide circulation, particularly among many of our youth who have never been taught that their country is not a geographic accident but the product of a philosophy.

It seems to me that the Larmon and Lapham statement avoids the central inspirational ideal of our civilization. Either the authors do not feel the hard core of American history or they avoided it lest it stimulate controversy. Yet, it is controversy we need over such a task as theirs. So let us quarrel.

I will take Point 1. in this article: "Each person is of importance and value as an individual.

"This is the cornerstone . . . the foundation of all our other beliefs in the individual's right to live his own life, to speak for himself, to choose and change his leaders..."

We must ask why "each person is of importance and value as an individual." Young people who have been trained in the natural and social sciences say that not the individual but that society is important.

It is impossible to avoid this issue between Marxism and Christianity; this quarrel between natural law and biologic theory. In a word, unless we accept, as Americans have for three centuries accepted, the concept that the individual man, as a creation of God, possesses qualities different and distinct from all else in nature, it is impossible to say that "each person is of importance and value as an individual."

He is of this nature by the grace of God, or he is no different from any other mammal—something expendable, removable, transferable, to be suppressed, if need be, by those who, in the struggle for existence, possess the power so to decide.

Dodging this issue does not help us, because whereas the Marxian concept recognizes man as a biologic thing, the Judaic-Christian concept recognizes man as a creature of God, and Americans incorporated that ideal of life in the Declaration of Independence, thus making it a fundamental principle of our existence as a nation.

So, the authors, Larmon and Lapham, say in their Point 3 that "we believe that all men are created equal," but created by whom? That they do not say. If there is a creation, there must be a God.

Why do we avoid that word?

Many today believe that all that exists is the product of chance; that in the fierce struggle for life that has marked the millions of years of the living in the universe, atoms, molecules and all else that they describe in precise terms joined together in millions of combinations and permutations and produced what exists, including man.

But if life is a chance, then no creator was necessary and therefore there can be no divine law, no morals, no ethics, no free will, no freedom of choice—only the constant and unending struggle for survival.

Alexander Hamilton answered that when he said:

"The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records. They are written as with a sunbeam, in the whole volume of human nature by the Hand of Divinity itself and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power."

The American ideal is that freedom comes from God; that we are free men and women, each as an individual, not because a constitution or an act of Congress made us so, but that God so willed it and stipulated natural law as the protectives of freedom.

The authors do say that "from the days of the Declaration of Independence and the writing of the Constitution, Americans have been wise enough to know that even though life, liberty, and other unalienable rights are granted to man by his Creator, they require some protection by man, himself."

But it is not that man requires some protection by man, but rather that he must live within the confines of natural law, for only thus can he be protected.

We have surely lost our way and anyone who seeks to lead us back to the white, paved road of truth that served us from Jamestown and Plymouth to this generation is constructive in our days.

Blankety-Blank

BECAUSE I sometimes tote around more than two dollars, and because my house has demonstrated a tendency to get burgled, I have a license to carry revolver—and sometimes do. But I ertainly hope I never get into a spot where I have to use it, because I doubt whether I could hit the back wall of a brewery if I were twenty feet away.

Billy Rose

And it isn't because I haven't practiced aplenty. There's a makeshift pistol range back of my house up at Mt. Kisco, and over the years I guess I've used up enough ammunition to keep a small Balkan war going. But no matter how carefully I sight and squeeze the baby gun with the short nose, I've never been able to do much more to the bullseye than glare at it. And two will get you twenty that most of the Dead-eye Dicks you read about can't do much better.

The U. S. Army evidently agrees with me about the difficulty in handling this tricky bit of mechanism effectively. Next time you see newsreel closeups of the kids who are doing the fighting in Korea, look closely and you'll see they're armed with rifles—Gerands and Browning automatics — but about the only place you'll see a six-gun will be in the holster of a two-star general.

I first learned that expert shooting with a revolver is more bull than bullseye when I moseyed down to Fort Worth 14 years ago to stage that city's Centennial Exposition. One of the whoopty-dos I put on, "The Last Frontier," was a wild west show, and the cast included the best hoss hands in the business—Galahads in 10-gallon hats who had won prize money in every rodeo from Pendleton to Madison Square Garden. Naturally, I wanted to include an exhibition of pistol shooting, and as a charter member of the Zane Grey Club I figured that almost any one of my bronco busters could pop a clay pipe out of a girl's mouth at 30 feet.

Well, I figured wrong. There was no one in the cast who could hit the pipe without taking the mouth with it, and I wound up having to import the national pistol champion—a skinny kid from Brooklyn who had learned his markmanship in a Coney Island shooing gallery.

This ineptness with what Damon Runyon used to call "the equalizer" is even more common among gangsters. Sure, the hoodlums of the 20's pistoled many a citizen, but almost invariably the victim was in a motor car, and the range a couple of inches from the nape of his neck. Whenever the corpse-to-be figured to be more than a few feet away, the killers used sawed-off shotguns with a three-foot spread, or tommy-guns which produced a spray like a garden hose.

A few years back, an ex-bootlegger—now vice president of a national whiskey company—told me a story about Al Capone which illustrates my point. It seems Al was tipped off that one of his bodyguards was playing footsie with a rival gang, so he threw a banquet for 200 of his hired help, and after the feed made some complimentary remarks about the double-crosser and asked him to get up on the table and take a bow. As the guest of honor was bowing, the 200 hoodlums reached for their rods and let him have it. But when Capone—always the good bookkeeper—counted the bullet holes, he found only twenty in the carcass—180 of the triggermen had missed.

Years ago, I used to haunt the 42nd Street shooting galleries, and got so handy with a .22 rifle that I could knock the dancing celluloid ball off the stream of water five times out of ten. And I was plenty cocky about my marksmanship until one day when I went up to see Ben Hecht at his place in Nyack.

Hecht, fed up with my big talk about small arms, suggested I shoot it out with Charlie Lederer, the screen writer, who was spending the weekend with him.

"I've got nothing against Lederer," I said modestly. "Let him live."

"The target will be a tomato can at ten feet," said Ben, "and you and Charlie can take turns with my .22 automatic pistol."

We went out on the lawn and Lederer, sighting carefully hit the can two out of three times. I didn't even nick it.

Last month while vacationing in Hollywood, I lunched with Hecht and reminded him of the debacle which ended my career as a marksman.

"I might as well have been shooting blanks," I said.

"As a matter of fact," grinned Ben, "you were."

Britain Unveils Super-Jet Engine

LONDON (AP) — Britain unveiled the most powerful jet engine in the world today.

Its manufacturers asserted the engine has as much power as all four of the 3,500 horsepower piston engines which drive a Superfortress bomber.

The engine, named the Sapphire, already has been thoroughly flight-tested by equipping one of Britain's twin-jet meteor fighters with two of them.

The Meteor test plane was flown before correspondents at London airport but for security reasons its performance was kept largely under wraps.

Reports of the engine say it is powerful enough to make a fighter climb straight up. Low cloud cover prevented any such demonstration and the company declined to confirm this report, which has been circulating for months among military attaches in London.

Jan Zurakowski, test pilot for Armstrong Siddeley Company, makers of the engine, said the Meteor, equipped with Sapphire engines, "can outclimb any other fighter in the world — British, American, Russian."

trophe still imminently threatened. As a nation, we shall then meet our greatest test, whether to continue to plod down the hard road to survival, or whether to listen again to the politicians who have tried so hard to cover up the origin and greatness of the danger here, who even now are shamelessly concealing the grim toll of our dead, wounded and missing whose blood has been the heavy price of grandstand "economizing."

THE LONG LEAN LOOK WITH SPECIAL EMPHASIS ON UNUSUAL NECKLINES IS NOW BEING FEATURED IN PARIS

By FLORENCE MILLS
AP Newsfeatures

PARIS—A long lean look with special emphasis on unusual and often very revealing necklines is being featured by Jeanne Lanvin is fall.

The leanness is seen mainly in day and cocktail dresses which are modeled skintight to the figure in an unbroken line. She uses no belts and indents the waist by paneling or darting.

One number had such a sleek fit the zipper ran from under the arm right down to the thigh.

Some skirts, however, splash into fullness at the sides just above the knee.

The embroidery for which this old-established fashion house is famous is sprinkled over every type of dress and even on coats.

The accent is on white and gold with embroidery in tiny rhinestones, bugle beads, gold and silver thread and pieces of mirror mingled with silver sequins.

Her necklines vary greatly. Topcoats and day dresses have standup, shell-shaped collars, often supported by a bright-colored taffeta scarf tied into a huge, stiff bow in ront of the neck.

Cocktail dresses in velvet and wool have a jagged "broken eggshell" ffect, high in front and dipping to waistdeep vee at the back. She as an even more naked look for vening—quite backless and strapess.

One of the daintiest of her slimkirted cocktail dresses was in a ery fine grey worsted, embroidered o within a foot of the hem, with pider webs spun from very tiny hinestones.

Lanvin shows one of the prettiest ollections of debutante dresses. She nakes them all in white tulle with normous crinoline skirts looped vith pink or blue satin ribbon and cattered with roses. The strapless ecklines are softened with drapery r with fans of pleating which droop ver the bust.

In contrast to the slim line of ll her dresses, Lanvin shows treendous coats with whole wads of leats in the back of them. She has new treatment for the sleeves. They are cut bell shaped, then lashed up the middle to just below he shoulder so as to show their uxurious nutria or squirrel lining.

One topcoat in violet broadcloth ad an immense hood unbuttoned ver the crown and folded down to ecome a huge cape collar, emroidered in scroll design with fine old thread. Long, violet suede oves were embroidered to match.

With all the dressier models, treendous blue and white diamond arrings were worn. They were tearrop-shaped and covered practically he entire ear.

Brush up on your knowledge of movie and theater etiquette. Rate yourself on today's eight points.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

YOU CAN substitute poise for unsureness, and sail through any social occasion with grace, just by boning up on the manners and customs that cover it. When you want to make a good impression, knowing the gracious, fine points of conduct is just as important as grooming your appearance to perfection.

An occasional, quick brush-up on the accepted ways of action in various situations will prevent any little frictions from occurring that might rob you of enjoyment during the fall and winter social whirl. How about taking your movie and theater brush-up today? Mark the following points T. for true and F. for false.

1. The lady holds her own ticket of admission. T. or F. 2. A woman always checks her coat when her escort checks his. T. or F. 3. Your escort always precedes you down the aisle and enters the row of seats ahead of you. T. or F.

4. If you are with another couple, the ladies sit together. T. or F. 5. Must you remove your hat- T. or F. 6. During the performance you may make remarks providing they are amusing. T. or F. 7. A woman does not have to stand up to let people pass her seat. T or F.

8. When your escort or anyone else fails to observe a small amenity, you should point this out. T. or F.

Now, see how you made out. All your answers will be correct, if you have kept in mind that the gracious acting way is the right way.

1. False, because it is gracious for your escort to assume all the respsonbility for an evening's entertainment. 2. False: a woman keeps her coat aound her (unless it is wet) as a protection from chill drafts. 3. True and false: a woman preceds her escort down the aisle unless there is no usher present, but her escort always enters the row of seats ahead of her to clear the way.

4. True: the ladies sit together with the escorts on each side. 5. True: you must remove your hat unless it is as head-conforming as your hair. False: talking of any kind is unforgivably-bad conduct. 7. False: for everybody's sake, including your own, stand up promptly and cheerfully.

8. False: consideration of the feelings of others is the first rule of etiquette in any situation.

Today it is fun to present a man who has written a column on comic strips for the Encyclopedia Brittanica . . . But to forty million readers everydays he's better known as the author of Li'l Abner.

He's the only living creator of a national youth holiday—Sadie Hawkins' Day, usually the Saturday after Armistice . . . Not only celebrated in America but also observed in Tokyo, Scandinavia, Germany and France.

He's the only comic strip author who's created a comic strip within a comic strip — FEARLESS FOSDICK.

The Shmoo, Lower Slobovia, Daisy Mae and Lena the Hyena are now part of the American idiom.

Mr. Capp, who looks quite a lot like his own creation, with a shock of hair, mischievous grin and heavy black eyebrows, is the President of a business which licenses over 101 different items, using Li'l Abner characters . . . Everything from towels, soap and wash cloth to doughnut making machines.

But he thinks cartoonists should be Presidents of the Yewnited States, too!

Of this column he says: "It was fun to write without having to draw pictures."

A Cartoonist Should Be President

By AL CAPP

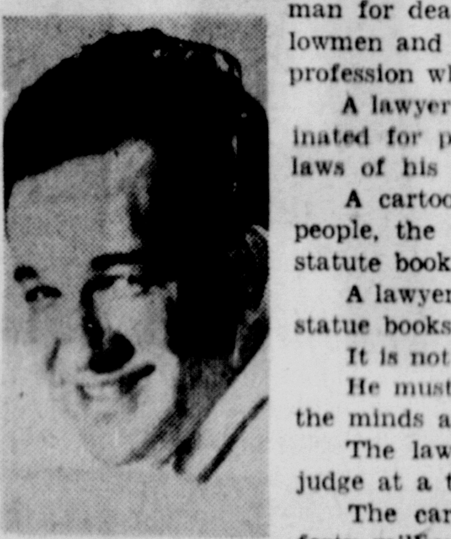
THIS IS THE season when Americans submit themselves to their fellow-Americans, as candidates for public office.

This is the season when those of us who aren't candidates (and there are mighty few of us left) carefully consider the qualifications of those who are.

Soon we will be making senators, governors and representatives of businessmen, lawyers and industrialists.

Every profession will be honored — except the cartoonist.

It has never occurred to anyone that being a cartoonist qualifies a man for dealing with huge numbers of his fellowmen and yet, if you think it over, there is no profession which qualifies a man more.



AL CAPP

A lawyer, to be successful enough to be nominated for public office, must know the written laws of his people.

A cartoonist must know the emotion of his people, the unwritten laws, statute books.

A lawyer has it all spelled out for him, in the statue books.

It is not spelled out for the cartoonist.

He must instinctively understand what is in the minds and hearts of people.

The lawyer must beguile and convince one judge at a time.

The cartoonist must plead his case before forty million judges, every day and on Sunday, too, all the time.

The businessman has something to sell that you can touch, like an automibile or a chocolate bar or a suit of clothes.

A businessman has something to sell that people know they need. And that makes it easier.

The cartoonist has something to sell that people do not know they need, and yet they need the laughter that the cartoonist has to sell, more than they need anything else. And although you cannot touch it with your hands, this laughter is made of real things—it's made of the cartoonist's understanding of what you will laugh at, what you consider sacred, his understanding of how you feel about war, about peace, about your golf game, about your secretary, your relatives, your politics, your neighbor's politics, your kids, and yourself.

For only by understanding all this about all of you can he make you laugh.

• — • — •

Once elected to office, the public official may, if he's that kind of a fellow, serve the privileged interest, ignore the common people—and get away with it.

Once elected to the comic page, the cartoonist must serve all the people, common and uncommon, privileged and underprivileged, or its away with him.

A cartoonist cannot disregard the wishes of his "constituents" for a single day. The cartoonist is the real servant of the people.

Of all the American professions, the profession of cartooning best qualifies a man for finding out what everybody wants, and giving it to 'em. And that's what good government is, isn't it?

Why doesn't somebody nominate a cartoonist for President?

It'd be a sure thing. We've been campaigning for votes every day of our lives, and we've always won by landslides!

Flood Control

Paye added it is hoped that the City Park Department can replace the bandstand with a new structure, possibly on top of the levee but that could not be done before the levee is completed, he said.

The sewer and water line work in the park is expected to be completed by November, after which plants and shrubs can be restored in readiness for the spring season.

Riverside Park property will be retained by the city, except for a small section at the tip near the confluence of the creek and river.

That piece is part of the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal property and was acquired by the Department of the Interior a number of years ago. It contains a stone abutment which was formerly part of a canal bridge landing.

Meanwhile, Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder reported yesterday that she and Mrs. Marguerite E. Findlay, a member of the City Park Board, have conferred with Army Engineers regarding the work.

Majority of the 160 benches in the park have been taken out, and tool rooms and the rest rooms have been dismantled. Some of the benches have been loaned to city playgrounds.

Barberry shrubs around the electric fountain will be moved near the Girl Scout House. Some shrubbery around the bandstand has been transferred to the grounds of the Keating Day Nursery, Mrs. Findley said.

Masonry from the drinking fountain will be saved for future use. Several beds of daffodils, jonquils and tulips will be moved, with some of the tulips to be taken to the Maryland Avenue plot at the intersection of Williams Street.

Mrs. Roeder commented that tulip bulbs are used year after year for as long as possible.

Items To Be Saved

Spotlights and the electric fountain must also be moved, as well as 300 or 400 pieces of privet hedge.

Mrs. Findlay said she has itemized every piece of equipment and supplies used at Riverside Park. The list totals at least $2,000. Every item possible will be salvaged for future use, he said.

Although the bandstand must be demolished because of the flood control work, funds can be supplied in the Park Appropriation in the future to replace it, Mrs. Roeder said.

Flood control work also affected the small park on Valley Street but the flower beds of scarlet sage, cannas and zinnias were saved and will be ready next spring, Mrs. Findlay said.

Recalling Mrs. Findlay's 17 years of service to the city, Mrs. Roeder commended her for "a wonderful job" and for her sense of responsibility in the use and care of equipment needed for maintaining the parks.

William Claus

Joseph M. Miller and John T. Jones. This group worked out many flood control problems and analyzed the reports of the Army Engineers. They recommended through Small to the Mayor and Council and County Commissioners the present plan now being constructed.

Claus also headed a committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce in 1945 which sponsored an investigation of the lower coal seams in this area, below the Pittsburgh or Big Vein Seam. The work was financed through the United States Bureau of Mines.

Field surveys were made, 26 diamond drill holes were driven, 20 beds of coal were penetrated and the Bureau published two reports showing that millions of tons of recoverable coal are in the area.

Claus said yesterday that the best and short range coal available that could be produced in the area lies between Lonaconing and Westernport. He declared yesterday that committees working on industrial development should give consideration to attracting capital to revive the industry in that area. Such a revival would be a permanent benefit to Cumberland and the county, he said.

Claus is a native of Philadelphia, Pa., born there August 4, 1885. He was educated in public schools, Central High School, Drexel Institute and Temple College, all located in Philadelphia. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Cumberland Kiwanis Club and the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He began his civil engineering practice in 1905 with the engineering firm of Pugh and Hubbard as a rodman, transitman and designer. He later had charge of development work at Broadway, Flushing, New York City; Queen Lane Manor, Germantown, Philadelphia, one of the city's most beautiful suburbs; townsite of Enola, Harrisburg, Pa.; and design and construction of a sewage system at Manasquan, N. J., where an outlet pipe was extended far out into the ocean.

From 1910 to 1913 he was engaged by the Southern Pacific Railroad with headquarters at Victoria, Tex., as assistant division engineer of 450 miles of railroad property. There he designed bridges, terminals, water supply and extension of new lines.

On November 11, 1911, he married in Victoria, Tex., to Annie Marie Davenport of Ennis, Tex. They had two children, Mrs. Amelia Ann Shuck, of Washington, D. C., and William Davenport Claus, LaVale.

Prior to coming here, he was engaged as an engineer with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and designed street car terminals and line extensions.

New Headquarters

Fire Company maintained and preserved it, and it served the community as a headquarters for the Boy Scouts and Red Cross and as a Health and Recreation Center.

At the close of World War II, when it became apparent that the Maryland State Police would have to seek a new headquarters, Colonel Beverly Ober, then superintendent of the department, introduced the idea of renovating the property for the purpose. Rehabilitation was begun in 1949.

As the headquarters of the Maryland State Police, the Old United States Arsenal will house those divisions dealing with administration, communications, traffic, supply, investigation, records and training. Upon completion of the Training School, its facilities and staff will be made available to all police departments in the State.

Loftiest volcano in the world is 23,000-foot Sahama, in Peru.

Mahoney Outlines

candidate declared he favors a bill with referendum on the soldiers' bonus and is interested in the development of a broad recreation program for Western Maryland.

Mahoney described Garrett and Allegany Counties as "the forgotten counties" so far as the recent governors of Maryland are concerned. He declared he could never understand why the governor would prefer to sail around on a $60,000 yacht when he could come to Western Maryland and enjoy the mountain top beauty, at its best in the autumn.

Recreation is big business, and stocking of the forests with game and the streams and lakes with fish would make this area a sportsmen's paradise, attracting tourists and new business, he declared.

He promised aid to Miners Hospital and State Teachers College, and declared, "As soon as I become governor I shall inaugurate a plan or program to do something definite about the unemployment in this county."

Mahoney appealed for support for his campaign and urged the people present to register as many of their friends and relatives as possible on September 5 and get out the "Mahoney" vote on September 18.

Michael F. Prendergast, chairman of the Mahoney for Governor Committee in this county, presided and introduced a number of party candidates and party workers. He appealed for workers in the Mahoney headquarters and thanked those who have shown interest in the campaign.

Mahoney Group

connected with it interfered with the rights and privileges of candidates for office, nor has anyone in it violated the sanctity of the homes of the Democrats of the county by continual phone calls asking 'how they feel about certain candidates'. The statement printed in the paper is not the same as the one I received from Mr. Wilson this (Thursday) morning. Why?

"The reference to his 'being embarrassed' is ridiculous. Was he embarrassed at the upset caused in the home of Alexander Nicol, magistrate at Frostburg, who was 'pressured' to drop out of the race against State Senator Kimble. And was it embarrassing to him that Judge James P. Kenney of Frostburg was told by a messenger that he was 'too old to be on the State Central Committee and should not file for re-election'...

"If Mr. Wilson was embarrassed by my invitation, the things enumerated above surely must have made him feel terrible, by comparison. He must feel upset also that so many Republicans get state jobs that come under his 'clearance' as chairman of the committee.

"Surely these things are not helping the Democratic party, and they are definitely no help to Governor Lane, Mr. Wilson should know...

"Mr. Wilson had plenty of opportunity in several campaigns to call attention to statements that I have made and have printed, if any of them had been inaccurate. He never did, because all I have said and have written has been accurate, and he and the Lane people know it.

"When Mr. Wilson speaks of 'Standards of Decency' he should look to his own glass house—if there is any glass left in it."

Armed Unification Proves Itself In Korean War, Leva Tells VFW

CHICAGO—(AP)—Marx Leva, assistant Secretary of Defense, says that the unification of Armed Forces has proved itself in the "ordeal by fire" of Korea.

Leva addressed the 51st National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In the afternoon, 20,000 uniformed marchers staged a giant four-hour parade down Michigan Avenue. They were joined by Chicago area units of the Marines, Air Force, Navy and Army, 20 floats and 100 musical units.

Leva told the delegates that both secretaries of defense—James Forrestal and Louis Johnson—"have made great and lasting contributions to our national security."

These contributions, he added, "were achieved in spite of great obstacles."

Much of the criticism against Johnson, he added, "springs from a political base."

Discussing achievements under the unification program, Leva quoted a recent message from General MacArthur to President Truman saying "I do not believe that history records a comparable operation which excelled the speed and precision with which the eighth Army, the Far East Air Force and the Seventh Fleet have been deployed to a distant land for immediate commitment to major operations."

Leva said through unification, the consolidated shipping line operated by the Navy is making a "phenomenal record," the services are showing teamwork which MacArthur has praised "in the most glowing terms," and newly-developed weapons have been brought into action speedily.

He said in addition the joint chiefs of staff are acting promptly on MacArthur's requests—frequently implementing them in the same day they are received.

Blackout Hides Crete Love Story Developments Again

ATHENS, Greece—(AP)—A curtain of censorship has dropped on developments in the Romeo-and-Juliet type drama that has split the Island of Crete and stirred interest around the world.

There has been a blackout on theof story for several days in certain newspapers. Correspondents at the scene have been reported roughly handled.

The public prosecutor banned publication by Athens newspapers further details in the case of dark-haired Miss Stassoula Petracogeorgi and her lover, Constantine Kephaloyannis, who are presumed to be in hiding somewhere on Mount Ida.

Government censorship measures and security moves on Crete were taken to minimize tension on the island, where a blood feud has threatened between the politically powerful families of the principals.

The girl, who was abducted last week, is the 19-year-old daughter of George Petracogeorgi, a liberal member of Greece's parliament. Kephaloyannis' brother Manuel is a Populist (Royalist) member of Parliament.

In Detroit, Mich., a young man identified himself as Stassoula's brother, Hercules Petracogeorgi, expressed doubt about unconfirmed reports that she has married Kephaloyannis.

"If necessary," said Petracogeorgi, he'll go home to "fight for my sister's honor."

The youth, who said he was working in a Detroit chemical plant, added he couldn't understand reports quoting his sister that she wants to marry her lover.

"This cannot be," he said.

"I do not want civil war, but I do not want this Constantine as a brother-in-law.

GEORGE P. MAHONEY Says,

"For these things I stand"--

MY STAND ON THE SALES TAX

I am absolutely opposed to a permanent continuation of the present Sales Tax, and, when I am elected Governor, I shall take immediate steps to secure its prompt amendment and eventual elimination.

I am opposed to this present Sales Tax because it places an undue burden upon those people in the lower income brackets who are least able to pay, and is out of all proportion to their ability to pay; it favors some business enterprises at the expense of others; it drives business across State lines; it is subject to easy and simple evasion, is difficult of effective administration and it is unfair and unjust in its application and results.

But, I would not be honest with the people of Maryland if I attempted to make them believe that I, or anybody else, upon taking office as Governor of this State, could immediately eliminate the entire Sales Tax.

Commitments involving millions upon millions of dollars have already been made by the present administration which must be paid for out of taxes. Whether justified and warranted or not, whether extravagant or not, it will take time and a sincere desire and extraordinary effort to wisely reduce our tremendous and frightening increase in expenditures, and eliminate the taxes which pay for them.

I give my solemn pledge to the people of Maryland that if I am elected, I shall immediately use my best ability, every bit of my energy, and every possible means, to achieve that end and correct the mistakes that have been made.

However, these things I know I can do, and I shall do:

I will recommend to the Legislature:

(a) the immediate increase of the exemption in the Sales Tax from 14c to 34c;
(b) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all foods, whether purchased in restaurants and public eating places, or for outside consumption;
(c) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all fuels used for household purposes;
(d) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all medicines, drugs, and household remedies which are not now exempt, and from oils, powders and like articles used in the care of babies;
(e) an immediate reduction of ten per cent (10%) in income taxes on earned and unearned income of individuals.

I assure the people of Maryland these things can be done, and I pledge that I will do them without in any way detrimentally affecting teachers' salaries, the public school system, the operation and administration of our hospitals, the improvement and maintenance of our State roads, or any other vital public function, and without in any way depriving our political subdivisions of their financial aid.

I have been purposely conservative in the above reductions which I am recommending. I am convinced, however, that it will be possible to further increase the Sales Tax exemption and make other substantial reductions and eliminations in taxes after I have had the opportunity to examine our governmental and tax structures from within, instead of from the outside, as I am forced to do now.

BUDGETING AND ACCOUNTING CONTROLS

The Sales Tax and the recent tremendous increases in our other State taxes are to a large extent due to the failure to adopt and institute an adequate and approved system of fiscal accounting and budgetary controls, with competent, fearless and effective administration.

If an adequate, modern and understandable system of accounting and proper budgeting controls, with continuous scrutiny and checking, had been adopted—if the uneconomic freezing of millions of dollars of idle cash money in the State Treasury (which is held there through the antiquated system of special dedicated funds, and which takes money away from the taxpayers far in advance of any need for its use in financing State services) had been discontinued—if a stop had been put to the wasteful and profligate practice of basing requests for appropriations from the Legislature on estimated receipts by Departments (which encourages the spending of more money than is reasonably necessary)—and if, after study, changes had been made in the sprawling structure of government organization, with its innumerable independent and uncoordinated departments, boards, commissions and other agencies, over which there is now no effective control and management—all of which have been recommended time after time by the Efficiency and Economy Commission, by other experts and by the Press—there would have been no need for the tremendous increase in taxes forced upon the Legislature and the people of the State.

State agencies having general fund appropriations and special fund moneys both available, now spend those special fund moneys for purposes never contemplated or authorized by the budget and the appropriation bills approved and passed by the Legislature. There is no valid reason why special funds should not be subject to regular budgetary control just as general State funds are. Where special funds are included in the budget, no account is taken of the balances on hand. Year after year appropriations are made by the Legislature under a so-called budget based almost entirely on estimated receipts, and the balances are carried forward and expended under blanket authorizations, so that the expenditures finally far exceed the amounts actually budgeted and approved by the Legislature.

This procedure creates unlimited opportunities for extravagance and almost criminal waste in the expenditure of the hard-earned money of the people of this State.

Immediately upon my inauguration I shall take steps to abolish these vicious practices, and I shall set up a small permanent staff of experts to make a thorough study of the organization and operation of the administrative structure of the State Government for the purpose of eliminating the over-lapping and duplication which now exist in State agencies and their work, to correct our obsolete, unbusinesslike, misleading system of accounting and budgeting, and our haphazard taxing practices, and secure such legislation as may be necessary to effect the needed changes; and then I shall make that staff a continuing, day-to-day check at the operating levels of the State government.

In addition, I shall appoint an advisory board of recognized public spirited business and professional men and women who will put the interests of the people first, to give the State the benefit of their experience and judgment in these matters, and to guard the interests of the public.

ROADS

I propose to build throughout the State of Maryland the kind of roads the State needs and can afford. I am opposed, however, to the State roads building program which will cost another Five Hundred Million Dollars, according to Govenor Lane and his State Roads Commission, in addition to the Two Hundred Million Dollars which already has been committed for or spent by them. I am opposed to the building of fancy "denied-access" roads throughout this State, which cost from Eight Hundred Thousand to One Million Dollars a mile to build, and which will, if Mr. Lane builds them, saddle the State with a debt from which it can never extricate itself, require the raising of the tax on gasoline to fifteen cents or twenty cents a gallon, or the doubling or perhaps tripling of the present Sales Tax, or the putting of toll gates across the roads of Maryland and the making of toll charges against the citizens of this State who are compelled to use its roads.

What Maryland really needs, and what I shall give it, are plenty of good dual-lane highways, honestly constructed, the majority of which can be built for anywhere from Two Hundred Thousand to Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars a mile, and at the most Four Hundred Thousand Dollars a mile, instead of roads now being built costing from Eight Hundred Thousand to One Million Dollars a mile.

STATE HIGHWAY EXPLOITATIONS

I am in favor of legislation which will control the use and development of land bordering on State highways so as to eliminate road-side slums, dangers to life, and unbridled exploitation by billboards and business establishments of land immediately adjacent to our roads.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS AND DAMAGE OF STATE ROADS

I promise an immediate study and proposal of effective legislation to reduce the deplorable and tragic number of deaths and accidents occurring on State roads, and the damage and destruction of those roads as a result of uncontrolled overweight trucks, improper and unsafe motor vehicles, and the lack of adequate inspection.

MENTAL HOSPITALS

I shall immediately correct the deplorable conditions which still exist in our mental hospitals and proceed with the improvements so long neglected; and I shall take steps to inaugurate and operate a mental care hospital program, with the emphasis on treatment and cure rather than on bricks and mortar, which will not call for the spending of millions of dollars on the erection of buildings and the expenditure of many more millions for their maintenance and operation, but will be primarily designed to properly staff our institutions and establish and carry on mental hygiene clinics in the cities and counties of the State, where unfortunate mental cases can be diagnosed, treated, and cured, and complete mental breakdowns prevented.

COMMUNISM AND SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES

I am opposed to Communism and to the coddling of Communists in this State and in this Country. I believe with every fibre of my being that the State should take every proper constitutional measure to protect itself, its citizens and its institutions against the infiltration of Communism, anti-democratic processes and subversive activities, and that this State should use its influence with the Federal Government to the same end.

HOME RULE

In am in favor of legislation that will give to the cities, towns and counties of Maryland the kind of home rule that will enable them to have a greater measure of self-government. This is a vital part of the democratic process in which I believe.

PUBLIC EDUCATION

It is my conviction that the subject of public education is a matter of primary importance. The very best in educational facilities for every child in the State is a requisite for good citizenship. A modern, progressive system of education, completely divorced from politics, with continuing aid to cities and counties, with planned programs for higher educational facilities, for handicapped children, vocational education, in-service training for teachers, and above all, adequate salaries sufficient to attract well qualified men and women to the teaching profession, are a necessary part of such a progressive system of education. They are merely sensible, businesslike investments, the dividends from which are intelligent, independent, wage-earning citizens, who, in turn, add to the wealth of the State and help to provide the means for maintaining other public needs as well as adequate educational facilities.

CONSERVATION AND FISHERIES

I propose to put an end to the practice of making our problems of conservation of natural resources and tidewater industries a political football. The judgment and advice of practical, qualified, intelligent and honest tidewater county citizens and of experts, who can work harmoniously with each other and with the Governor, should be sought and utilized in establishing a program of research, experiment, and enforcement which will rehabilitate our oyster, crab and fish industries, and encourage and protect this great source of livelihood for our tidewater county citizens.

WELFARE PROGRAM

I promise an immediate study and improvement of our State Welfare program having to do with relief aid, old age assistance, child care, the blind and deaf, and other disadvantaged groups.

ORGANIZED LABOR

I believe that Organized Labor should be represented on those Boards and Commissions of the State that are engaged in public functions which affect the working men and women of the State; and I shall appoint to office qualified representatives from the ranks of labor to the State Industrial Accident Commission and the State Unemployment Security Board.

WOMEN'S PART IN STATE GOVERNMENT

I stand for giving the women of Maryland a greater opportunity to take the important part which they are qualified to take in the management of State affairs, instead of the minor part that has been thrown to them in the past as a political sop. I promise to make appointments of women to those positions in which they are particularly qualified to act.

OFFICES OF CLERKS OF COURT AND ORPHANS' COURTS

I am in favor of legislation looking to the eventual consolidation of the offices of the clerks of court and the abolition of the present Orphans' Court system. However, I believe, and will insist, that fair and reasonable consideration and protection should be given to those persons now serving in such offices who would be affected by these changes.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The best legal and disinterested political thought in the State is divided on the question as to (a) whether there is a real need for a new State Constitution, (b) whether a Constitutional Convention is the best and most practical means for making such changes as may be determined to be proper and necessary, and (c) whether this State should embark, at this period of domestic and world-wide upheaval upon the rewriting in its entirety of our State Constitution.

In any event, this question is more properly one for the people in November, when it will be voted upon by all the voters of the State. In the meantime, a general and full discussion of the subject can be had, an attempt can be made to secure crystalization of competent opinion, and the respective candidates for legislative and executive offices of both dominant political parties can make known their positions and their platform promises on the subject.

Then if a majority of the voters indicate their desire for a constitutional convention, I will do everything I can, as Governor, to carry out their wishes.

REPRESENTATION IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

I believe that the City and the counties of the State should have fair and reasonable representation in the General Assembly.

VETERANS' BONUS

I believe the matter of a State bonus for Veterans should be determined in the democratic way by a referendum to the voters of Maryland. If the Legislature passes a proper Act with provision for a referendum, I pledge, that I, as Governor, will sign it forthwith.

JUDICIAL REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE ASSESSMENTS

I believe that there should be some provision made for judicial review of the facts as well as the law under decisions of the State Tax Commission respecting valuations and assessments on real estate.

VETO POWER

I believe the Governor of the State should not have the power to pigeonhole enactments of the State Legislature until after the adjournment of the General Assembly and then thwart the will of the Legislature by a veto when it is impossible for the Legislature to override his veto.

REGISTRATION

The experience, in recent times in Baltimore City, with the operation of the permanent registration system for voters, has demonstrated to the public, I believe, and has convinced me, that some revision of the law and practices in connection with registration must be made, so as to better serve the public convenience and guarantee fair and honest elections.

HOUSING ACCOMMODATIONS

I believe the State has been derelict in not grappling with the statewide problem of insufficient housing accommodations. I propose to have a study made of these conditions with a view to having the State assist in ameliorating them.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF STATE INDUSTRIES

I believe that, to every extent possible, the purchases of supplies should be of Maryland commodities and Maryland products and in aid of Maryland industries, so that such industries, as coal mining in Western Maryland, for instance, can be encouraged, and residents of mining communities can be gainfully employed.

And, finally, I promise that:

(a) I shall attend to the business of this State day in and day out, and be available to and in continuous touch with department heads; and I promise that no vacancies will be allowed to exist in important State positions and Boards;
(b) I will periodically visit every city and county in the State and keep myself informed of their problems and views;
(c) No business I am engaged in or financially interested in will have, at any time, any business dealings with the State of Maryland while I am Governor;
(d) I will be available to the Press for interrogation, so the people can be informed on all matters of public interest; and I shall be accessible at all reasonable times to the people themselves;

I am not now, and I will not be, obligated to or controlled by any political bosses, so that when elected, I shall be a free Governor of the Free State of Maryland.

Ohio Fisherman Survives Gull Attack In Lake

Spends 20 Hours In Erie Waters

TOLEDO, O.—(AP)—Thomas Navarre of Toledo — who survived 20 hours in Lake Erie, the attacks of sea gull bomber squadrons and artillery shells — swore off lake fishing.

"It was a terrible experience," the Toledo truck driver told rescuers. "They'll never get me out on that lake again."

An older companion, Harold P. Meidt, 50, Toledo, died after their fishing boat overturned.

But, Navarre, 33, managed to survive, beating off sharp-billed sea gulls with exhausted, numb arms while he waited for someone to pick him up.

The sea gulls swooped down in squads of four or five to peck at his head and face.

Columbus Zoo officials said sea gulls are ferocious only in protecting their nest, and in getting food.

"Why, I've seen them come clear from Lake Erie (about 130 miles)," said one zoo official, "just to feast on the shad that die in the ice here. Some of the shad will be buried in the ice and you'd think the gulls would break their necks the way they dash against the ice to get the shad."

The gulls were bad, but after they decided Navarre wasn't their dish, shells from artillery using the Erie Ordnance Depot firing range began falling in the water near him.

"I never thought I'd make it," related Navarre.

Two fishermen finally picked up Navarre, after debating whether the small, dark object they sighted was a buoy or a human being.

A strong off-shore wind blew the Toledo man farther from shore after his boat overturned, preventing him from swimming for help. All he could do was sweat it out in a cushion-type life preserver.

Meidt and Navarre rented the boat Sunday afternoon. He was picked up by two Locust Point fishermen near the Niagara reef, about seven miles offshore from the Erie Ordnance Depot near Port Clinton, where he rented the boat.

Rhinoceros Has Light In Eyes But It Certainly Isn't Love

CHICAGO—(AP)—That glare in the eyes of Kashi, Brookfield Zoo Rhinoceros, wasn't love light at all.

Kashi and Miss Kamala, another member of the Indian Rhinoceros family, had their second date. Like the first, it broke up in a spat that nearly wrecked their quarters.

A number of guests had been invited to a late breakfast party, as they were last year, just to be on hand in case the pair became engaged.

Things were looking up for about 10 minutes after Kashi was admitted to Kamala's enclosure.

Kashi began to eat his breakfast of hay and soybeans. Suddenly he stopped and crowded into Kamala's bathtub along with her.

Before the guests could get another look there was a loud grunt. Mud began to fly and out stumbled Kamala, heading her 4,500 pounds for the hefty timber fence between her and the moat.

When she broke through the fence some guests remembered they had other engagements.

Kamala dropped into the moat. Keeper Cliff Jones stopped Kashi with a shout from the rear.

Zoo Director Robert Bean admitted his plans for the engagement had been set back. He said he would try again next month.

8,837 Persons Are X-Rayed In Allegany County

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, has announced that 8,837 persons have been checked in the mass chest X-ray program in Allegany County during the past few weeks.

The program was sponsored by the Maryland State Health Department and the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, according to Dr. Frantz.

The purpose was to detect cases of tuberculosis in the early stages so that prompt treatment would result in halting the disease and bring full recovery.

The program was held with X-rays being taken free of charge. A mobile unit toured the various county communities and another unit was parked in City Hall plaza to take chest X-rays of Cumberlanders.

A total of 4,361 X-rays were taken in Cumberland while the county figure was 4,476.

Totals for the various communities follow:

Bowman's Addition, 106; Mt. Savage, 203; LaVale, 195; Eckhart, 243; Frostburg, 848; Midland, 289; Lonaconing, 840; Barton, 407; Westernport, 727; Cresaptown, 414; Oldtown, 103, and Little Orleans, 101.

The chest X-rays will be checked and in cases where traces of the disease are found the persons will be notified by the Health Department.

Treatment may then be arranged. Dr. Frantz said the program's success is becoming more evident each year and with early diagnosis of the disease those afflicted are fairly certain of recovery with proper treatment.

Funds to operate the X-ray units are made available through the sale of Christmas Seals.

Police Prepare For Labor Day

No weekend leaves will be granted state troopers as the Maryland State Police of the Cumberland Barracks make ready for the Labor Day holiday, according to Sgt. Harry Holsinger.

Sgt. Holsinger, who is acting commander in the absence of Lt. W. E. O'Hara proposed the following rules for an accidentless weekend:

(1) Drive cautiously at all times, (2) adjust your speed to the road, weather and traffic conditions, and (3) observe posted speed limits.

Meanwhile, it was announced from State Police headquarters in Pikesville by Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent, that the electromatic speed meter will be used over the weekend on the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard.

This machine, which was recently demonstrated in LaVale, measures the speed of motor vehicles going in both directions. Col. Jarman said when a speed violation is noted, the operator of the machine will radio a trooper, located a mile or so away, who will stop the speeding vehicle.

Drivers when stopped in this manner will be requested to cooperate in curtailing highway fatalities and crippling injuries by complying with the three simple rules of the road.

Three Former Hospital Board Members Feted

Arthur J. Weber, who announced his retirement from the Board of Governors of Memorial Hospital last week, and two former members Wilbur V. Wilson and Tasker Lowndes, were made honorary life members of the board Wednesday night at the cottage of the board chairman, William A. Gunter, Evitt's Creek.

Cumberland Is Coal Center For Area Over 100 Years

A total of 371,918,164 tons of "black gold" were handled through Cumberland in 108 years of the coal trade in this area, including 1842 to 1949.

This is according to statistics of the Cumberland coal trade compiled from official sources in the auditor's office of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad here.

The figures include tonnage hauled by railroads and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal through the main terminal at Cumberland.

B. & O. Main Carrier

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has carried coal since the birth of mining as an industry in Western Maryland and northern West Virginia.

Over the 108 years, it has hauled a total of 155,752,766 tons through Cumberland.

The next in importance as a carrier has been the Western Maryland Railway, which started operations in 1872, with a total of 155,280,275.

During the 75 years of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, 21,507,138 tons were drawn by boat through its waters to Georgetown.

Through the years, besides the three carriers mentioned previously, there have been the following railroads, some of them now defunct, hauling coal through here:

Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad; Cumberland Coal and Iron Company Railroad; West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh Railway Company; George's Creek Railroad; Hampshire Railroad; Pennsylvania Railroad; George's Creek and Cumberland Railroad and Empire and West Virginia.

Three Peak Years

The peak years of coal hauling were in 1906, 1907, and 1918, each going over the 7,000,000 ton mark.

During 1906 and 1907, were the years when the excellent big vein bituminous was being mined in the George's Creek section. The rise in 1918 was due to the wartime use of coal, especially for the coal burning ships.

After 1926, when 6,013,000 tons were hauled, the total gradually declined to a 40-year low of 3,261,000 in 1938.

World War II created a coal demand and the total trade through here rose to a peak of 6,652,000 tons in 1947.

Since then the total dropped to 3,885,000 tons for last year.

W. Va. Boy Injured When Rifle Backfires

Kenneth Sherman, 11-year-old son of Letus Sherman, Moore, W. Va., was admitted to Parsons City Hospital Tuesday for treatment of a gunshot wound in his head, according to Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten.

The child told Sheriff Crosten and West Virginia State Trooper G. H. Phillips that his .22 calibre rifle backfired while he was hunting Tuesday.

According to the sheriff, the bullet entered the side of the boy's right temple, grazed the white of his left eye and is lodged in his left temple. Young Sherman is reported in serious condition; no effort has been made to remove the bullet.

The sheriff and trooper are continuing the investigation.

Rev. C. Herman Bailey, pastor of Southminster Presbyterian Church, will contact ministers to have them deliver sermons on conservation and urge their parishioners to take part in the program.

Program In Schools

Miss Mildred Willison will be in charge of the program for public schools. Emphasis on soil conservation w[illegible] in various ways will be requested of teachers. Radio skits, art work and other methods may be used.

County Board Urges Dam And Flood Control

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has sent telegrams to President Truman, Col. Allen J. McCutcheon, district engineer, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, and William Batt, assistant secretary of labor, urging the completion of the Savage River Dam and local flood control work.

Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the county board, said the telegrams were sent by him due to the urgency of the situation.

The telegrams stated that approval of federal appropriations for the Savage River Dam work and Cumberland flood control was of vital interest here.

It was stated completion of the dam was the key to securing new industry for this area as the dam would provide a uniform flow of water in the Potomac River for use by industry.

Stopping the flood control work would result in danger to the city from floods and complicate the serious economic situation here, Wilkinson said.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A friend of Herb Caen's was pained to observe that the contents of a fine old bottle of bourbon were shrinking mysteriously from day to day, although he had not touched the bottle himself. Suspecting a new maid, he made a pencil mark on the label at the level of the bottle's contents before leaving for his office the next day. That evening he found a note from the maid on his dressing table. "Please don't put any more pencil marks on the bottle," it pleaded, "because I don't want to put water in such good bourbon."

Joseph Henry Jackson overheard the most priceless line of the season. Two society leaders were lunching at San Francisco's Top of the Mark, discussing Jimmy Roosevelt's gubernatorial ambitions in California. "I heard him on the radio last night," sniffed one of the ladies. "He'll never go far. Sounds just like his father."

Temporarily Apart, Mouse Twins To Be In Same Unit

Although temporarily separated by the Marines for the first time in 22 years, identical twins, Paul J. Mouse, Jr., and Francis C. Mouse, formerly of 420 Valley Street, have been informed by their officers that they will again be together on September 15.

The two brothers left last month with the local Marine Reserve unit for induction into active Marine Corps duty. Shortly after their arrival at Camp LeJeune, N. C., they were separated, and, according to their parents, it was the first time they had been parted.

Paul Mouse, Sr., the men's father and veteran of the Marine Corps in World War I, learned of the situation in letters from his sons.

Immediately he contacted Rep. J. Glenn Beall relative to the twins' separation. Rep. Beall urged the commandant of the Marine Corps to allow them to serve together.

Evidently, the efforts of the father and his congressman bore some fruit, as on September 15 they again will be in the same unit, their officers have informed them.

Francis is currently attending a six-week engineer course at Court House Bay in Camp LeJeune while Paul is serving with his company 20 miles away.

The Mouse twins have been a tradition in Cumberland. They were born June 30, 1928. After two years at St. Patrick's School, they transferred to Columbia Street. In 1946 they both received their diplomas from Allegany High School.

The twins selected woodwork for a trade and started their apprentice training at the South Cumberland Planing Mill.

Francis and Paul joined the local Marine Reserve unit in June, 1948, and both advanced to corporal.

After years of living together, enjoying hunting and fishing as an inseparable two-some, the Mouse twins will be serving their country together, come September 15.

Here's Easy Banana Cake Recipe

Banana Layer Cake
Beverage

For an impressive, yet quick dessert, bake four layers of feathery-like cake, then frost with fluffy whipped cream and decorate with banana slices and maraschino cherries. Quick? It's an Easy Cake recipe and as its name implies, is quite simply prepared.

Instead of creaming the lard with the sugar as in the usual cake mixing method, the lard is creamed with a portion of the flour, then the remainder of the ingredients are added (with the exception of eggs, which are added one at a time near the end of mixing.) Made especially rich and tender with lard, it's the perfect complement for bananas and whipped cream.

Quick Cake To Talk About

This quick four-layer cake is frosted with fluffy whipped cream, then decorated with plump ripe banana slices and red maraschino cherries.

Spice Cake, Too

If you prefer a loaf cake to a layer cake, bake it in that form. Or make it into cup cakes. And if you want a simple spice cake recipe, follow the recipe below and add 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cloves and ¼ teaspoon allspice to the flour before creaming it with the lard.

Banana layer cake is a grand surprise for dessert, bridge or club refreshment. Or if for dinner dessert, plan the main course of the meal around stuffed pork chops. Include parsleyed potatoes and buttered peas. Your salad may be a chopped lettuce and endive combination temptingly served with Roquefort dressing. To make the dressing, add 4 tablespoons of crumbled Roquefort cheese to French dressing.

The following recipe makes sufficient bater for a two layered cake. Double the ingredients for four layers of this luscious cake.

EASY CAKE

1¾ cups sifted cake flour
½ cup lard
⅞ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs

Cream ½ cup flour and lard together thoroughly. Add the remaining flour, the sugar, baking powder, salt, vanilla and ⅓ cup milk. Stir and beat vigorously until smooth and fluffy. Add remaining milk. Beat again until thoroughly combined. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Pour into two round 8-inch cake pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F) for about 20 to 25 minutes.

Frost with sweetened, flavored whipped cream and arrange banana slices and maraschino cherries on top.

Quick Main Dishes With Canned Milk

If cooking facilities are limited at vacation camps, many main dishes can still be easily assembled with the nutrition that canned milk offers. A savory fish and noodle or rice main dish may be made with a pound can of salmon, a can of cream of mushroom soup, plus one cup of evaporated milk. As soon as the fish and liquids are heated, the sauce is ready for serving over rice or noodles. Incidentally, there are cans of ready cooked rice now on the market.

Evaporated milk can also be used in canned tomato and pea cream soups. Dilute the evaporated milk, using equal parts of water and milk, before adding to the soups.

Scrambled eggs, cheese rabbit, and creamed ham and potatoes are all enriched and simply achieved with canned milk.

Oysters Good In September

The popular, versatile oyster comes back on the menu September first, according to the old "R-month" tradition. Although oysters are eaten at all times of the year, it is at this season that they are said to be especially plump and flavorful.

Oysters are favorites during the fall and winter principally because they are prime and plentiful on the market. They not only stir appetites, but also have a special appeal to busy homemakers — for oysters are easy to buy, prepare and serve. Most cooks know or use only a few recipes which include oysters, but at least 98 recipes are known to home economists. Here are two of them.

Oysters Rockefeller

36 shell oysters
2 cups spinach, cooked
4 tablespoons onion
2 bay leaves
1 tablespoon parsley
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon salt
6 drops Tabasco sauce
½ cup bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter.

Shuck and drain oysters; place on deep half shells. Put spinach, onion, bay leaves, and parsley through food grinder. Add seasonings to spinach, and cook in butter for 5 minutes. Add bread crumbs and mix well. Spread mixture over oysters, and bake in hot over 400° F. for about 10 minutes. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Angels On Horseback

1 pint select oysters
12 slices bacon
½ teaspoon salt.
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons parsley.

Drain oysters and lay each oyster across half a slice of bacon. Sprinkle with seasonings and chopped persley. Roll bacon around oyster and fasten with toothpick. Place oysters on a rack in shallow baking pan and bake in hot oven 450° F. for about 10 minutes or until bacon is crisp. Remove toothpicks and serve. Serves 6.

Rice Ring And Stuffed Eggs Will Round Out Buffet Menu

With hundreds of salad recipes in circulation, here is one to catch the eye and captivate the appetite. Rice Ring with Stuffed Eggs is one salad suggestion for rounding out a buffet menu.

This is a salad planned for a warm summer evening. Easy to make — easy to serve — Rice Ring with Stuffed Eggs tastes as good as it looks. You can cook your rice ahead of time, and hard boil your eggs—reducing last minute preparations to a minimum.

Here is aknost a complete meal with a minimum of effort, and a delicious meal too!

Rice Ring With Stuffed Eggs

3 cups cooked rice
½ cup cooked carrots, finely diced
½ cup green beans, finely diced
¼ cup French dressing.

Blend all ingredients together lightly with a fork. Arrange mixture in lightly oiled ring mold. Store in refrigerator.

Stuffed Eggs

6 hard cooked eggs
¼ cup margarine or butter
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup grated tuna fish
3 tablespoons cream
2 teaspoons grated onion.

Shell eggs and cut in half lengthwise. Remove yolk and mash. Cream margarine and blend with yolks. Add salt, cayenne pepper, tuna fish, cream and grated onion. Blend well. Pile your mixture in egg white halves. Unmold chilled rice ring on large serving plate. Arrange stuffed eggs around rice. Garnish center of ring with watercress. Serves 6.

Rice ring with stuffed eggs will tempt wilted summer appetites Easy to make—and you can prepare it ahead of time. The well-seasond egg stuffing combines yolks blended to creamy smoothness with margarine, plus tuna fish and onions for flavor and texture. Diced vegetabl give color to the rice ring.

A rich biscuit dough may be fitted into an eight-inch layer pan, and the dough pressed about one-quarter-inch up the sides of the pan, then spread with a layer of thick jam and covered with another circle of dough. Bake in a moderately hot oven about twenty minutes and serve warm in wedges.

---

If there's any secret to cooking chicken it's to use a low temperature; high temperatures toughen the protein in poultry.

Outdoor Snack Bar

Add zest to the season's out-of-door parties by serving from a portable snack bar. Everything the hostess needs for her party can be served from a home-constructed snack bar like the one shown above. Best of all, the event may take place in any outdoor location such as the yard or garden. With its curved surface made of Masonite Leatherwood, an embossed hardboard that is both handsome and durable, the snack bar will enhance any setting and add to the enjoyment of the "snack-fest."

Snack Bar Adds Fun To Outdoor Meal

The great American pastime of "eating a snack" moves into the out-of-doors every summer and autumn. At the least excuse, there's a picnic, a breakfast at the beach, supper on the porch or an after-the beach snack in the yard.

Outdoor eating can be delightful for any group, and the fun can be shared by the hostess if she will just do a little advance planning and preparation. Then it will become a gala occasion for all and the hostess won't feel like saying, "It's too much work."

The right equipment, plenty of snacks and beverages, and serving in pleasant surroundings spell out success for an outdoor "snack-fest." An indispensable prop for the hostess who want's to do a perfect job of entertaining in a portable snack bar, which can be built for a few dollars by any man who can use a saw and hammer. In winter, it can be used in the recreation room.

With this snack bar, which is in the shape of a half circle and has shelves for supplies, the hostess is at liberty to center her "snack-fest" in the yard or garden, on the porch

If lemonade is to be served, prepare it ahead of time. Have a reserve supply and extra ice-cubes on the snack bar shelf. Enjoyable snacks to tide over ravenous appetites after a swim are popcorn, potato chips, cheese tidbits, or pretzels.

To add zest to the tidbits, have a dunking bowl of cheese spread on hand. This can be made by blending cream cheese with finely chopped chives and enough cream to give it the proper dunking consistency.

Why not plan a garden or lawn party as a surprise for the young folks after their next swim?

Baked eggs with cheese make a delicious luncheon dish. Break the eggs into a hot, well-greased, shallow baking dish. Pour enough milk just to cover the eggs. Sprinkle with a mixture of grated or crumbled soft yellow cheese and dry bread crumbs. Bake in a very moderate oven until the eggs are set.

Labor Day Buffet

DRY MILK . . . Mix it with beef for extra nutrition.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS . . . Prepared in advance.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Fine for a buffet party on Labor Day are Swedish Meat Balls and Gravy. They can be prepared before your guests come and then be reheated at the last minute. With them serve boiled new potatoes, crisp rye crackers Scandinavian-style, and a delicious salad of cooked and raw vegetables. Snap beans, corn, carrots, peas, tomato slices, and onion rings can all go on a bed of crisp greens for the salad. Cook all the vegetables except the tomatoes and onions ahead of time, chiil and coat them with a tangy French dressing. For an easy dessert arrange a platter of fresh fruit — adding cookies or cake if you like.

To give extra food value to the main dish add nonfat dry milk to the meat mixture, as well as to the gravy, as the following recipe specifies. Nonfat dry milk may be used in most recipes that call for milk — and it's a good way of adding food value. It's just milk with the fat and water removed; all the important milk nutrients — calcium, protein, riboflavin and lactose — are left in. It's economical, too, for a one-pound package costs about 35 cents and makes 5 quarts of nonfat milk.

Swedish Meat Balls and Gravy

Ingredients: 2 cups soft bread crumbs (lightly packed), ¾ cup water, 1 pound ground beef, 6 tablespoons nonfat dry milk, 1 egg (slightly beaten), 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup flour (about), ¼ cup fat.

Method: Soak bread crumbs in water. Add to ground beef. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk over meat mixture and blend thoroughly. Add egg, onion, salt, nutmeg and pepper, mixing well. Form into 1-inch balls. Roll in flour. Melt fat in heavy frying pan. Turn balls into frying pan and brown. Cover and cook over low heat 5 minutes. Remove balls from the pan. Measure remaining fat in frying pan. Add more fat to make 4 tablespoons. Combine ½ cup nonfat dry milk, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Sprinkle over 2 cups water in bowl. Beat until well blended. Add to melted butter in pan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Return meat balls to gravy, reheat and serve. Makes about 38 one-inch balls.

Elbow-deep In Canning?

You can eliminate one chore in the canning routine to make that task a little less arduous. In prewashing the mason jars and jelly glasses, use one of the all-purpose detergents, fo ra sudsmaker. Rinse well i nhot water and drain dry. No need to towel dry.

Fried Chicken Top Favorite For Sunday

Fried chicken is only one of the "best" foods that summer offers. But to many families it has top billing on the list of Sunday dinner favorites. To keep its good reputation, however, chicken must be fried so that it is temptingly brown on the outside and as tender as butter inside.

There are, of course, dozens of variations of standard methods of frying chicken. Those who like the crustiness of chicken fried in deep fat will want to try this method. First the chicke nis browned and partially cooked in deep fat. Then it is put into the oven and cooked until "fork-tender."

Tender Deep-Fried Chicken

Cut young chicken into pieces. Dip into milk for additional flavor. Then coat by dipping in seasoned flour (or a mixture of half bread crumbs and half flour). Let the pieces dry a bit before frying to prevent spattering.

Thermometer Needed

It is very important to use a theormometer for frying chicken in deep fat. The fat must be kept at the right temperature and guessing may mean poor results. A thermometer that is especially easy to use is made of non-breakable stainless steel. It has a round, clock-like face printed with easy-to-read temperatures and fastens to the edge of the frying kettle by an adjustable clip.

Heat enough fat to cover the chicken in a deep kettle. The temperature should be 3[illegible] degrees F. when the chicken goe[illegible] the fat. Lower the chicken into the fat a few pieces at a time, cooking meaty pieces first. Brown chicken on all sides, keeping the cooking temperature at 325 degrees F.

When chicken is evenly browned, lift from fat, drain and place in a covered casserole or skillet [illegible] cooking in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes or until the chicken is tender. Remove cover the last 10 minutes of cooking time.

Advance Of Pershing Tanks Described By AP's Lambert

By TOM LAMBERT

WITH U. S. FORCES IN SOUTH KOREA—(AP)—The road lay warm and yellow in the mid-afternoon sun, winding alongside rich green rice paddies on the floor of the valley.

On the grey sandy ridges above the valley, ridges laced with erosion ruts and sparsely covered with scrubby undergrowth, were the Reds.

American tanks and infantry began moving at 4 p. m., flanked by South Korean allies, to clear the hills.

In single file the tanks edged along the road, with "Belle Starr" commanded by Staff Sgt. Ernest W. Belcher, Hazy, W. Va., in the lead.

"Belle Starr" is a Pershing tank, 46 tons of steel with a 90 MM gun. The other Pershings, "Bama Belle," "Bucket O'Bolts" and "Bewildered" followed.

The GI's commanded by Second Lt. Henry E. Davis, Los Angeles, stalked warily along the flanks of the steel monsters or edged gingerly up the slopes of the ridges.

The tanks' machine guns hammered harshly at a few Reds who fled their approach, or at targets pointed out by tense doughboys.

"Belle Starr" had just rounded a twist in the road when the Reds reacted. There was a ripping burst of machine-gun fire and a lieutenant and two men on the slopes staggered, slumped and fell. The tanks and the soldiers halted.

While angry eyes scanned the hillside and the shallow ravines which scarred them, soldiers slid cursing down the shale slope carrying the wounded men.

The fight was forgotten for a moment now, especially by the rookies.

The wounded were placed on litters and laid on a tank, alongside the turret, under the big gun which swung menacingly toward the hills.

The fire and blood halted the action, except for quick sniping shots by GIs and the occasional hasty stuttering rat-tat-tat of a Red burp gun.

Then the Marines flew in, four of them in Corsair fighters, laden with bullets, rockets and napalm bombs of jellied gasoline.

They circled the area once, carefully, then for approximately 20 minutes lashed viciously at the Reds.

The flying Leathernecks circled the Red-held hills like riders on a merry-go-round. Each time they swung past the Red-held positions they strafed. The napalm bombs dropped lazily, bursting into flames and towering columns of smoke.

Then the Marines fired their rockets.

On the hills and in the valley the tankers and GIs still tense, talked about the first lap of the fight for the hill.

Sgt. Belcher, a man with a mustache and fierce goatee, said he'd fired on Reds "who were moving all around that Monday to get into their position before we got there."

Pfc. Donald Taylor, Detroit, fired a few fast rounds from his Browning automatic rifle and grinningly announced he'd brought down 'a moving Korea tree" which actually was a heavily camouflaged North Korean.

High on a slope, Sgt. First Class Bert Hensley, Commerce, Texas, said the Reds "had jumped up like quail, just like a covey of quail" as U. S. riflemen moved into the draw.

Lt. Davis clawed his way up the hill and asked Hensley about those casualties.

"One of them was that new kid, that replacement," replied one sergeant.

Davis grabbed up a handful of scrawny grass and threw it down fiercely in a gesture of anger.

Then the command to "move out" came out of the valley road and Second Lt. Dennis H. Hunter, Capac, Mich., tank platoon commander, outlined the plan of attack.

Sgt. Belcher discussed tactics of the new move with Sgt. Edward Kleinfleter, Rossford, Ohio, whose rifle squad was to accompany "Belle Star" to the crest of the road.

"Belle Star" took the lead again. She lumbered up the road threateningly, a cluster of riflemen crouched on her back.

Then came "'Bama Belle," "Bewildered" and "Bucket O'Bolts."

The tanks rounded one turn, then another. They were still in view of the infantrymen behind them on the slopes.

Suddenly "Belle Starr" opened up—and jolted with the effort. Dust spurted from her cleated tracks.

The shell burst on the hillside, to the right of a saddle on which we could see the reds running up a ridge.

The other tanks opened up, and the machine-gunners. Their actions seemed to touch off almost every gun on our hillside between them. The burp gun gave a hasty answer.

Then the rear tank began backing down, back towards us. Three of them came back, then "Belle Starr."

The attack was stalled for the moment. Red automatic weapons gunners had brought the tanks under fire and pinned down their accompanying infantrymen.

The burp gun chattered again. On the ridge a GI stood up boldly against the skyline and, in a furious burst, fired a futile clip of ammunition.

"Shocking Conditions" In Cook County (Chicago) Jail Reported

CHICAGO—(AP)—State's Attorney John S. Boyle reports some Cook County (Chicago) jail prisoners have been getting women, whisky and fine food—for a price.

He said an investigation by an assistant, James Condon, showed "shocking conditions" in the jail.

Sheriff Elmer Michael Walsh, a Republican, asserted that politics were behind the charges. He added, "I am satisfied that in every instance attempts to violate jail regulations have been quickly detected and thwarted."

The county jail is under his jurisdiction. The jail warden, Col. Chester L. Fordney, said "conditions are not as bad as the state's attorney thinks."

However he said it was "no secret" that narcotics and other items — knives, razor blades and hypodermic needles—have been smuggled into the jail.

Boyle, a Democrat, said Condon began the investigation after an escape plot was discovered July 20. Duplicate jailhouse keys were found among prisoners in a cell tier known as "Little Alcatraz," where four murderers were waiting execution.

Boyle said Condon's report showed prisoners could meet a woman privately in a locked cell for a half an hour for $3. The money, he said, was split up by jail employes and trustees who arranged the tryist.

He said some prisoners had bought whiskey, narcotics or steaks—not on the prison menu. Stainless steel food trays from the jail infirmary were sold for 50 cents each and turned into homemade knives, he said. Such knives were found among prisoners.

He said he will ask the September grand jury to look into conditions disclosed by Condon.

Father Kills Three Children And Self

NAPOLEON, O., Aug. 31 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Shirley Hefflinger didn't go to the state fair with the Napoleon High School band yesterday.

She was ready to go; dressed in her uniform, her camera slung over her shoulder and waiting for her parents to take her to the high school.

Then her father shot and killed her; killed Shirley's baby brothers — Floyd, 3, and Joseph, 2 — and killed himself.

He shot at his wife, Marjorie, 48, but missed her.

Coroner B. L. Johnson, in a verdict of murder and suicide, said that Floyd Joseph Hefflinger, 51, had been despondent. He didn't know why.

Bauer Gives Up U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Frederick E. Bauer, 45, who said he was a former non-practicing Nazi spy, chose yesterday to give up the United States rather than be separated from his family.

Bauer withdrew a court appeal and submitted to deportation as an alien. The government has been trying to get him out of the country since 1945 although he was a naturalized American.

The 49 Liberty Bell replicas used in the latest United States Savings Bond drive were complete except for the crack in the original. It was omitted because these bells must ring.

And continued use of HADACOL not only gives continuous, complete relief but helps prevent such distress from coming back. That's the kind of product you want — the kind you should buy — the kind you should start taking immediately.

Anyone would be very foolish indeed to be satisfied with symptomatic relief, when HADACOL now makes it possible to relieve the VERY CAUSE of this stomach distress due to such deficiencies — know the joy of eating the foods you like without belching and suffering gas pains, heartburn and torturing indigestion afterwards!

How HADACOL Works...

HADACOL not only supplies weak, run-down, deficient systems with extra quantities of Vitamins $B_1$, $B_2$, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—so vital to help maintain good health.

And these Vitamins and Minerals come in special liquid form so that they can be more easily and quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood—ready to go right to work at once. HADACOL even reinforces your red blood cells (when iron is needed) to carry these healthful elements to every organ in your body — to the kidneys, lungs, liver and heart.

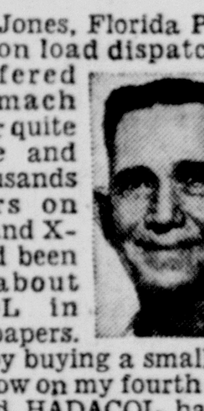
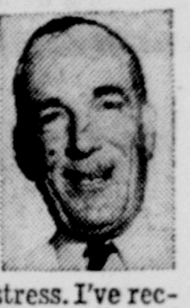
Just a Few of Thousands of Folks With Such Deficiencies Who Have Been Helped!

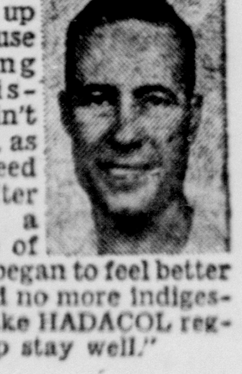
Tess Kinman, advertising clerk of 1202 Main Street, Cincinnati, Ohio: "I had a nervous stomach. Fried foods, radishes, and other gas-forming foods didn't agree with me. I had no appetite. Indigestion was a chronic worry and bother. Now I have a wonderful appetite. And I eat anything I want to with no fear of indigestion or gas. I owe it all to HADACOL."



Bethel G. Jones, Florida Power Corporation load dispatcher: "I've suffered from stomach distress for quite some time and spent thousands of dollars on medicine and X-rays. I had been reading about HADACOL in the newspapers. I started by buying a small bottle. I am now on my fourth large bottle, and HADACOL has relieved me tremendously. I noticed the difference in the way I felt after a few days. I can't praise HADACOL enough for what it has done for me."



Mr. James Keelan, Jr., 5565 Labadie Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri: "Recently I'd been troubled with heartburn and indigestion. Since taking HADACOL, I no longer suffer heartburn and now I can eat anything without ever suffering after-meal distress. I've recommended it to a number of my fellow-workers."



W. E. Hoxworth, a skilled maintenance man in Waco, Texas, says: "I almost had to give up my job because of suffering stomach distress. I couldn't hold my food, as no food agreed with me. After completing a second bottle of HADACOL, I began to feel better and I suffered no more indigestion. I now take HADACOL regularly to help stay well."

Pretty Mrs. Alma Kincaid, 2125 East Adelaide Street, St. Louis, Missouri, told us this: "I want you to know how much better I feel since I've taken HADACOL. I've had stomach distress for quite a while. But nothing did me any good. They just said I had a nervous stomach. This is my second bottle of HADACOL and I really feel fine. I'm not nervous; I never feel tired. I can eat anything I want to."

Mrs. Hilton Shuff, Rt. 1, Box 42, Ville Platte, La.: "At night I couldn't rest and no matter what I ate, it didn't agree with me. Then my sister told me about HADACOL. I took her advice. I felt better after the third bottle. So far I've taken 15 bottles of HADACOL. I eat anything I want to. I sleep well every night, and my housework doesn't tire me at all."

Keyser Legion Approves Plans For Building

$70,000 Structure Would Be Leased

KEYSER, W. Va. — Boyce-Heuser No. 41, American Legion, approved negotiations Wednesday night by Legion officials for the construction of a building to cost $70,000 on the former Carskadon property on South Main Street, to be leased to the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company for use as a super market.

The membership votes gave permission to the board of trustees of the Memorial Home Corporation to proceed with the financial arrangements for completing a contract with the company and a builder.

The proposed cost of $70,000 was considered favorably a few weeks ago, but the Korean war situation may have changed the entire setup, due to rising costs which may prevent constructing a suitable building at that price, officials said.

If the project is carried through, a large parking lot will be located on the northern part of the property, with the building on the southern end.

Legion Home Work Finished

2 Noblewomen, TV Star Evicted

NEW YORK, (INS)—Two British noblewomen, a TV star, and a Hollywood secretary were evicted from a gas-era brownstone mansion owned by the banking family of Rothschild.

The eviction was ordered in Municipal Court when it was proved that Lady Josephine Sharp, 79, had sliced up the mansion into room-and-bath suites for rental in violation of the original lease providing the premises be preserved as a Rothschild family relic.

With Lady Josephine, who identified herself as a descendant of "the Earl of Milford" and "Lord Drummond" of the British peerage, went her widowed daughter, Mrs. Gladys Gleason. They carried a collection of knickknacks said to have been gifts to their forebears from Queen Victoria.

Among the sub-tenants made homeless by the eviction were Diane Corday, TV star, and Melanie Romera, recently arrived from Hollywood where she had been social secretary to Leopold Stokowski, and Opera Star Rise Stevens.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The latest in beauty contests. Yes, sir, a group of television stations is conducting a contest from coast to coast to discover "Miss U. S. Television" and the results will be worth watching.

The winner must have looks, as she'll get real competition from Gorgeous George.

After the contest, "Miss U. S. Television" will probably have her picture on billboards with the caption: "She's young . . . she's engaged . . . she's beautiful even on kinescope."

But this contest proves that television is popular with women, and that's understandable. In what other medium could mother go to the wrestling matches and still keep an eye on the kiddies?

Beauty contest winners sometimes marry millionaires. But that probably won't happen with "Miss U. S. Television." TV being what it is, she'll probably marry an optician.

Yanks Belt Bob Lemon, 7-5, And Up Lead To Two Games

Smack Four Homers In Sweeping Series

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Blasting Bob Lemon for four home runs into all sections of the stands, the New York Yankees went on to conquer the Cleveland Indians, 7-5, today and increase their American League lead to two full games.

In making a clean sweep of the four game series with the injury riddled Tribe, the Yankees picked up another game on the second place Detroit Tigers who suffered a 2-1 setback in Washington.

Faced with the unhappy prospect of falling five games off the pace, Manager Lou Boudreau's men did not give up without a battle. Trailing 7-3 as they came up for their last time at bat, the Indians rallied for two runs against Joe Page and had the potential tying run at the plate with only one out. Tom Ferrick replaced Page at this point and snuffed out the rally with but three pitches.

Page had halted an earlier Indian uprising, coming to the rescue of starter Tommy Byrne after the southpaw had been slugged for three runs.

Of the ten hits the Yankees made off Lemon before they sent him to the showers in the eighth, four went for the distance. Each homer landed in a different section of the stands. Johnny Mize powered his 16th four-bagger into the centerfield bleachers, 400 feet away, in the fourth. Cliff Mapes hit his 10th into the stands in right center in the fifth. Yogi Berra belted his 19th into deep right in the sixth and little Phil Rizzuto rapped his fourth into the left field seats in the eighth.

It was the eighth defeat for Cleveland's 20-game winner and half of his losses have been dealt him by the Yankees. Box:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Sagging Detroit Tigers slipped another game out of first place by taking a 2 to 1 beating from Washington's Senators.

The New York Yankees, who took over the American League lead last night, meanwhile completed a sweep of their four-game series with the Cleveland Indians. The 7 to 5 win put the Yanks two full games on top.

Gene Bearden allowed the Tigers nine hits and managed to cut them off with a single run in a ninth-inning rally built around a walk and two hits. Box:

Hockman's Tossers Claim Forfeit Win, C. & P. Tops Wilson's

The C. & P. Telephone Company defeated Wilson Hardware Company, 4-2, and Hockman's Esso claimed a forfeit victory over Pen-Mar Brick in American Division games of the City Recreation Softball League yesterday.

Larrick hurled the Phonemen to their 20th win of the season. Luttrell banged a triple and single for the winners.

Scoring six runs in the top of the 6th to take a 9-4 lead, Hockman's charged that Pen-Mar Brick deliberately stalled so the inning could not be completed.

In claiming the game via forfeit, Hockman's quoted Rule 7, Section 4, which states that a team can lose a game by forfeit if it employs tactics palpably designed to delay the contest. Basilio and Wolford were the umpires.

Sheetz Beats Moose, 1-0

Elks Edge ODC, 6-5, In Series Opener

The Fraternal Order of Eagles and the B.P.O. Elks won the opening games of the Rocking Chair Softball League playoff series last night at Penn Avenue Field.

Allan Sheetz, Eagles' ace, who won eleven games and lost two during the regular campaign, blanked the Moose for the third time, letting the opposition down with two hits, one of the infield variety, while throwing the third strike past 14 batsmen. He whiffed at least one batsman in every inning and issued two passes. The shutout was the 8th of the season for Sheetz.

The lone tally came in the initial frame off Ray Frye when Doyle George singled, advanced to third on two passes balls, Jim Angellatta walked and Jim Rice singled home George.

There were no extra base hits in the game and no player got more than one hit.

Harry Minnicks played a bangup game at first base, making several nice stops of line drives.

Jim Wilkinson was returned the winner over Jim Morrison as the Elks edged the Outdoor Club in the opener of their best-of-three-games 6-5. No other particulars were furnished on this game.

The series will be resumed Tuesday with the Eagles and Moose meeting at 6 p. m. and the Elks and Outdoor Club clashing at 7:15 p. m. at Penn Avenue Field. Score of Moose-Eagles game:

Barrelville Files Protest After Game Ends In 1-1 Draw

Wellersburg and Barrelville of the Pen-Mar Baseball League battled to a 2-2 tie yesterday in a 7-inning game played under protest by Barrelville.

With two away and two on the paths in the last of the 7th and Wellersburg leading 2-1, Duckworth was stealing third base when Kennell, Wellersburg catcher, committed a passed ball and the runner raced home with the tally that knotted the score.

As Duckworth scored the catcher had retrieved the ball and the latter's throw to Pitcher Horwath struck a batsman in the back. Wellersburg charged interference. When the umpire ordered Duckworth to return to third base, Barrelville protested. At this point the game ended.

Only nine hits were made by the teams. Athey with a double and single and Duckworth with two singles accounted for four of Barrelville's five safeties. Score:

WELLERSBURG ............ 000 020 0—2 4 0

Maryland Mile Tracks Reduce Stakes Program

Laurel And Pimlico Make Cuts For Fall

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — It's getting tougher all the time for racing horse owners to win money in Maryland.

Big money, anyway.

More reductions and eliminations of stakes are contained in the fall schedule announced for Laurel and Pimlico, the state's principal distributors of racing wealth.

Four stakes will be offered during each 13-day meeting. Laurel's will be worth a total of $57,500 and Pimlico's $70,000. In all, ten stakes run last year and worth $85,000 are missing.

The four stakes complete each track's program for the year. Both had 12-day meetings in the spring. Putting them all together shows a terrific drop in dollar values.

Laurel's stakes program this year consisted of six worth $72,500. Last year there were 12 totalling $122,500.

Pimlico carded seven in 25 racing days for $145,000 this year. The same money was contained in eight days of racing in the spring of 1949. Just three years ago, Pimlico was advertising a stake a day in the spring alone of 1947 they were worth $237,500.

The cuts haven't been confined to Laurel and Pimlico, but since they had been the most lavish their reductions are more startling.

Havre de Grace, which ran its 25 days last spring, trimmed $25,000 from its six stakes. Bowie is dropping two stakes worth $17,500 at its fall meeting.

Fewer purses and decline in betting have been going on hand in hand at Maryland tracks the last few years. Now it's become somewhat of a "which came first, the chicken or the egg?" question.

The tracks argue you can't offer big money unless you take it in. Others predict that cheap programs will only serve to make business worse than natural.

The highlight of Laurel's fall racing starting Oct. 17 will be the $25,000 Selima Stakes for 2-year-old fillies on Oct. 28. A race for 2-year-olds, The Futurity on Nov. 17, likewise will top Pimlico's purse program at $25,000.

Pimlico's opening day special, the invitation affair for the year's best thoroughbreds, offers $15,000 on Nov. 3. All horses qualifying for the Special won more than that in any one of the many stakes making them eligible.

Hamey told questioners he had seen Paul Fagan, principal owners of the Seals, during his current visit here but that nothing like a purchase or agreement had been discussed.

"We can't set up an agreement with the Seals, we have one with Indianapolis," he said.

Manager Joe Geatz's Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose took a half game lead over Moorefield in the battle for the 4th place playoff spot in the Interstate Baseball League by defeating the Romney Rockets yesterday at Stitcher Field by the score of 5 to 4.

Prior to yesterday's game the Moose and Moorefield teams were deadlocked for 4th place with records of 14-13.

Two games remain on the Moose schedule, a postponed tilt with Ridgeley which will be played Saturday at 4 p. m. at Stitcher Field and a contest with the Centerville Reds on the same field Labor Day, September 4.

Moorefield plays a single game at Hyndman on Sunday and invades Everett for a doubleheader on Monday.

Jack Kauffman gave up 11 hits out of seven yesterday in posting his 4th win of the season against a single loss. Tommy Allen, who supplanted Gordon Gardner in the 7th frame, took the loss.

A muff by left fielder Wagoner enabled the Moose to score their winning marker in the ninth inning. Manager Geatz singled, moved to second on Clay Ingram's sacrifice, advanced to third on a wild pitch and raced home with the run that broke a 4-4 deadlock when Wagoner dropped Cecil's line drive to left field.

Jim Gaffney belted a two-run homer that knotted the count at 3-3 in the 6th. He also smacked a two-bagger. Charley Cumiskey collected two singles. For Romney, Henderson had three singles and Corbin larruped a double and single. The score:

MOOSE ............ 010 020 011—5 6 0

Taylor Entry Is First, Third In New Jersey

Magnet Beats Penson At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31 (AP)—The William P. Taylor entry of Magnet and Play Toy ran first and third, respectively, in the Linwood purse, feature event at Atlantic City today.

With Play Toy cutting out the early pace Magnet came fast through the stretch to beat Mrs. William E. Snell's Penson by two lengths.

It was the first victory for Magnet since his fall at Garden State Park. The son of Fenelon and Dorothy Owsley, winner of the Capitol Handicap earlier in the spring, was at his best today. The 4-year-old gelding was clocked in 1:10 flat for the six furlongs to give Jockey Logan Batcheller his second riding victory of the day. The lightweight rider was up on Tuscany in the fourth event.

The mutuel payoffs on the winning entry were $16.20, $8.80, $12.20 and Penson returned $13.60 and $9.60. The attendance was 11,401.

There was a $436.20 daily double payoff on the "12-9" combination when Recluse at $80.00 straight won the first race and Hankie raced to an $11.20 triumph in the second race.

Hot Cops 'Chase

AQUEDUCT, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Rigan McKinney's Hot had the easiest sort of time winning the 33rd edition of the Harbor Hill, a $10,000 added Steeplechase Handicap, before an estimated crowd of 17,000 fans here today.

Taking the lead at the flagfall, Hot opened up a five length lead and was only galloping at the end Pat Smithwick had the mount on the 6-year-old son of Teufel-Sun Rouge, who was clocked in 3:47 2-5 for the two mile journey around the rain-soaked course.

Twelve lengths back of Hot came his stablemate, Allier, who was running in the silks of Mrs. Corliss Sullivan, mother of owner-trainer McKinney, a former amateur jump rider. McKinney's Navigate won the stake in 1946.

The Hot-Allier entry, favored in the betting, returned a mutuel of $5.20 and $4.20. There was no show wagering.

X-Ray Exam Shows Danny Murtaugh's Skull Fractured

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP)—An X-ray examination at Presbyterian Hospital today showed that Danny Murtaugh, 33-year-old second baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has a fractured skull. He was struck on the back of the head with a pitch thrown by Sal Maglie of the New York Giants last night.

Danny Murtaugh

Believed not to be hurt seriously, Murtaugh was ordered to the hospital as a precautionary measure. Pictures were taken and showed what Dr. Norman C. Ochsenheirt, Pittsburgh club physician, announced as a "linear fracture."

The veteran infielder will remain in the hospital for at least ten days, then go home to Chester, Pa. He will not play any more this year.

Draft Board Calls Tigers' Frank House

House has been called for a physical examination at his home town, Bessemer, Ala., "immediately."

HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY MANNERS

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31—(INS)—Wait 'till you see the background shots in Alfred Hitchcock's "Two Strangers On A Train." Hitchy has been at Forest Hills making tennis shots for the Warner movie all week and concentrating on Ginger Rogers playing in the Pimms Cup tournament.

Ginger Rogers

Bet this is the first movie in which Ginger ever appeared without screen credit!

She's all over the place in the background looking cuter than peanuts in her white shorts and her hair in pigtails playing like a champ. Just to make her sports conquest complete—Ginger plays an exhibition golf tournament before she leaves New York.

Sarah Churchill and Tony Beauchamp have bought a house, sight unseen, in the suburbs of London solely on the advice of Sarah's mother who wrote—"It's a bargain. Take it."

"All we know about it," laughs the charming Sarah, "is that it is cottage style, with quite delightful carpets and drapes and an enchanting garden."

Some "romancing" for Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor touring the canals of Venice in a flower-bedecked gondola, complete with cushions and singing gondoliers—followed by eight gondolas filled with reporters, photographers and publicity men!

"I'd thought getting Taylor alone in a gondola in Venice would be romance plus," writes Barbara, "but when the press showed up in such flattering numbers—the harm came out in us. So we made the tour with all the privacy of lead ponies in a circus parade."

Edward Small is putting "Teen-Age Report," a documentary on our shocking teen-age problems, into production soon for Columbia. Such a film should jolt us to the realization of how far afield we have gone in our responsibilities to the youth of our country.

This case of Tommy Cook, 17-year-old murder defendant, and the unbelievable "cheering section" conduct of teen-agers at his trial, is just one among many deplorable examples of how deeply we have failed to care for our postwar youth.

Small says there will be no stars in the cast. Unknowns will play actual case histories on file in juvenile courts from all over the country.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Rica Soma (Mrs. John Huston) resumes her career in "She Stoops To Conquer" September 4 at the Globe Theater here. Everything all right at home?

Charlton Heston wound up his 26 cities appearance tour in Hollywood where he gets the press, radio and publicity treatment for the next three days.

Shirley Temple and her beau, Charles Black, came to the Rory Calhouns' anniversary party—seeming as interested in each other as ever. The dinner at the Beverly Hills Hotel was on the sentimental side until Richard Sale and Mary Loos started showing everybody how to talk in Indian sign language, which they learned making "Tomahawk." Very funny—if you keep your signs straight.

Later, the Keenan Wynns and Lita and Rory went on to Ciro's to hear Mary McCarty. By the way, the Singing Alexanders open there (with holdover Mary) tomorrow night.

Marlon Brando has been catching up on the old John Barrymore pictures.

Ruth Hussey is the first actress to entertain the Korean war wounded. She was "on" for over an hour at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

Nina Foch and Jack Merivale a woosome at Jay's Beach Cafe.

Lenore Ulric having the success she deserves playing summer stock in the East.

Jim Frasher took Debbie Reynolds to look at the stars at Griffith Observatory—real ones, not movie. I hear this boy is good in "Raton Pass."

Lorraine Cugat is getting new lawyers to fight her case against Cugie.

Ilona Massey, once in the vitamin pills business, is now in a new venture—pills to curl the hair!

Tyronne Power is the latest to buy a Jaguar 120 racing car and right from the factory in London. He will drive it on the continent and bring it home.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Duszas, brutally slain with their three children. Edwin Reynolds

REVELATION by his wife that his friend and boarder, Edwin Reynolds, 27, was the father of his wife's unborn child, led to the deaths of Fred Dusza, 39, his wife, Beatrice, 31, and their three children, aged 11, 8 and 3. Slayings took place at the Duszas' East Greenwich, R. I., home after the two men quarreled. Reynolds admits killing Dusza with an ax and strangling the other four over a period of four hours, then setting the house afire. His pet dog led police to his hiding place. (International Soundphoto)

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

LOS ANGELES (INS)—R NT TALKS with Navy men Korea, Tokyo and Pearl rbor indicate that their ief concern—and it is a deep—is not so much the situation Korea as in Formosa.

Fche shocking reason that Navyn have been singled out and seve penalized by Navy Secretaryatthews and Defense Chief Louhnson, for expressing truths whio the Navy men seem self evid and in the public interest, I wot quote them by name. But theords are nonetheless authoritat

S of them wonder if the Sevi Fleet, whose job it is to "nelize" Formosa, pro and con, is cble of stopping any determinevasion of Chiang Kai-Shek's strodd by a Red Chinese invasionet. The Seventh Fleet, like eventher branch of the Navy, suff proportionately greater thamer services in the inevitable disament processes which went intoct after V-J Day.

"Vknow the Chinese Reds coulnd about 4,000 junks against Fornn beaches," one veteran Navyan with a background of servin China told me. "And we knowoo, that a great many of thenould get through and discharroops, tanks, guns and supplies.

"Tjunk is a much misunderstoodaft. Americans forget that mostthem are built to withstand the ds of the bigger Chinese riverad that they may not only be brbottomed but also be built of 8-i teak logs. They're hard to sink, der to set on fire, and, wheny do start burning, their crewsw how to douse the flames.

"Evif they came swarming acrosse strait without warship or ae protection, an awful lot of therould escape our guns. And when y discharged their loads on theaches . . ." He paused and shrugg"Well, you can only guess what d happen within Chiang's army."

Navyen I spoke to shared the concerf Army, Air Force and Marineficers who wonder what role thl be called upon to play in theent of a red invasion of Fomosahe consensus seems to be that would have to fight the Chinesds, or tacitly renege on our offain on-again pledges to Chiang

But immediate question they raise ifight with what?" The probabruth is that we've got an alarminpercentage of our Sunday punch mitted now in Korea, and it is bar enough. For us to take on ReChina's teeming millions of trainand victory-happy troops at thisne could have only the direst sequences, especially in view the fact that England, Francedia and other United Nations nbers now giving material or mo support to the fight in Korea bably would refuse to join in thermosa battle because they have ched their diplomatic recognit from Chiang to Mao.

Namen feel with considerable justifion that the Korean mess place proper focus the so-called "reve which cost Adm. Denfeld, CaCrommelin and others their jbs

"y had miserable public relaion during that period," a famed Na man told as he stopped over orid at Pearl Harbor.

"The newspapers and radio seemed to get the wrong slant, too, and played up the alleged revolt—whereas what we were punching for was a form of unification that did not bleed the national defense white by cutting us and the Marines to ribbons and by telling us what weapons we could and could not buy with funds appropriated to us.

"It is obvious, of course, that we could have done a lot more damage to the North Koreans if we had been able to rim his shores with carriers. It is equally obvious that marines, by special training and instinct, are the ideal opponents of a fast moving, tricky enemy like the North Koreans.

"This is no reflection on any other service. We've all worked better together in this one than ever before, and we'll keep working together. But perhaps the Korean experience has been good for all our planners in Washington. It has made them comprehend a point some of us tried to bring out a year and more ago; that maybe the next war we got into would be a dirty, toe-to-toe job in which the 'push-button' was in no way involved.

Perhaps there'll be a 'push-button' war some day, too, and it will be nice to be ready for it. But there are wars and wars, and this is the kind that needs the sort of fighting that, say, the marines have been doing, with their own aircraft working as close as 50 yards ahead of them with perfect coordination. Yes, there are wars and wars, and even in this day of the a-bomb and the guided missile, such things as a junk take on great portions."

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Cards of Thanks

We take this means of expressing sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful following the death of our beloved husband and father, Leslie William Fair. We are grateful for the use of motor cars for the funeral, to those who sent floral tributes and to all others who in any manner rendered assistance.
MRS. ISABELLE FAIR and Family

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved mother, Mary Reager, who died nine years ago today, August 29th, 1941.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a love done gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

Sadly missed by
Her CHILDREN, 637 Elm St.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, A. W. Buck Penner who passed away Sept. 1, 1922.

Our family circle is broken
The voice we loved is still
Your place is vacant in our hearts
No one can ever fill
Flowers we place upon your grave
Will wither and decay
But love for you who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER & SISTER

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles H. Perrin, who passed away 4 years ago, September 1, 1946.

This day to us will always be
One of sad remembrance.
For one we loved with all our hearts,
Four years ago was taken from us.
Gone from this world of sin and sorrow,
To a land of glory and rest.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where you are laid.
"He is sleeping, not dead."

Sadly missed by his wife,
MRS. ROSIE PERRIN,
and children,
THOMAS, MICHAEL & BERTHA SMITH.

Stock Market Action Dull, Narrow And Inconclusive

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Narrow, dull, inconclusive — those are the words to describe today's stock market action.

The list ended a little lower, but the movement downward was not pronounced enough to have any significance.

The most active issue was Socony Vacuum, unchanged at 23. Second most active was United Corp., off ⅛ at 3⅞. In the final hour one block of 16,000 United sold at 3⅞.

Volume of trading amounted to 1,130,000 shares, as compared with 1,490,000 shares Wednesday. As a yardstick of activity — the slowest day this year was 1,060,000 shares on March 13.

There was little unanimity in any of the major goups except rubbers. There the rise among the leaders was from ¼ at 45 for U. S. Rubber to 2¾ at 108¾ for Goodrich.

After the market closed, Chrysler Corp., in a surprise move declared a $3 dividend on common. Chrysler previously declared a $1.75 dividend in June and $1.50 each in three preceding quarters.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .1 of a point to 78.2 with the industrial component off .1 of a point, rails of .3 and utilities up .1 of a point.

There were 1,068 individual issues traded of which 372 advanced and 414 declined with 36 new highs for the year established and three new lows.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROBE FOR INFORMATION

IT IS NOT necessary, as a rule, to make an out and out guess as to the location of an outstanding queen, which must be prevented from winning a trick when you have the other honors and are able to finesse in either direction. It is not even necessary to make a logical deduction from the bidding and opening lead, which may show the likelihood of one defender holding the crucial card. Sometimes you can make absolutely certain of how to play your combination by probing for information first in playing tricks of other suits. You may get an exact count on one defender which tells the tale.

Everybody reached that contract in a social duplicate, but the hand got three different kinds of play from declarers of different grades. It started the same everywhere, with West scoring the heart K and A, leading a third heart for East to ruff and the club J coming back to the K. Each declarer then drew trumps in three rounds and was ready for the crucial play of the diamonds.

Who had the queen? That was the question. Some of the Souths decided West was the more likely to hold it because he had made a bid. These laid down the A, then led the 5. When West discarded a heart, they knew East was bound to take the setting trick.

Several luckier declarers reckoned East was the dangerous man because West held so many hearts that East was more likely to have the protected queen. So they scored the diamond K first, then led the J and so made their contracts.

A wiser declarer, after drawing trumps, scored the club A and ruffed the club 8. West had already shown that he originally had six hearts, he had followed suit to three spades and now he followed suit to a third club. That makes twelve cards. So West had only one diamond. South therefore disposed of it with the diamond K, then took the sure-thing marked finesse of the J against East.

Married Men Facing Draft, Vinson Says

House Approves Allowances Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee said today the draft will be extended to draft-age married men with dependents soon.

Such men, under 26, are now deferred.

Asked what he meant by "soon," Vinson told newsmen:

At Selective Service headquarters, officials said they could not tell when it might be necessary to draft married men.

Officials estimated there are 1,000,000 married non-veterans of draft age—19 through 25—and that up to 400,000 would qualify for induction.

House OKs Allowance Bill

Vinson made his statement to reporters shortly after the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill providing allowances ranging from $85 to $165 a month for the families of enlisted men.

Selective Service officials said no announcement on expanding the draft would be made until after final congressional action on the family allowances bill.

A spokesman said, however, that President Truman could order the drafting of married men under the present law, by amending the regulations. It would not require legislation.

In other mobilization developments:

1. A bill designed to prevent sneak air attack—by requiring identification and advance clearance of planes flying over strategic defense areas—passed the House without opposition.

The Senate has already passed a similar bill. Differences will be adjusted in conference.

Disperal Plan Debated

2. House Republicans and Democrats wrangled hotly over President Truman's request for $139,800,000 to scatter key federal agencies well outside Washington as a safeguard against atomic attack.

Rep. A. L. Miller (R-Neb) denounced it as "another boondoggling project to protect some of the waffle bottoms in Washington."

While spectators still tittered over this reference to lolling in cane-bottomed chairs, Rep. Edward T. Miller (R-Md) suggested that Congress "save some hides and money at the same time by removing 40,000 bureaucrats from the payroll."

Under the administration plan, 40,000 government workers and numerous important agencies would be moved out 10 to 50 miles from Washington.

American Fighter May Have Strafed Red China Airstrip By Mistake, Austin Tells U.N

Commission To Probe Reported Attack Is Proposed; Malik Ends Council Presidency

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin told the Security Council tonight that a United States fighter plane may have strafed a Manchurian airstrip by mistake Aug. 27.

Austin spoke as Russia's Jakob A. Malik ended his presidency of the council in the midst of another bitter procedural wrangle like those that have paralyzed the council for 31 days.

The U. S. delegate proposed that the U. N. set up a commission to investigate at once the reported attack and to assess damages. He said the United States would be willing to pay whatever damages the commission decided were fair.

Austin also proposed that Communist North Korea and Communist China be asked to give the proposed commission a safe conduct pass to permit a full inquiry.

Not Fully Confirmed

The U. S. still has not fully confirmed the reported attack, he said, but there is reason to believe that one F-51 aircraft of the 67th Fighter Bomber Squadron may have by mistake violated Manchurian teritory and strafed an airstrip five miles across the border from Korea.

Austin also delivered a blistering attack on Malik, charging him with "a colossal contempt for the simple rules" of the council during his month as president. He got a laugh when he referred to August as "a red letter month" with the emphasis on the word red.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb, who succeeds Malik as president tomorrow, also blasted Malik for trying to place on the already crowded calendar of the council allegations of terrorism in Greece.

Jebb proposed that the council strike this item from the provisional agenda submitted by Malik. He called it "a nauseating spectacle of Satan rebuking sin" for Malik to attack Greece while Russia holds millions in forced labor and deports millions in cattle cars to Siberia.

Jebb Agrees With Austin

Jebb agreed with Austin that the question of the Manchurian attack should be taken up and he expressed the hope it would come next week.

Malik touched off the long wrangle by proposing that the Greek issue and Red China's charges of American air attacks on Manchuria be added to the council's agenda.

Austin's announcement came as a surprise. He said the United States had several times warned air forces in Korea to exert every care to avoid crossing the borders of China. He added that as soon as the first complaint was received from Chou En-Lai, Chinese communist foreign minister, the government ordered an inquiry.

Conferees Okay National Defense Production Act

May Reach Truman Before Talk Tonight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — A compromise bill giving President Truman war-style powers to speed production and curb inflation was approved finally tonight by a House-Senate conference committee.

Prompt acceptance by both chambers is expected; the "National Defense Production Act of 1950" may be on President Truman's desk when he delivers his "fireside chat" tomorrow (9 p. m., E.S.T.).

The President's half-hour message to the people, to be broadcast and televised, may give the public its first knowledge of what domestic sacrifices are to be imposed under the broad mobilization bill.

Compromise On Expiration Date

Agreement had been delayed for hours while the conferees heard administration leaders appeal for a two-year law expiring June 30, 1952, instead of the 10-month bill previously agreed on. The upshot was this schedule of termination dates:

Wage-price controls, restraints on credit, and machinery to settle labor disputes would expire next June 30.

Other powers would run until June 30, 1952, including rationing, allocations, priorities, and defense production loans.

But the government's power to enter new emergency contracts would expire June 30, 1951.

Legislators explained that this means materials could be allocated, plants requisitioned, or loans made under defense contracts until mid-1952, provided the contracts had been signed by mid-1951.

Other Final Settlements

Other final settlements reached today were:

1. Striking out a Senate provision which would have assured meat packers a "reasonable margin of profit" under any price controls imposed.

2. Providing that any wage-price controls and consumer rationing be administered by a single agency. This was a Senate provision.

3. Adopting in revised form a Senate amendment which would compel the President, if he imposes any price freeze, to prevent hardships or inequities to sellers who hold bona fide contracts for future delivery of materials.

Court Asked To Reverse Rutledge's Conviction

DES MOINES, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Iowa Supreme Court today was asked to reverse the conviction and 70-year murder sentence of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr.

The attorneys for the 29-year-old St. Louis doctor described his conviction of the slaying of Byron C. Hattman, St. Louis aircraft expert, as unjustified. Their appeal brief said the 70-year sentence was "monstrous."

Hattman, bachelor admirer of Dr. Rutledge's pretty blonde wife, was found dead in a Cedar Rapids, Ia., hotel room in December, 1948.

Hudson Gives Pay Hike

DETROIT, Aug. 31 (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers said today the Hudson Motor Car Co. has granted a seven-cent hourly wage increase to 20,000 employes.

George Proposes Tax Compromise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga) today asked Congress to wait until January to write an excess profits tax and make it retroactive for three or six months.

George thus sought to remove the worrisome issue from the administration's $4,508,000,000 emergency tax increase measure to get it rolling.

The Senator, chairman of the Finance Committee, offered the idea as a substitue for a widely-favored $4,000,000,000 excess profits levy sponsored by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) and Connally (D-Tex). O'Mahoney has claimed he has the votes to nail it into the bill. The House has not acted.

But George, whose argument all along has been that such a tax requires lots of consideration and a full hearing, told the Senate that the O'Mahoney-Connally proposal is "a plain misunderstanding of the basic principles of an excess profits tax."

The Georgian would put his compromise into the bill in the form of a directive to Senate and House tax-writing committees that they prepare an excess profits tax bill early next year and make it retroactive to July 1 or Oct. 7, 1950.

Amnesty Offered Kidnapers If Boy Returned Unharmed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP)—State's Attorney George P. Coutrakon, acting on the theory that missing two-year-old Earnest Cagle, Jr., has been abducted, offered immunity from prosecution today if the child is returned unharmed in 24 hours.

The boy, son of a 34-year-old Illiopolis farmer, disappeared early Sunday morning from the family car parked outside a tavern at Buckhart. An intensive search has yielded no clues to his whereabouts.

Coutrakon said the child, a diabetic, requires special medical care.

"At the urgent request of the family, I have agreed to offer complete amnesty to those responsible for his disappearance," the prosecutor said in a statement.

"If he is returned to the parents alive and unharmed or arrangements made with this office for his return within 24 hours there will be no prosecution.

"I also agree to keep the identity of those involved in strict confidence."

Coutrakon said it is "highly improbable" that the frail boy could have escaped from the car alone.

Truman Reiterates He Plans To Retain Johnson In Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—President Truman said today—for a second time—that he contemplates no change in the status of Secretary of Defense Johnson.

Johnson, and Secretary of State Acheson, have been under fire repeatedly in Congress and elsewhere.

Mr. Truman has said both can stay in the Cabinet as long as he is President. He renewed the statement about Johnson today as a result of news conference inquiries arising from a demand by Rep. Tauriello (D-NY) that the Defense Secretary get out. Mr. Truman had no comment on Tauriello's contention that Johnson has lost the confidence of the people. He said no, he hadn't been embarrassed by any actions of Johnson, or everybody would have known about it.

Hopes Red China Stays Neutral

Running rapidly through a series of subjects in response to questions, Mr. Truman told his news conference that:

He hopes there is no great danger that Red China will become involved in the Korean conflict.

Of course it will be unnecessary to keep the U. S. Seventh Fleet in the Formosan Straits if the Korean crisis is settled. The fleet is there to protect the American flag.

The President is very sorry to hear that Senate leaders plan no action now on Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood, as he is anxious to have the territories made states, primarily for defense purposes.

Longshoremen at eastern ports who refused to unload cargoes that originated in Russia are in effect trying to determine American foreign policy and they haven't any business doing that.

Not Columnist Or Pollster

His proposal to spend $139,800,000 to disperse part of the government from Washington is only the beginning of a program that has been under consideration for some time. While Mr. Truman understands some congressmen would like agencies shifted to other cities, that isn't the purpose of the program.

The Chief Executive can't very well make a prediction on the November election — he says he is no columnist or pollster.

The President said he will decide whether Spain will get a U. S. loan—Congress voted for a $62,500,000 loan — when the time comes for implementation. The President smiled broadly at that. There have been reports he would impound the loan money and not let the Spaniards have it.

South Carolina Klan Leader Is Arrested

CONWAY, S. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Horry County Sheriff C. E. Sasser said tonight that the grand dragon of Ku Klux Klan in South Carolina had been arrested and charged with "conspiracy to stir up mob violence."

Sasser said the charge was brought against Thomas L. Hamilton in connection with a Klan parade staged last Saturday at a negro section near Myrtle Beach. A Conway policeman, James D. Johnston, was killed after the parading Klansmen had fired into a negro night club. Johnston was wearing a Klan robe over his uniform at the time.

At the same time Sasser cleared the proprietor of the club of any blame in the slaying and indirectly laid the full blame on the raiding Klansmen.

Customer Leaves His Shirt As Tip

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 31 (AP)—Waitress Louise Wolfe has received many tips, but never one like she got last night.

When one of her customers finished eating, he put the exact change on the table, then laid the tip beside it and walked out.

The tip was his shirt—a bright red and white, dotted Swiss job that Miss Wolfe had complimented.

O'Dwyer Given Festive Sendoff

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Mayor William O'Dwyer, resigning to become ambassador to Mexico, received a festive sendoff today from a crowd estimated by police at 330,000.

A parade of seven bands and 5,000 city employes escorted him along Broadway on his final trip to City Hall as mayor.

Spectators were lined 10 and 12 deep at some points for a "last look" at the colorful figure who arrived here as an Irish immigrant 40 years ago and climbed to the city's highest official position.

His resignation will be submitted Saturday, and City Council President Vincent R. Impelliteri will become acting mayor.

Senate Upholds Veto Of Vets' Postal Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Senate today upheld President Truman's veto of a bill to grant pay increases to World War II veterans in the postal field service.

The vote was 48 to override to 29 to sustain the veto. Two thirds was needed to override.

The House previously had voted 213 to 72 to override the veto.

The bill, for purposes of promotion and salary, would have granted about 100,000 veterans, who entered the postal field service after the war and up to July 1 last, full credit for such military service.

Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle Of N. Carolina, Dies

GASTONIA, N. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle of North Carolina's 11th District died at his home here tonight.

The veteran lawyer, soldier, and legislator had been ill for a year. Some months ago, he had announced plans to retire after expiration of his present term in Congress January 1.

He served in Congress from 1921-29 and again since 1931. Maj. Bulwinkle had represented North Carolina's Ninth, 10th, and 11th Districts.

War Casualty Figures Will Be Released

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — Officials said today that the Defense Department has decided to tell the public regularly, probably once a week, the total cost of the Korean conflict in Americans killed, wounded or missing in action.

The promised summaries will be in addition to the lists of individual casualties now made public daily by the department.

Announcement of casualty totals would be a return to a policy that was last in operation on August 7, when the department said 2,668 Americans had been killed, wounded or missing in the Korean area.

Since that time, an Army spokesman told reporters that the policy was being restudied to make sure that casualty figures were not made public until they were no longer of value to the enemy.

In recent discussions among the armed services and the Defense Department, advocates of regular announcements of casualty totals are reported to have advanced two principal arguments:

1. The American public is entitled to be informed regularly about American losses.

2. Failure to do so would give communists an opportunity to try to undermine the public's confidence by broadcasting false and exaggerated reports of American losses.

Some Army officials are reported to have urged that casualty totals not be announced until the end of campaigns.

However, it was pointed out that an enemy representative might compile casualty totals for himself by checking the lists of individual casualties issued daily by the Defense Department.

Moscow Again Says Douglas Is Spying

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Moscow radio charged again tonight that Justice William O'Douglas of the U. S. Supreme Court is spying for his country in the Middle East, using mountain climbing as a blind.

The Russians made the same charge when Douglas, whose various outdoor hobbies include mountaineering, went to Iran last year.

The new Soviet comment said:

"A few days ago accompanied by a large group of guides, picked and trained by the American intelligence, he (Douglas) set out on one of his usual mountain climbing expeditions, right on the frontier of Soviet Azerbaijan."

Huge U. S. Rocket Climbs 85 Miles, Attains 3,600 MPH

WHITE SANDS, N. M., Aug. 31 (AP) — The largest and heaviest rocket launched from the White Sands ordnance installation today climbed 85 miles into the air, attaining a speed of approximately 3,600 miles an hour.

The rocket's warhead was four times as large as the original German rocket warhead and carried so many instruments the White Sands officials termed it a "floating laboratory."

Instruments ejected from the rocket were parachuted to the earth.

Col. G. G. Eddy, commander of White Sands Proving Ground, said damaged parts of the rocket were being returned to the base. He termed the rocket shoot "a success."

The rocket is the fourth of a series of experiments with an enlarged rocket. Officials said that all attained an altitude in excess of 80 miles and that performances indicated the rocket was stable.

Today's rocket contained instruments on which scientists have been working for the past two years. It was fired by the Army Ordnance Corps and General Electric engineers.

30,000 North Korean Troops, Led By Tanks, Gain Up To Five Miles On 47-Mile Battlefront

Reds Cross Naktong At 5 Points, Throw Pincers Around One Town

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 1 (AP)—More than 30,000 tank-led North Koreans with 20,000 more in reserve, unleashed an all-out drive today along a 47-mile front for the United Nations lifeline port of Pusan.

At heavy cost in men and armor they (1) punched out gains up to five miles, (2) threw a pincers around one town and (3) crossed the Naktong at five points. They drove against two outnumbered American divisions.

The central and southern walls of the front exploded into tank, artillery and ground battles.

The Americans rushed up fresh troops to reinforce the hard-pressed 25th Division in the south. The U. S. 2nd Division called on its reserves.

Korean communist infantry seized high ground in the old Changnyong bridgehead and established a roadblock across the highway behind the U. S. Second Division.

Two groups of reds succeeded in forming a junction behind a forward American company on the southern flank of the division. Some isolated American units were being supplied by air drop.

The U. S. Eighth Army called the red offensive "a general attack."

Tuksong-To-Masan Battlefront

The battle flamed from Tuksong for 47 miles down to Masan, the gateway to Pusan, which is 27 air miles to the east.

A quick look down this line at the coordinated attack:

1. Two red battalions crossed the Naktong at Tuksong, 12 miles southwest of the key American advanced supply base of Taegu.

2. Near Pugong, five miles west of Changnyong, two reinforced red battalions made three crossings and advanced nearly a mile to positions where they dug in.

3. Just south of this area, 3,000 reds crossed the Naktong and pushed five miles eastward, driving toward Yongsan.

4. Two red divisions struck hard near the confluence of the Nam and Naktong Rivers, sent a large assault force south toward Haman and curved a pincers around that town.

At heavy cost in men and armor, Korean reds made two gains of a mile or more and snapped a pincers around the town of Haman, 36 miles west of Pusan.

U. S. Officers Confident

American reinforcements stalled the southernmost push near Haman and recovered some ground by 8 a. m. (5 p. m., EST, Thursday). American officers told Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton they believed this was the long-expected final offensive effort to break the United Nations line at the south end of the 120-mile battle perimeter and capture Pusan, the lifeline supply port of the defenders. They also told Swinton they felt confident the drive could be crushed by nightfall.

This morning the Fifth Regimental Combat Team rushed to support the 24th Regiment at Haman. It was reported to have regained some of the lost ground, destroying two red

U. S. OBSERVATION PLANE SHOT DOWN

A FIGHTER BASE IN SOUTH KOREA, Friday, Sept. 1 (AP)—A North Korean fighter plane shot down an American observation plane over the battlefront.

It was the first American loss through enemy aerial action since the earliest days of the Korean conflict.

TWA Airliner Crash In Egypt Claims 55 Lives

23 Americans Are Carried To Death

DIST EL ASHRAFF, Egypt, Aug. 31 (AP)—A Trans World Airline Constellation crashed and burned in the desert sands west of the Nile Delta today and all 55 persons aboard perished. Twenty-three Americans and an Egyptian film star were among the dead.

The four-engined "Star of Maryland" went down 65 miles northwest of Cairo, near the village of Etay Baroud at the rim of the Western Desert. Searchers found the wreckage strewn over 500 yards. They trekked 15 miles over hot sands to reach it.

The airliner plummeted to earth shortly after the takeoff from Cairo on a regular Bombay-New York flight. The bodies of the victims were badly charred, delaying identification.

Egyptian Actress Aboard

A dozen nations were represented among the 48 passengers.

The Egyptian film actress was Camelia, a blonde who was known as the Lana Turner of the Far East. Her real name was Lilliane Cohen. Friends said she had been bound for Interlaken, Switzerland, for a vacation on doctor's orders.

Maharajah Singh Prithi of Bombay was another on the list.

Prominent among the Americans were Aubrey William Schofield, 52, New York, an oil company executive, and Everett Moore Baker, 49, dean of students at the Massachusets Institute of Technology.

Cause Of Crash Undetermined

The Egyptian Civil Aviation Department, the Civil Aeronautics Bureau in Washington and the airline dispatched investigators to hunt for the cause of the crash, one of the worst in commercial aviation history.

Justie Ervin Gist, Lake City, Ia., administration services and transportation officer at the U. S. Embassy in Cairo, had plodded silently through ankle-deep sands for ten miles to look for his son, William C. Gist, a passenger on the ill-starred craft.

But when Gist reached the scattered mass of wreckage and mangled bodies he abandoned his search. He just gazed vacantly at the ghastly scene.

Not Flying Saucer But Flying Dipper

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Aug. 31 (AP)—Now it's flying dippers.

Two Fredericksburg women, Mrs. L. P. Hitt and Mrs. W. N. LeCouteur, sisters, saw the dipper from the lawn of Mrs. LeCouteur's home last night.

They described it as a "very bright light," not very large, that moved not too fast.

The said they watched the dipper for about five minutes as it moved northward. It looked like a quart sized cup to them.

Mrs. LeCouteur's husband vouched for the dipper. He said he had seen a similar dipper about two weeks ago but had said nothing about it.

Gulf Hurricane Blows Itself Out

PANAMA CITY, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP)—A gulf hurricance mauled this coastal town before blowing out in Northern Alabama today. And a new hurricane is whirling west-northwestward 1,600 miles southeast of Florida.

Hurricane winds raked the Panama City area about midnight, damaging from 200 to 300 cottages and flooding bayside homes. Wind and tides ripped away a city dock.

High tides and weaker winds caused slight damage at Mobile, Ala., Pensacola and St. Marks, Fla. An empty 10,000-gallon gasoline storage tank washed loose from its foundation at St. Marks and bobbed in the bay like a cork.

Roads leading into Apalachicola Fla.—struck yesterday by an offshoot tornado—were still closed today. The twister injured two persons seriously and wrecked between 10 and 15 houses.

Scattered, incomplete reports of damage amounted to $500,000.

Strike Closes Textile Mill In Lonaconing

No Immediate Settlement Seen

The approximately 120 employes of the General Textile Mill at Lonaconing went out on strike Wednesday night, and both company and union officials said yesterday there is no immediate hope of a setlement.

Charles Walters, mill superintendent, said the plant is completely shut down, with only a watchman on duty.

Members of the Lonaconing sub-local of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, have asked a flat 10-cent an hour wage increase across the board for all employes.

Earl L. Snyder, president of Local 1874, said the Lonaconing workers rejected a company proposal to continue an incentive piece work plan which had been in efect on a trial basis for 60 days.

Agreed To Plan

Employes at the mill had agreed to try the plan as a part of the new contract which was negotiated after the previous one-year contract expired last May 7.

All parts of the new contract had been agreed upon except sections pertaining to pay, Snyder said.

The plant was shut down for four days last spring after the old contract expired and before the incentive plan was agreed upon.

The trial period ended August 15, Snyder said. Two days previously, employes voted against continuing the plan and asked for the flat 10-cent increase, he added.

A week later, the sub-local committee met with Walters and Leonard Frieder, New York City, president of the General Textile Mills Company, but no agreement was reached.

Snyder said the Lonaconing workers rejected the incentive plan because of different rates paid depending on variations of yarn.

The membership instructed the negotiating committee on August 23 to call a strike Wednesday night at 11 o'clock unless agreement was reached before that time.

Majority Are Women

Majority of the employes are women, and all reside in the Lonaconing area.

Walters, who was contacted last night at his home in Lonaconing, said base pay at present is 93 cents an hour.

The flat 10-cent increase asked by the employes would bring wages only to $1.03 an hour, whereas under the incentive plan would be better for both sides," he commented.

The superintendent said he talked by telephone with Frieder yesterday but that no compromise proposal has been offered by either side.

The plant, established in 1907, processes real silk and rayon. Last February and March it employed 210 persons, but a seasonal downswing in the business has decreased the number of workers to about 120 at present.

An upswing is expected in the fall, Walters added.

Officers of the Lonaconing sub-local are Mrs. Viola Tasher, president; Mrs. Maybelle Wilson, vice-president; Miss Gladys Brown, recording secretary; and Robert Shockey, committeeman from the spinning department.

Maps Submitted To Housing Authority

Property line, topographic and utility maps were submitted to the Cumberland Housing Authority yesterday by the Small-Paye Engineering Company.

The maps refer to the proposed 125-unit housing site located in the vicinity of First Street, according to Chairman Howard M. Spiker.

The group passed a resolution changing the by-laws regarding the location of the headquarters office, which was moved from City Hall to the Clark-Keating Building.

Spiker said the group will hold a regular meeting next Wednesday, September 6.

VFW Group To March

The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will leave the post home tonight at 7 o'clock in cars to take part in the Homecoming parade to be held in Romney, W. Va.

Speaks Here

Mahoney Outlines Salient Points Of His Platform

Charging the Gov. Lane "hasn't the slightest idea of what is going on in Maryland and might as well be in Ethiopia," George P. Mahoney, Baltimore contractor who is a Democratic primary candidate for governor, last night outlined salient points of a 22-point platform on which he is basing his campaign.

At a Mahoney-for-Governor rally in the Fort Cumberland Hotel, attended by about 200 persons representing all parts of the county, two other speakers lauded Mahoney as "a great humanitarian," "a man of the people," and "and engineer who knows his business and knows how to run the state."

They were Lawrence Lockwood, a Baltimore contractor, and W. Lee Elgin, former state motor vehicle commissioner.

Predicts Support

Lockwood predicted that six districts of Baltimore, Baltimore County and nine counties on the Eastern Shore will be in the Mahoney column after the September 18 primary.

Elgin said in all his years in public life he has never met a man who has a better understanding of the state and its people's problems than Mahoney. He predicted that five Eastern Shore counties will fall to Mahoney, five of the six Baltimore districts and Washington, Allegany and Garrett Counties.

Charles F. Heller, former city commissioner, introduced Mahoney.

The candidate spoke almost an hour, attacking the Lane administration and charging that "the people of Maryland have been sold down the river."

He told his audience that he is the youngest of 11 children and his father was a police officer who earned about $12 a week. He said he took a job as a water boy on a construction job at an early age, later went to night school, studied engineering and entered the contracting business where he has been successful.

Mahoney said, "I speak the language of the people and know and understand your problems." He promised that if elected he would not wait for the people to come to him in time of emergency, but he would come to the people and try to help solve their problems.

He declared he believes his experience and training qualifies him to build roads and bridges more economically and at greater savings to the taxpayers than Lane.

Cites Coal Industry

The candidate promised to put the miners of Western Maryland back to work by finding markets for their coal. He said he will start sales tax at 35 cents instead of 15 cents and will remove the sales tax on restaurant foods, fuels, baby clothing, lotions, etc.

He pledged continued and more speedy state-wide improvements to schools, hospitals, roads and other institutions of a public nature. The

The Weather

Climatically speaking, yesterday was a rather usual summer day for Cumberland — hot, humid, uncertain. The temperature in the afternoon was 85 in Constitution Park and 87 downtown. About 9 o'clock there was a slight sprinkle of rain, but the heat continued with a 68 low in the Park and a 71 low downtown. Today should be cooler, but cloudy with showers and probably scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon.

Mahoney Group Answers Wilson With Statement

A reply was made yesterday by Michael F. Prendergast, chairman of Mahoney for Governor headquarters here, to a statement made on Wednesday by William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee.

Prendergast's statement follows:

"The statement that appeared in The Cumberland Times yesterday (Wednesday) that William L. Wilson would introduce George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for governor, was not made by anyone at Mahoney headquarters.

"A copy of the invitation to him as chairman of the County Committee was sent to Mr. Suter Kegg of The Times. When I saw the story in the paper I called Mr. Kegg to determine if he had checked with him, and on his authority, had written that Mr. Wilson was accepting the invitation, which as chairman he had the privilege of enjoying. Mr. Kegg said, 'I wondered about that when I read the invitation', admitting that he had not talked to Mr. Wilson. I then called Mr. John Moody of The News and told him of the inaccuracy, asking him to correct it. I said I had no reply from Mr. Wilson. This is verified by the radio announcement at 6 p. m. of Wednesday.

"Mr. Wilson states that the invitation was an attempt to embarrass him. The suggestion that he be invited to introduce Mr. Mahoney was made by his fellow alumnus, J. Goodloe Jackson, who is also president of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association here." So it was made in good faith, as far as I am concerned.

"The Mahoney headquarters has issued no misleading or untrue statements. Neither has anyone

State Group To Study Economic Area Problems

Hearings Set For Oakland, This City

Economic problems in Western Maryland will be studied next month when a state-wide commission visits this area to get a detailed picture of local conditions.

This was reported last night by Noel Speir Cook, Frostburg, an attorney and a member of the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly.

Cook is minority House member of the 15-man Welfare Committee appointed recently by Governor Lane.

As chairman of the sub-committee for Western Maryland, Cook is arranging for the full committee to visit this area September 20 through 22.

The group is headed by William Mahaney, Baltimore, chairman of the Department of Unemployment Security.

Members will tour various sections of Garrett County, including Shallmar, on September 20 and will hold a hearing in Oakland that evening.

Oakland city officials and representatives of the dairy and farm industries, as well as welfare officials and other groups, will be invited to present their views on economic problems and on potentialities for industrial expansion.

On the following day, September 21, similar hearings will get underway in Cumberland at City Hall, starting at 10 a. m. Another half-day session is planned September 22.

Cook said local labor, industrial, service, employment, welfare and similar groups will be invited to send spokesmen to the Cumberland hearings.

On the basis of information secured in Western Maryland, the governor's Welfare Committee will then make recommendations to the 1951 Legislature, he explained.

Since the Cumberland and Western Maryland area has been termed the "most distressed" in the state, committee is anxious to obtain first-hand knowledge of conditions here, Cook said.

Butler Outlines His Platform

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—John Marshall Butler said today he believes in a strong stand against Russian aggression, and rigid economy in all domestic expenditures.

Butler is a candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator. He announced today the platform on which he intends to run.

In the field of international relations. Butler recommended:

A global strategy and a streamlined war production so powerful that Russia will hesitate in further aggression.

Selection of patriots of outstanding ability and integrity to fill administrative positions at home and abroad.

Publication by the national administration of all pertinent facts on our foreign and domestic situation.

Butler's recommendations on the national fiscal policy included:

Rigid economy in all domestic measures.

Elimination of non-war expenditures not compatible with the nation's financial circumstances.

A tax policy which would avoid confiscation on the one hand, and inflation on the other.

Adoption of the Hoover Commission recommendations.

"It would seem," Butler commented, "that the only way to achieve these ends is to elect Republicans."

Keegan Injured In Auto Accident

William V. Keegan, former city commissioner of police and fire, was admitted to Allegany Hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and hospital attaches said he was injured in an automobile accident in Mt. Savage.

They added that Keegan suffered deep cuts on both knees and a possible fracture of the right shoulder. His condition was listed as good.

Keegan's car reportedly careened from Route 36, Mt. Savage's main street, when he lost control and struck a porch post at the home of James Warton.

Mother Saves Children From Burning Barn

Jennings Woman, Son In Oakland Hospital

A 30-year-old mother who rescued her two young sons from a burning hay mow was reported in fair condition last night at Garrett County Memorial Hospital at Oakland.

The woman, Mrs. Lola Yommer, suffered second degree burns about the arms and legs when fire broke out in the barn at her home, five miles south of Grantsville near Jennings.

Her younger son, Roger, 3, also was admitted to the hospital for treatment of second degree burns about the upper part of his body. His condition was listed as fair.

Roger and his five-year-old brother, Tommy, were playing in the hay mow early Monday evening when a lantern Tommy was carrying set the hay afire.

Mrs. Yommer saw smoke coming from the barn and hurried to the scene. She carried the two boys down a ladder to safety. Tommy escaped unhurt.

William Yommer, the husband and father, who operates a small farm on the property, was in Grantsville at the time.

He heard of the fire when the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department was summoned, and hurried home to help firemen fight the flames. The barn was destroyed, however.

Mrs. Yommer and her son were taken to the Oakland hospital by a neighbor, James Bittinger, of Jennings.

Probe Continues In Fatal Crash

The State's Attorney's office said yesterday several witnesses remain to be questioned concerning a fatal accident on Route 220 at Dawson early Wednesday evening.

Joseph Gardner, 35-year-old B. and O. Railroad conductor, died within five minutes after being removed from his wrecked automobile, which crashed against an oil tanker on the slippery highway.

Authorities said Eskon K. Swisher, Springfield, W. Va., identified as the driver of the tanker, was questioned yesterday.

Besides his father, Gardner is survived by four brothers, Wood T. Gardner, Route 2, Keyser; Homer E. Gardner, New Creek, and Biard and Clark W. Gardner, both of Keyser; and four sisters, Mrs. Helen Miller and Mrs. Magdalene Dellinger, both of Keyser; Mrs. Margaret Anderson, Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Virginia Bantz, Fort Ashby.

He was a conductor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Gardner was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad trainmen and Boyce Houser Post No. 41, American Legion.

The body is at the home of his brother, Clark W. Gardner, 568 South Water Street, Keyser. Services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. in First Methodist Church, Keyser, by Rev. L. A. Steele, pastor. Interment will be in Queens Point Cemetery.

59 School Buses Pass Inspection

The Board of Education completed inspection of 71 buses and 11 cars to be used in the transportation of school children and said no major defects were found. Fifty-nine were 'perfect'.

Arthur G. Ramey, director of transportation, said contractors whose equipment showed minor defects during the inspection were ordered to make repairs and report for a recheck within 10 days.

The school bus inspection is conducted four times each year, Ramey said, to insure safety of the children who are transported to and from school.

Marion Abbott, Department of Motor Vehicles, conducted the inspection with Ramey.

Postpones Meeting

Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers (CIO), postponed its regular meeting scheduled for Saturday night because of the Labor Day weekend holiday.

William Claus Retires As General Manager Of C & P

William Claus, 882 Windsor Road, The Dingle, retired yesterday as general manager of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, and thus ended a long and active career in railroading and civil engineering. He told friends yesterday that he intends to "rest, fish a great deal, make a little garden and perhaps travel some."

Claus is widely known in railroad as well as civic circles and has been a resident of Cumberland since August 10, 1914. He came here from Philadelphia, Pa., to become associated with the C & P Railroad as valuation engineer to prepare valuation of the property in accordance with methods adopted under the Federal Valuation Act in 1914. He was given charge of preparation of maps, reports, inventories and cost of the railroad property covering 100 miles of track.

On June 1, 1917, he was appointed engineer maintenance of way for the company and was responsible for design and construction of steel and concrete bridges, terminals, yards, tunnels, pumping plants, and water supply, together with construction and repair of all tracks.

He designed and constructed the long railroad bridge across the Potomac River at Piedmont, W. Va. This steel bridge was destroyed during the flood of March 1924. He built the bridge connecting the C & P with the Western Maryland at Westernport.

On January 31, 1930, Claus was elected by the board of directors of the C & P Railroad Company as a director and general manager with offices in Cumberland. The line was then owned by the Consolidation Coal Company, with headquarters New York.

On November 5, 1941, the board elected him vice president of the C & P Company. In May 1944, the Western Maryland Railway Company acquired all the holdings of the C & P and continued Claus as general manager.

Throughout the 20 years Claus was an executive of the railroad there was not a single strike or single incident of labor trouble. A number of grievences arose but all were settled in a "family-like" manner to the satisfaction of all concerned. He said yesterday that he remembers all the people who worked on the railroad as hard-working, far-minded and loyal people. He sad they gave their fullest cooperation in good times and bad.

Between 1930 and 1940 when the road employed more than 300 people the company went through a severe depression (1932-1935) and a severe flood in 1936 which wrecked the railroad in 30 or more locations and disrupted traffic for over a week.

After that experience, he recalled, business revived gradually until 1940 when coal traffic and working conditions neared normal, although not to the level enjoyed prior to 1930 when 25 or more train crews a day moved coal around the clock, and transferred two million tons or more per year.

Between 1940 and 1950, Mr. Claus recalled that the line went through four years of war with a great demand for coal. In addition to heavier traffic then and immediately after the war, Claus managed to convert part of the Mt. Savage shops of the road into war work.

Enlisting the aid of about 150 high school graduates, too young for military service but mechanically minded, he produced large quantities of gun parts, radar rings and parts for tanks under the direct supervision of the railroad's own mechanics and skilled craftsmen. All the work was done to specifications of the War Department and to the satisfaction of the Army and Navy officials. The project was financed entirely by the company, Claus said.

Claus served on several important commissions and projects of a civic nature in past years. He has always taken part in civic undertakings such as the Community Chest, Red Cross, YMCA and other campaigns. He is especially interested in youth and has worked with the Boy Scouts and other youth groups on many occasions. It is not unusual for him to take half a dozen or more scouts to his fishing cabin in West Virginia for a weekend at his favorite sport.

On February 23, 1939, the late George G. Young, then chairman of Cumberland's General Flood Committee, appointed Claus to a general sub-committee including Fred T. Small, the late Joseph B. Finan, the late William L. Geppert,

Flood Control Will Add Beauty To Local Park

Current Work Goes Through Riverside

Riverside Park is right in the line of march of the next step in flood control work here, but Army Engineers report necessary changes will add to the future attractiveness of the site.

Two large sewers and a water line will be constructed along the walk paralleling the river bank and Water Street, according to Albert S. Paye, liasion engineer for the project.

Work is expected to get underway after the Labor Day holiday next week by George and Lynch contractors.

A large sanitary sewer and a 60-inch combined storm, water and sanitary sewer will be constructed.

A new section of the 24-inch water line which is part of the large feeder belt line serving the city distribution system will be constructed parallel to the existing line but further back from the river bank in the vicinity of the Johnson Street Bridge.

Relocation Needed

Relocation of the line is necessary because of the earthen levee to be constructed in the fourth and final phase of the project, Paye said.

He explained that the line must be moved back so that it will be clear of the eight-foot levee, to make the pipe line accessible when repairs are needed in the future.

The earthen levee, which will be about a mile long, will begin at the tip of Riverside Park at the junction of Wills Creek with the river.

It will extend along the river bank to the vicinity of Kelly Boulevard.

A concrete flood wall will be constructed for a short section of the levee near the Moose Home on Beall Street, but the remainder of the levee will be of earthen construction.

When the levee is constructed, Paye said, a long gradual slope will be graded up to the top of the earthen bank along the Riverside Park frontage so that it can be seeded to grass and possibly terraced.

Ample room will be available on the top of the levee for a park walkway.

A strip of land about 100 feet wide, or about one-third of Riverside Park's present width, will be occupied by the levee, but it will be built so that it can be made an attractive part of the park.

To Be Demolished

The present bandstand will be demolished because of the impending sewer and water line work, but the historic George Washington cabin will not be affected, Paye said.

Over $5,000 Is Taken From Cars On Big Savage

Bulk Of Loot Is In U. S. Bonds

Police estimated the loot of thieves who ransacked two automobiles parked at Big Savage Inn over Thursday night at well above $5,000 and said the bulk of it was in United States Government bonds.

The bonds, police said, were taken from the automobile of Mrs. Irene G. Lillie, Silver Spring, Md. She is en route to California to join her husband stationed in the Army there.

The second car, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnhard, Pittsburgh, was stripped and luggage and clothing valued at $350 was reported missing. All the victims were staying at the inn overnight.

Trooper Glen Folk said the window vents on both automobiles were forced open in "a very professional manner." He said the thefts occurred early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Lillie told police she recently drew the bonds, her and her husband's savings, from a Silver Spring bank safe deposit box, so she could take them to California with her. They intend to reside there.

The bonds, Mrs. Lillie said, were left in the glove compartment of the car when she parked there Wednesday night. Police said the bottom of the compartment was torn away. Clothing in the Lillie car was not disturbed.

In reporting the theft to police, Mrs. Lillie told authorities the bonds, all of the Series "E" type, included twenty $100; thirty-three $50 and fifty-nine $25 bonds. She said some purchased recently were not listed.

Police said two insurance policies also were taken from the car and issued an immediate warning that the thieves may try to use them for identification purposes.

Mrs. Lillie told police she left Silver Spring Wednesday and the theft occurred on the first night of travel.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnhart told police they were enroute to Atlantic City for a week of vacation. The clothing theft, they told police, will delay the trip.

8 Polio Cases In Tucker County

Three children in a Parsons, W. Va., family of six have become victims of polio this week, bringing the total to eight polio cases in Tucker County in 19 days.

Billy Setler, 16-month-old son of Mrs. Bertha Hardy Setler, was taken to Morris Memorial Hospital at Milton, W. Va., near Charleston, yesterday afternoon.

On Monday, four-year-old Larry Setler, first child in the family to be stricken, was taken to the hospital. Six-year-old Ronald Setler was admitted there Wednesday.

So far, four Hambleton children and four from Parsons have been stricken with the disease.

J. Harold Felton, Parsons, a member of the Tucker County Tuberculosis Association, said the group does not yet consider the outbreak an epidemic.

However, county association members and medical advisory staff members will consult with Sterling Evans, Charleston, state polio association director, at a county-wide organization meeting today at Tucker County Court House, Parsons.

The meeting has been called to select a successor for Earl Moore, Parsons, who has resigned as director of the county polio group, Felton said.

Those attending the meeting, however, will take advantage of the opportunity to obtain information on precautionary measures for fighting polio.

Felton added that as far as is known now, Tucker County schools will open Tuesday as scheduled.

Negroes Form GOP Organization

A Republican Club consisting of Cumberland negroes was formed last night and elected William F. Jones president and John E. Trimble, secretary. The organization is endorsed by the Republican State Central Committee for Allegany County.

The group will hold its next meeting Sunday at 5 p. m. at 216 Carroll Street.

Railroad Crossing Being Repaired

The above picture shows workmen as they are repairing the Union Street crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Cost of the work, which will include removing uneven spots in the grade, is estimated at over $1,000. It is the first major rehabilitation of the crossing in several years. Work is expected to be completed in about two weeks.

Big Business Boom Is Noted In Marriage Licenses Here

During the month of August a total of 450 marriage licenses was issued in the office of the clerk of court here. This is a record month for the year and represents a large volume of business, court attaches noted, when it is considered that it involved 900 people who made at least two trips to the office.

In this county, it is necessary to file an application for a marriage license and then to return for the permit after waiting 48 hours.

Many couples are confused about this waiting law and come here believing that licenses may be issued immediately.

Many couples also do not understand that the clerk's office closes at 4 p. m. and no applications can be accepted or licenses issued under the law after that hour. On Saturday, closing time is 12 o'clock noon.

Some couples, coming here from other towns and states, are confused about the Daylight Time, and almost every day there is at least one couple turned away from the building. Most of them return later, however, although a few go elsewhere, it is noted.

This month, wedding couples came to Cumberland from 12 states and scores of towns. West Virginia and Pennsylvania communities nearby contribute the largest share, however some travel from Ohio and Virginia. Florida, New York, Rhode Island, Illinois and Indiana were also listed this past month.

Clerks noted in the past six or eight weeks a marked increase in the number of wedding permits issued, especially to couples under 23 or 24 years of age. They believe and some couples admit, the present war situation in Korea has prompted matrimony, not only because some young men expect to go, but because others believe marriage may forestall induction, at least for a few more weeks.

New Headquarters Of State Police To Be Dedicated Soon

The new Pikesville headquarters of the Maryland State Police at the Old Soldiers' Home, which is being rehabilitated for police use, will be dedicated on September 9 at 3 p. m., Colonel Carey Jarman, superintendent of Maryland State Police has announced. The public is invited to attend.

Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., will deliver the principal address. Others scheduled to speak are Charles R. Stallings, Jr., chairman of the Arsenal and Veterans Memorial Commission; Colonel Beverly Ober, Police Commissioner of Baltimore; Christian L. Kahl, president, Baltimore County Commissioners; and John B. Funk, chief engineer of Maryland.

With the formal dedication of the Old Soldiers' Home as the Headquarters of the Maryland State Police, this historic installation enters another cycle of service to the state.

Originally this group of buildings was erected by the U. S. Government in the period immediately following the War of 1812. From 1820, when its construction was completed, until 1879, it functioned as a military installation of the United States Army.

Through an Act of Congress, in 1880, it was given to the State of Maryland. The Legislature then made it available to the Association of the Maryland Line as a soldiers' home. It served in this capacity until 1932, when, with only two veterans remaining, the installation had again completed a cycle of service and was closed as a soldiers' home.

Since 1936, by act of the Legislature, the property has been under the supervision and custody of the Arsenal and Veterans Memorial Commission. During this time the members of the Pikesville Volunteer

ed Brass Loses "Party Control" In West Germany

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Stalin's trusted lieutenants in Eastern Germany have grabbed control of West Germany's communists from gaunt, gray-faced Max Reimann.

Allied officials here say the Politburo of the East German Socialist Unity (communist) Party is now running the West German communists with an iron grip.

The Kremlin has directed the East German leaders to mastermind the new communist resistance program against the Western Allies, these officials said.

To carry out the orders of the East German Politburo, a cadre of trusted communists has infiltrated into Western Germany from the east. They have booted out 100 or more old-time communist functionaries and taken their posts.

Reimann, boss of West German communists since 1945, has been allowed to stay on as chairman in name—for the time being. Allied officials say the communists do not want to weaken their drive against the occupation powers by a public party purge.

Allied officials here believe Reimann's fall from grace began with the 1949 elections to name the first parliament of the new West German federal republic. Despite a noisy campaign and boastful claims, Reimann's communists elected only 15 members to the 403-member parliament.

Since then communist strength in West Germany has withered. Thousands have quit the party. Hundreds more have been kicked out for "Titoist" activities.

At the Socialist Unity Party congress in Berlin in July, the West German communist leaders were publicly assailed. Then the West German parliament lifted Reimann's immunity as a deputy, opening the way for possible criminal proceedings in the East Berlin arrest of his deputy, Kurt Mueller.

The German state prosecutor in Hannover has accused Reimann of having a hand in the kidnaping of Mueller. After Mueller was nabbed by East German police, there were rumors that he had been spirited out of West Germany by Reimann.

Reimann's eclipse makes Moscow-trained Walter Ulbricht the real boss of the communist forces in both East and West Germany. The 57-year-old, spade-bearded Ulbricht was elected first secretary of the Socialist Unity Party in July.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Will a child dislike you "for no reason"?

Answer: No. But when he's little, his reason may have nothing to do with you or the way you treat him—it may be the situations with which he associates you. If you are a baby-sitter, for example, a small child may start to scream the moment you come in the door because he's learned that every time you appear, his mother goes away and leaves him, and to him, that is about the worst thing that could happen. Be patient and realize that he has "nothing against you"—until the first shock is over, he would be the same with anybody.

TIME IS PRECIOUS

Should you be afraid to "waste time"?

Answer: On the whole, No. In an ideal world, it would no doubt be possible to spend every moment of your waking hours in doing things that were either pleasant or profitable. But as this world is, most of us must spend many hours either "waiting around," or doing things that don't seem worth the effort. Letting this make you angry or uneasy means you haven't quite outgrown the childish feeling that if you don't get what you want at once, you won't get it at all. Make the most you can of your time, but don't expect perfection.

Can a person's eyes really deceive him?

Answer: Yes. You probably have noticed that when an airplane flies directly over you, you hear the sound as if it came from a considerable distance behind the plane. This is because light travels faster than sound. But Dr. Hubertus Strughold writes in the Journal of Aviation Medicine that in supersonic flight, the interval between the time when an image reaches your eye and the time when you perceive it, though only a tiny fraction of a second, makes a pilot "see" another plane some distance ahead when it's really abreast of him.

CPL Fulk Resigns

PARSONS—The resignation of Cpl. L. Kenneth Fulk of the Thomas State Police detachment was announced this week by State Police Superintendent, W. E. Burchett of Charleston.

Cpl. Fulk, a veteran of the department for the past 10 years will resign effective September 1, and will enter the insurance business.

The American term, "two bits," meaning a quarter, derives from an old English thieves' term, "bits," which meant money in general.

Telephone Tip Solves Dilemma

NEW YORK, (INS)—A telephone tip saved ailing 8-year-old Joseph Young from having to undergo anti-rabies treatment which doctors said might take his life.

Joseph, a rheumatic heart victim, was bitten by a little black and white dog last Friday. Afterwards, neighbors and friends made a block-by-block search for the dog, but it could not be found.

The New York Health Department warned that unless Joseph underwent the anti-rabies treatment, he would risk hydrophobia. Joseph's physician, warned, however, that the boy's weakened heart might not be able to withstand the treatment.

The dilemma was solved when Patrolman George Stagliano, acting on a telephone tip, found the dog.

AEC Official Indicates Uranium Production Not Meeting Needs

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (INS)—An Atomic Energy Commmission official indicated that too little uranium is being mined to meet the needs of atomic-hydrogen bomb production.

Jesse C. Johnson, manager of the AEC's raw materials operation, said that the government will be forced into the uranium mining field unless established private companies get into the business in a big way.

Johnson said:

"Uranium production must keep pace with expanding requirements for national defense."

He told a meeting of the American Mining Congress that in his opinion the government market for uranium is here to stay, "but when, if ever, there will be a commercial market, I will not attempt to predict."

The AEC spokesman announced a new price policy which, he said, guarantees a market for uranium ore at minimum prices for approximately eight years.

Johnson said the new ore-buying schedule includes a price of $2.50 to $3 per pound of U-308 content ore, including a development allowance of 50 cents per pound of the ore. A haulage allowance may be granted for delivery at a mill, and minimum U-308 content may be from two-tenths to three-tenths per cent.

Johnson praised private company results in the search for the vital ore, saying:

"Progress is being made in the search for uranium but greater effort is needed."

Married Men Facing Draft, Vinson Says

House Approves Allowances Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee said today the draft will be extended to draft-age married men with dependents soon.

Such men, under 26, are now deferred.

Asked what he meant by "soon," Vinson told newsmen:

At Selective Service headquarters, officials said they could not tell when it might be necessary to draft married men.

Officials estimated there are 1,000,000 married non-veterans of draft age—19 through 25—and that up to 400,000 would qualify for induction.

House OKs Allowance Bill

Vinson made his statement to reporters shortly after the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill providing allowances ranging from $85 to $165 a month for the families of enlisted men.

Selective Service officials said no announcement on expanding the draft would be made until after final congressional action on the family allowances bill.

A spokesman said, however, that President Truman could order the drafting of married men under the present law, by amending the regulations. It would not require legislation.

In other mobilization developments:

1. A bill designed to prevent sneak air attack—by requiring identification and advance clearance of planes flying over strategic defense areas—passed the House without opposition.

The Senate has already passed a similar bill. Differences will be adjusted in conference.

Disperal Plan Debated

2. House Republicans and Democrats wrangled hotly over President Truman's request for $139,800,000 to scatter key federal agencies well outside Washington as a safeguard against atomic attack.

Rep. A. L. Miller (R-Neb) denounced it as "another boondoggling project to protect some of the waffle bottoms in Washington."

While spectators still tittered over this reference to lolling in cane-bottomed chairs, Rep. Edward T. Miller (R-Md) suggested that Congress "save some hides and money at the same time by removing 40,000 bureaucrats from the payroll."

Under the administration plan, 40,000 government workers and numerous important agencies would be moved out 10 to 50 miles from Washington.

American Fighter May Have Strafed Red China Airstrip By Mistake, Austin Tells U.N

Commission To Probe Reported Attack Is Proposed; Malik Ends Council Presidency

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 31 (AP)—Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin told the Security Council tonight that a United States fighter plane may have strafed a Manchurian airstrip by mistake Aug. 27.

Austin spoke as Russia's Jakob A. Malik ended his presidency of the council in the midst of another bitter procedural wrangle like those that have paralyzed the council for 31 days.

The U. S. delegate proposed that the U. N. set up a commission to investigate at once the reported attack and to assess damages. He said the United States would be willing to pay whatever damages the commission decided were fair.

Austin also proposed that Communist North Korea and Communist China be asked to give the proposed commission a safe conduct pass to permit a full inquiry.

Not Fully Confirmed

The U. S. still has not fully confirmed the reported attack, he said, but there is reason to believe that one F-51 aircraft of the 67th Fighter Bomber Squadron may have by mistake violated Manchurian teritory and strafed an airstrip five miles across the border from Korea.

Austin also delivered a blistering attack on Malik, charging him with "a colossal contempt for the simple rules" of the council during his month as president. He got a laugh when he referred to August as "a red letter month" with the emphasis on the word red.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb, who succeeds Malik as president tomorrow, also blasted Malik for trying to place on the already crowded calendar of the council allegations of terrorism in Greece.

Jebb proposed that the council strike this item from the provisional agenda submitted by Malik. He called it "a nauseating spectacle of Satan rebuking sin" for Malik to attack Greece while Russia holds millions in forced labor and deports millions in cattle cars to Siberia.

Jebb Agrees With Austin

Jebb agreed with Austin that the question of the Manchurian attack should be taken up and he expressed the hope it would come next week.

Malik touched off the long wrangle by proposing that the Greek issue and Red China's charges of American air attacks on Manchuria be added to the council's agenda.

Austin's announcement came as a surprise. He said the United States had several times warned air forces in Korea to exert every care to avoid crossing the borders of China. He added that as soon as the first complaint was received from Chou En-Lai, Chinese communist foreign minister, the government ordered an inquiry.

Conferees Okay National Defense Production Act

May Reach Truman Before Talk Tonight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — A compromise bill giving President Truman war-style powers to speed production and curb inflation was approved finally tonight by a House-Senate conference committee.

Prompt acceptance by both chambers is expected; the "National Defense Production Act of 1950" may be on President Truman's desk when he delivers his "fireside chat" tomorrow (9 p. m., E.S.T.).

The President's half-hour message to the people, to be broadcast and televised, may give the public its first knowledge of what domestic sacrifices are to be imposed under the broad mobilization bill.

Compromise On Expiration Date

Agreement had been delayed for hours while the conferees heard administration leaders appeal for a two-year law expiring June 30, 1952, instead of the 10-month bill previously agreed on. The upshot was this schedule of termination dates:

Wage-price controls, restraints on credit, and machinery to settle labor disputes would expire next June 30.

Other powers would run until June 30, 1952, including rationing, allocations, priorities, and defense production loans.

But the government's power to enter new emergency contracts would expire June 30, 1951.

Legislators explained that this means materials could be allocated, plants requisitioned, or loans made under defense contracts until mid-1952, provided the contracts had been signed by mid-1951.

Other Final Settlements

Other final settlements reached today were:

1. Striking out a Senate provision which would have assured meat packers a "reasonable margin of profit" under any price controls imposed.

2. Providing that any wage-price controls and consumer rationing be administered by a single agency. This was a Senate provision.

3. Adopting in revised form a Senate amendment which would compel the President, if he imposes any price freeze, to prevent hardships or inequities to sellers who hold bona fide contracts for future delivery of materials.

Court Asked To Reverse Rutledge's Conviction

DES MOINES, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Iowa Supreme Court today was asked to reverse the conviction and 70-year murder sentence of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr.

The attorneys for the 29-year-old St. Louis doctor described his conviction of the slaying of Byron C. Hattman, St. Louis aircraft expert, as unjustified. Their appeal brief said the 70-year sentence was "monstrous."

Hattman, bachelor admirer of Dr. Rutledge's pretty blonde wife, was found dead in a Cedar Rapids, Ia., hotel room in December, 1948.

Hudson Gives Pay Hike

DETROIT, Aug. 31 (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers said today the Hudson Motor Car Co. has granted a seven-cent hourly wage increase to 20,000 employes.

George Proposes Tax Compromise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Sen. George (D-Ga) today asked Congress to wait until January to write an excess profits tax and make it retroactive for three or six months.

George thus sought to remove the worrisome issue from the administration's $4,508,000,000 emergency tax increase measure to get it rolling.

The Senator, chairman of the Finance Committee, offered the idea as a substitue for a widely-favored $4,000,000,000 excess profits levy sponsored by Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) and Connally (D-Tex). O'Mahoney has claimed he has the votes to nail it into the bill. The House has not acted.

But George, whose argument all along has been that such a tax requires lots of consideration and a full hearing, told the Senate that the O'Mahoney-Connally proposal is "a plain misunderstanding of the basic principles of an excess profits tax."

The Georgian would put his compromise into the bill in the form of a directive to Senate and House tax-writing committees that they prepare an excess profits tax bill early next year and make it retroactive to July 1 or Oct. 7, 1950.

Amnesty Offered Kidnapers If Boy Returned Unharmed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP)—State's Attorney George P. Coutrakon, acting on the theory that missing two-year-old Earnest Cagle, Jr., has been abducted, offered immunity from prosecution today if the child is returned unharmed in 24 hours.

The boy, son of a 34-year-old Illiopolis farmer, disappeared early Sunday morning from the family car parked outside a tavern at Buckhart. An intensive search has yielded no clues to his whereabouts.

Coutrakon said the child, a diabetic, requires special medical care.

"At the urgent request of the family, I have agreed to offer complete amnesty to those responsible for his disappearance," the prosecutor said in a statement.

"If he is returned to the parents alive and unharmed or arrangements made with this office for his return within 24 hours there will be no prosecution.

"I also agree to keep the identity of those involved in strict confidence."

Coutrakon said it is "highly improbable" that the frail boy could have escaped from the car alone.

Truman Reiterates He Plans To Retain Johnson In Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—President Truman said today—for a second time—that he contemplates no change in the status of Secretary of Defense Johnson.

Johnson, and Secretary of State Acheson, have been under fire repeatedly in Congress and elsewhere.

Mr. Truman has said both can stay in the Cabinet as long as he is President. He renewed the statement about Johnson today as a result of news conference inquiries arising from a demand by Rep. Tauriello (D-NY) that the Defense Secretary get out. Mr. Truman had no comment on Tauriello's contention that Johnson has lost the confidence of the people. He said no, he hadn't been embarrassed by any actions of Johnson, or everybody would have known about it.

Hopes Red China Stays Neutral

Running rapidly through a series of subjects in response to questions, Mr. Truman told his news conference that:

He hopes there is no great danger that Red China will become involved in the Korean conflict.

Of course it will be unnecessary to keep the U. S. Seventh Fleet in the Formosan Straits if the Korean crisis is settled. The fleet is there to protect the American flag.

The President is very sorry to hear that Senate leaders plan no action now on Hawaiian and Alaskan statehood, as he is anxious to have the territories made states, primarily for defense purposes.

Longshoremen at eastern ports who refused to unload cargoes that originated in Russia are in effect trying to determine American foreign policy and they haven't any business doing that.

Not Columnist Or Pollster

His proposal to spend $139,800,000 to disperse part of the government from Washington is only the beginning of a program that has been under consideration for some time. While Mr. Truman understands some congressmen would like agencies shifted to other cities, that isn't the purpose of the program.

The Chief Executive can't very well make a prediction on the November election — he says he is no columnist or pollster.

The President said he will decide whether Spain will get a U. S. loan—Congress voted for a $62,500,000 loan — when the time comes for implementation. The President smiled broadly at that. There have been reports he would impound the loan money and not let the Spaniards have it.

South Carolina Klan Leader Is Arrested

CONWAY, S. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Horry County Sheriff C. E. Sasser said tonight that the grand dragon of Ku Klux Klan in South Carolina had been arrested and charged with "conspiracy to stir up mob violence."

Sasser said the charge was brought against Thomas L. Hamilton in connection with a Klan parade staged last Saturday at a negro section near Myrtle Beach. A Conway policeman, James D. Johnston, was killed after the parading Klansmen had fired into a negro night club. Johnston was wearing a Klan robe over his uniform at the time.

At the same time Sasser cleared the proprietor of the club of any blame in the slaying and indirectly laid the full blame on the raiding Klansmen.

Customer Leaves His Shirt As Tip

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 31 (AP)—Waitress Louise Wolfe has received many tips, but never one like she got last night.

When one of her customers finished eating, he put the exact change on the table, then laid the tip beside it and walked out.

The tip was his shirt—a bright red and white, dotted Swiss job that Miss Wolfe had complimented.

O'Dwyer Given Festive Sendoff

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Mayor William O'Dwyer, resigning to become ambassador to Mexico, received a festive sendoff today from a crowd estimated by police at 330,000.

A parade of seven bands and 5,000 city employes escorted him along Broadway on his final trip to City Hall as mayor.

Spectators were lined 10 and 12 deep at some points for a "last look" at the colorful figure who arrived here as an Irish immigrant 40 years ago and climbed to the city's highest official position.

His resignation will be submitted Saturday, and City Council President Vincent R. Impelliteri will become acting mayor.

Senate Upholds Veto Of Vets' Postal Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Senate today upheld President Truman's veto of a bill to grant pay increases to World War II veterans in the postal field service.

The vote was 48 to override to 29 to sustain the veto. Two thirds was needed to override.

The House previously had voted 213 to 72 to override the veto.

The bill, for purposes of promotion and salary, would have granted about 100,000 veterans, who entered the postal field service after the war and up to July 1 last, full credit for such military service.

Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle Of N. Carolina, Dies

GASTONIA, N. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Rep. A. L. Bulwinkle of North Carolina's 11th District died at his home here tonight.

The veteran lawyer, soldier, and legislator had been ill for a year. Some months ago, he had announced plans to retire after expiration of his present term in Congress January 1.

He served in Congress from 1921-29 and again since 1931. Maj. Bulwinkle had represented North Carolina's Ninth, 10th, and 11th Districts.

War Casualty Figures Will Be Released

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — Officials said today that the Defense Department has decided to tell the public regularly, probably once a week, the total cost of the Korean conflict in Americans killed, wounded or missing in action.

The promised summaries will be in addition to the lists of individual casualties now made public daily by the department.

Announcement of casualty totals would be a return to a policy that was last in operation on August 7, when the department said 2,668 Americans had been killed, wounded or missing in the Korean area.

Since that time, an Army spokesman told reporters that the policy was being restudied to make sure that casualty figures were not made public until they were no longer of value to the enemy.

In recent discussions among the armed services and the Defense Department, advocates of regular announcements of casualty totals are reported to have advanced two principal arguments:

1. The American public is entitled to be informed regularly about American losses.

2. Failure to do so would give communists an opportunity to try to undermine the public's confidence by broadcasting false and exaggerated reports of American losses.

Some Army officials are reported to have urged that casualty totals not be announced until the end of campaigns.

However, it was pointed out that an enemy representative might compile casualty totals for himself by checking the lists of individual casualties issued daily by the Defense Department.

Moscow Again Says Douglas Is Spying

LONDON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Moscow radio charged again tonight that Justice William O'Douglas of the U. S. Supreme Court is spying for his country in the Middle East, using mountain climbing as a blind.

The Russians made the same charge when Douglas, whose various outdoor hobbies include mountaineering, went to Iran last year.

The new Soviet comment said:

"A few days ago accompanied by a large group of guides, picked and trained by the American intelligence, he (Douglas) set out on one of his usual mountain climbing expeditions, right on the frontier of Soviet Azerbaijan."

Huge U. S. Rocket Climbs 85 Miles, Attains 3,600 MPH

WHITE SANDS, N. M., Aug. 31 (AP) — The largest and heaviest rocket launched from the White Sands ordnance installation today climbed 85 miles into the air, attaining a speed of approximately 3,600 miles an hour.

The rocket's warhead was four times as large as the original German rocket warhead and carried so many instruments the White Sands officials termed it a "floating laboratory."

Instruments ejected from the rocket were parachuted to the earth.

Col. G. G. Eddy, commander of White Sands Proving Ground, said damaged parts of the rocket were being returned to the base. He termed the rocket shoot "a success."

The rocket is the fourth of a series of experiments with an enlarged rocket. Officials said that all attained an altitude in excess of 80 miles and that performances indicated the rocket was stable.

Today's rocket contained instruments on which scientists have been working for the past two years. It was fired by the Army Ordnance Corps and General Electric engineers.

30,000 North Korean Troops, Led By Tanks, Gain Up To Five Miles On 47-Mile Battlefront

Reds Cross Naktong At 5 Points, Throw Pincers Around One Town

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 1 (AP)—More than 30,000 tank-led North Koreans with 20,000 more in reserve, unleashed an all-out drive today along a 47-mile front for the United Nations lifeline port of Pusan.

At heavy cost in men and armor they (1) punched out gains up to five miles, (2) threw a pincers around one town and (3) crossed the Naktong at five points. They drove against two outnumbered American divisions.

The central and southern walls of the front exploded into tank, artillery and ground battles.

The Americans rushed up fresh troops to reinforce the hard-pressed 25th Division in the south. The U. S. 2nd Division called on its reserves.

Korean communist infantry seized high ground in the old Changnyong bridgehead and established a roadblock across the highway behind the U. S. Second Division.

Two groups of reds succeeded in forming a junction behind a forward American company on the southern flank of the division. Some isolated American units were being supplied by air drop.

The U. S. Eighth Army called the red offensive "a general attack."

Tuksong-To-Masan Battlefront

The battle flamed from Tuksong for 47 miles down to Masan, the gateway to Pusan, which is 27 air miles to the east.

A quick look down this line at the coordinated attack:

1. Two red battalions crossed the Naktong at Tuksong, 12 miles southwest of the key American advanced supply base of Taegu.

2. Near Pugong, five miles west of Changnyong, two reinforced red battalions made three crossings and advanced nearly a mile to positions where they dug in.

3. Just south of this area, 3,000 reds crossed the Naktong and pushed five miles eastward, driving toward Yongsan.

4. Two red divisions struck hard near the confluence of the Nam and Naktong Rivers, sent a large assault force south toward Haman and curved a pincers around that town.

At heavy cost in men and armor, Korean reds made two gains of a mile or more and snapped a pincers around the town of Haman, 36 miles west of Pusan.

U. S. Officers Confident

American reinforcements stalled the southernmost push near Haman and recovered some ground by 8 a. m. (5 p. m., EST, Thursday). American officers told Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton they believed this was the long-expected final offensive effort to break the United Nations line at the south end of the 120-mile battle perimeter and capture Pusan, the lifeline supply port of the defenders. They also told Swinton they felt confident the drive could be crushed by nightfall.

This morning the Fifth Regimental Combat Team rushed to support the 24th Regiment at Haman. It was reported to have regained some of the lost ground, destroying two red

U. S. OBSERVATION PLANE SHOT DOWN

A FIGHTER BASE IN SOUTH KOREA, Friday, Sept. 1 (AP)—A North Korean fighter plane shot down an American observation plane over the battlefront.

It was the first American loss through enemy aerial action since the earliest days of the Korean conflict.

TWA Airliner Crash In Egypt Claims 55 Lives

23 Americans Are Carried To Death

DIST EL ASHRAFF, Egypt, Aug. 31 (AP)—A Trans World Airline Constellation crashed and burned in the desert sands west of the Nile Delta today and all 55 persons aboard perished. Twenty-three Americans and an Egyptian film star were among the dead.

The four-engined "Star of Maryland" went down 65 miles northwest of Cairo, near the village of Etay Baroud at the rim of the Western Desert. Searchers found the wreckage strewn over 500 yards. They trekked 15 miles over hot sands to reach it.

The airliner plummeted to earth shortly after the takeoff from Cairo on a regular Bombay-New York flight. The bodies of the victims were badly charred, delaying identification.

Egyptian Actress Aboard

A dozen nations were represented among the 48 passengers.

The Egyptian film actress was Camelia, a blonde who was known as the Lana Turner of the Far East. Her real name was Lilliane Cohen. Friends said she had been bound for Interlaken, Switzerland, for a vacation on doctor's orders.

Maharajah Singh Prithi of Bombay was another on the list.

Prominent among the Americans were Aubrey William Schofield, 52, New York, an oil company evecutive, and Everett Moore Baker, 49, dean of students at the Massachusets Institute of Technology.

Cause Of Crash Undetermined

The Egyptian Civil Aviation Department, the Civil Aeronautics Bureau in Washington and the airline dispatched investigators to hunt for the cause of the crash, one of the worst in commercial aviation history.

Justie Ervin Gist, Lake City, Ia., administration services and transportation officer at the U. S. Embassy in Cairo, had plodded silently through ankle-deep sands for ten miles to look for his son, William C. Gist, a passenger on the ill-starred craft.

But when Gist reached the scattered mass of wreckage and mangled bodies he abandoned his search. He just gazed vacantly at the ghastly scene.

Not Flying Saucer But Flying Dipper

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Aug. 31 (AP)—Now it's flying dippers.

Two Fredericksburg women, Mrs. L. P. Hitt and Mrs. W. N. LeCouteur, sisters, saw the dipper from the lawn of Mrs. LeCouteur's home last night.

They described it as a "very bright light," not very large, that moved not too fast.

The said they watched the dipper for about five minutes as it moved northward. It looked like a quart sized cup to them.

Mrs. LeCouteur's husband vouched for the dipper. He said he had seen a similar dipper about two weeks ago but had said nothing about it.

Gulf Hurricane Blows Itself Out

PANAMA CITY, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP)—A gulf hurricance mauled this coastal town before blowing out in Northern Alabama today. And a new hurricane is whirling west-northwestward 1,600 miles southeast of Florida.

Hurricane winds raked the Panama City area about midnight, damaging from 200 to 300 cottages and flooding bayside homes. Wind and tides ripped away a city dock.

High tides and weaker winds caused slight damage at Mobile, Ala., Pensacola and St. Marks, Fla. An empty 10,000-gallon gasoline storage tank washed loose from its foundation at St. Marks and bobbed in the bay like a cork.

Roads leading into Apalachicola Fla.—struck yesterday by an off-shoot tornado—were still closed today. The twister injured two persons seriously and wrecked between 10 and 15 houses.

Scattered, incomplete reports of damage amounted to $500,000.

Top Western Pa. Reds Are Jailed

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP)—The chairman of the communist party of Western Pennsylvania and two men identified as his lieutenants were jailed on sedition charges today.

Arrested under a 1939 state law were Steve Nelson, regional party head; James Dolsen, named as a correspondent for the communist party newspaper Daily Worker; and Andrew Onda, identified as an organizer assigned to enlist steel workers in the communist party.

City detectives arrested the trio in their homes before dawn on charges filed by Judge Michael A. Musmanno, Allegheny County jurist who is the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania.

Musmanno followed up the arrests by accompanying city detectives who raided the communist party headquarters in a building just across the street from the city-county building in Pittsburgh. Party literature and records were seized.

Mahoney Denies Buffington Is Advisor

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—George P. Mahoney denied today that Delegate J. Raynold Buffington is his advisor on mental hospital problems, as Gov. Lane had described him.

Mahoney, who is fighting Lane for the Democratic nomination for governor, said that the Baltimore City delegate is "one of many interested citizens who are deeply concerned with the conditions existing in the mental hospitals."

In a campaign statement yesterday, Lane said that Buffington had proposed in 1947 that the money the Governor had allotted in his budget for food allowances at the mental hospitals be cut by $1,600,000.

Income Receipt Speedup Will Not Cut 1950 Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Taxpayers can't save anything on their 1950 income tax bills by speeding up their income receipts, officials said today.

They blasted notions apparently held in some quarters that the higher individual income tax rates in the bill now near passage will apply only to income received after October 1.

Some confusion has arisen from the fact that the scheduled boost in tax withholding rates will be effective only on wages and salaries paid after October 1—that is, in 1950's last quarter.

Officials said, however, the October 1 date for application of new withholding rates will not matter on final settlement of 1950 income tax due next March 15.

Red Guerrillas Enter Greece From Albania

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Ministry of Public Order said tonight a communist guerrilla band of 20 men had entered Greece from Albania two nights ago.

The announcement said one member of the band had killed his leader and surrendered to the Greek authorities. He told them the group was an advanced intelligence group which had gone to Albania from Poland.

State PAC Neutral

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Maryland Political Action Committee of the CIO said today it still isn't taking sides in the Gov. Lane-George P. Mahoney political battle.

State CIO President Frank J. Bender has personally endorsed Mahoney for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. But the P.A.C. said it still is neutral.

The announcement came after a meeting yesterday of about 100 CIO leaders.

1950 Traffic Death Toll May Be Second Highest

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Unless the public mends its ways, 1950 will be the second worst year for traffic deaths in history.

That is the conclusion of National Safety Council engineers based upon statistics for the first seven months of this year. The council estimated today that 36,000 persons will be killed this year.

The council has estimated that 435 persons will die in highway accidents during the Labor Day weekend holiday.

This red bid for Pusan by way of Masan was considered their second choice. The first was from Waegwan, more than 65 miles northwest of Pusan. That red push failed more than two weeks ago.

The third choice was from Pohang, the east coast anchor of the 120-mile battle perimeter. Today red forces were three to four miles north of Pohang. Yesterday they had penetrated within rifle range only to be rolled back by American and South Korean troops, aided by planes, tanks and naval fire power from warships close offshore.

Gambler Cohen Gets Bum's Rush

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 31 (AP) — Texas Rangers gave Mickey Cohen the bum's rush out of the Lone Star State today because they said he was trying to set up a "gambling and racketeering empire."

The little West Coast gambler protested he was in Texas on legitimate business, hunting more money to support his "beautiful wife" and the men on his payroll.

The ranger roused him out of his hotel at Wichita Falls, took him to Fort Worth and put him on a westbound plane for California.

When the plane arrived here at the International Airport he was arrested by police and held at headquarters until his plane left for Los Angeles.

"I got to have more money," he complained while under arrest here.

"I have a beautiful wife, but she spends a lot of money. It costs a lot of money to live."

Air Parcel Post Rates Will Increase Nov. 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — Higher rates for air parcel post effective Nov. 1 were announced today by Postmaster General Donaldson.

Donaldson said about half of all air parcel post packages weigh less than a pound and 75 per cent weigh less than two pounds.

Negro Woman Accused

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—The grand jury today charged a negro woman with getting $7,615 in relief money from the city by fraud.

She was listed as Catherine Robertson, also known as Catherine Smith, and investigators said she has five children.

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells refused to give details of the accusation but indicated the woman had gotten two sets of relief payments under different names.

Tydings Hits 'Propaganda' In Opening His Campaign

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — Sen. Tydings (D-Md) said tonight that "some designing, irresponsible individuals" are directing an "intensive campaign of falsehood, mud-slinging and political propaganda" against him.

"The core of opposition propaganda," he said, "is that I, as chairman of a Senate subcommittee established to investigate charges of disloyalty in the State Department, have been covering up and 'whitewashing' for the administration."

"These charges are absolutely ridiculous," he said in opening his campaign for re-nomination to a fifth consecutive term.

"In truth, whatever my strength and weaknesses are, it never has occurred to me that anybody could question my love of country and my opposition to and contempt for all communists and fellow travelers, whether in or out of government."

Tydings' speech was prepared for delivery over a network of four television stations and nine radio stations in Baltimore, Washington and Cumberland.

He said that "you and I are suddenly confronted with propaganda to the effect that I xxx have even stooped so low as to connive to keep disloyal persons in the employ of our government.

"To add force to this propaganda, you have been told by utterly false rumor that I am doing this because I am to be appointed ambassador to Great Britain or that I am a candidate for vice president, or out to get something else," he said, adding:

"If anyone tries to tell this to you, you tell them it is a barefaced and unmitigated lie.

"I am a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate and that is where I hope to be xxx all during the next six-year term."

He spent much of his 30-minute speech in recounting how his subcommittee had investigated the charges by Sen. McCarthy that card-carrying communists had worked in the State Department — and how the committee had gone over the loyalty files of 81 persons named by McCarthy.

ed Brass Loses "Party Control" In West Germany

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Stalin's trusted lieutenants in Eastern Germany have grabbed control of West Germany's communists from gaunt, gray-faced Max Reimann.

Allied officials here say the Politburo of the East German Socialist Unity (communist) Party is now running the West German communists with an iron grip.

The Kremlin has directed the East German leaders to mastermind the new communist resistance program against the Western Allies, these officials said.

To carry out the orders of the East German Politburo, a cadre of trusted communists has infiltrated into Western Germany from the east. They have booted out 100 or more old-time communist functionaries and taken their posts.

Reimann, boss of West German communists since 1945, has been allowed to stay on as chairman in name—for the time being. Allied officials say the communists do not want to weaken their drive against the occupation powers by a public party purge.

Allied officials here believe Reimann's fall from grace began with the 1949 elections to name the first parliament of the new West German federal republic. Despite a noisy campaign and boastful claims, Reimann's communists elected only 15 members to the 403-member parliament.

Since then communist strength in West Germany has withered. Thousands have quit the party. Hundreds more have been kicked out for "Titoist" activities.

At the Socialist Unity Party congress in Berlin in July, the West German communist leaders were publicly assailed. Then the West German parliament lifted Reimann's immunity as a deputy, opening the way for possible criminal proceedings in the East Berlin arrest of his deputy, Kurt Mueller.

The German state prosecutor in Hannover has accused Reimann of having a hand in the kidnaping of Mueller. After Mueller was nabbed by East German police, there were rumors that he had been spirited out of West Germany by Reimann.

Reimann's eclipse makes Moscow-trained Walter Ulbricht the real boss of the communist forces in both East and West Germany. The 57-year-old, spade-bearded Ulbricht was elected first secretary of the Socialist Unity Party in July.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Will a child dislike you "for no reason"?

Answer: No. But when he's little, his reason may have nothing to do with you or the way you treat him—it may be the situations with which he associates you. If you are a baby-sitter, for example, a small child may start to scream the moment you come in the door because he's learned that every time you appear, his mother goes away and leaves him, and to him, that is about the worst thing that could happen. Be patient and realize that he has "nothing against you"—until the first shock is over, he would be the same with anybody.

TIME IS PRECIOUS

"Should you be afraid to "waste time"?

Answer: On the whole, No. In an ideal world, it would no doubt be possible to spend every moment of your waking hours in doing things that were either pleasant or profitable. But as this world is, most of us must spend many hours either "waiting around," or doing things that don't seem worth the effort. Letting this make you angry or uneasy means you haven't quite outgrown the childish feeling that if you don't get what you want at once, you won't get it at all. Make the most you can of your time, but don't expect perfection.

Can a person's eyes really deceive him?

Answer: Yes. You probably have noticed that when an airplane flies directly over you, you hear the sound as if it came from a considerable distance behind the plane. This is because light travels faster than sound. But Dr. Hubertus Strughold writes in the Journal of Aviation Medicine that in supersonic flight, the interval between the time when an image reaches your eye and the time when you perceive it, though only a tiny fraction of a second, makes a pilot "see" another plane some distance ahead when it's really abreast of him.

Telephone Tip Solves Dilemma

NEW YORK, (INS)—A telephone tip saved ailing 8-year-old Joseph Young from having to undergo anti-rabies treatment which doctors said might take his life.

Joseph, a rheumatic heart victim, was bitten by a little black and white dog last Friday. Afterwards, neighbors and friends made a block-by-block search for the dog, but it could not be found.

The New York Health Department warned that unless Joseph underwent the anti-rabies treatment, he would risk hydrophobia. Joseph's physician, warned, however, that the boy's weakened heart might not be able to withstand the treatment.

The dilemma was solved when Patrolman George Stagliano, acting on a telephone tip, found the dog.

AEC Official Indicates Uranium Production Not Meeting Needs

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (INS)—An Atomic Energy Commmission official indicated that too little uranium is being mined to meet the needs of atomic-hydrogen bomb production.

Jesse C. Johnson, manager of the AEC's raw materials operation, said that the government will be forced into the uranium mining field unless established private companies get into the business in a big way.

Johnson said:

"Uranium production must keep pace with expanding requirements for national defense."

He told a meeting of the American Mining Congress that in his opinion the government market for uranium is here to stay. "but when, if ever, there will be a commercial market, I will not attempt to predict."

The AEC spokesman announced a new price policy which, he said, guarantees a market for uranium ore at minimum prices for approximately eight years.

Johnson said the new ore-buying schedule includes a price of $2.50 to $3 per pound of U-308 content ore, including a development allowance of 50 cents per pound of the ore. A haulage allowance may be granted for delivery at a mill, and minimum U-308 content may be from two-tenths to three-tenths per cent.

Johnson praised private company results in the search for the vital ore, saying:

"Progress is being made in the search for uranium but greater effort is needed."

World Wheat Market Reflects Dollar Troubles

Last year 42 nations entered an international agreement under which the flow of wheat in the world market was to be controlled. The United States, with much misgiving on the part of some leaders, joined the agreement. Now the first year of its operation is ended, and preliminary figures of the Canadian Bureau of Statistics indicate that the trade flow did not work out according to plan. The blame is not put on the plan itself, but on that familiar ailment, the dollar shortage.

The United States and Canada have disposed of far less than their export quotas of wheat. Australia and France, able to sell for sterling rather than dollars, got rid of almost their full quotas. The importing nations which fell furthest short of their allotted purchases were ones having severe dollar troubles, West Germany, Italy and Brazil.

To say that the United States fared better or worse under the agreement than it would have done in a free market over the past year would be hardly more than a guess. One thing seems to be confirmed. There is an incalculable obstruction to trade in the currency exchange troubles which divide the world into two monetary areas, with trade between them limited by the number of dollars which can be obtained. Until that dollar limitation can be overcome, the United States is going to have world marketing difficulties.

Live Long And Like It

Who would like to live to 110 or 120? This may become a common experience, the National Conference on Aging was told by Dr. Martin L. Gumpert, who specializes in the medical problems of old age. Medical and public health advances are steadily lengthening the average span of human life, so that before long centenarians may become frequent. Is this desirable prospect without drawbacks?

At present it may not seem so. Most old people have little with which to occupy their time, unless they have had the foresight to develop a hobby. They also have little or no money, and must depend on support by the state or the charity of relatives. Even the most devoted of descendants might be appalled at the prospect of supporting a grandparent for the 50 years between retirement at 70 and death at 120.

Longer life also is no guarantee of freedom from failing sight and hearing and enfeeblement of the mind. Jonathan Swift, more than 200 years ago, envisioned this development in "Gulliver's Travels." He described a race of "struldbrugs," doomed to immortality, and leading a ghastly existence of complete physical and mental helplessness.

To provide for the happiness of the aged is becoming a major social problem. "Live long and like it" clubs, providing lectures and entertainment, under the auspices of the public library or civic minded private organizations, are one answer. But whatever is done for them, most aging people should anticipate the future, and make some provision for mental occupation when they retire.

The Rain-Makers

Those who scoffed when New York City hired an official rain-maker last winter may yet have to change their tune. The rain-maker, Dr. Wallace E. Howell of Harvard University, has been retained for a second six-month period. Even Dr. Howell is not sure how much credit he should claim, but the fact of the weather is that rainfall in the Catskill watersheds, whence comes New York's water supply, was six per cent above normal for the first half of this year. Both the city and the meteorologist wants to run the experiment over a full year, so as to cover all the seasons.

Commenting on rainfall and water supply, Life magazine recently reported that of the rainfall which drops annually on the United States only two per cent is actually consumed by man, including what is used for irrigation. It also said that man wastes an amount equal to half of what is used. As for the rest of the rainfall, 26 per cent of the total flows back to the sea in streams and 71 per cent is absorbed by the earth or by vegetation, or evaporated back into the air.

This might suggest that the ultimate solution of water supply problems is to be found not in rain-making but in obtaining more usefulness from the rain which falls. This amount seems to remain constant; the Weather Bureau reports that in 80 years of record keeping no significant variation in average anual rainfall has been detected. If we could merely save the one per cent now wasted, water problems might be solved for many years to come.

Better Routes

An express highway, when considered solely as a means of expediting traffic and carrying more of it, seems like a simple proposition.

There are several angles to be considered when planning one of these arterial roads, however. Bottlenecks at each end must be avoided, so that already over-crowded streets or roads may not be still further burdened. A long look ahead is necessary to calculate an increase in traffic which may require the addition of several more lanes. Changes are made in real estate values, too, resulting sometimes in smaller tax returns. These problems are eminently worth solving, however, when one considers the benefits to motorists and the public in general. Travel by express highway is cheaper and safer, involving less mental strain for driver and passenger, and truck shipments are speeded up, reducing costly delays.

Travelers who make use of the express highways strongly advocate more of them. The contrast between the free flow of traffic on these roads and the constant delays caused by slow-moving vehicles on conventional highways of two or three lanes is glaring. Bottlenecks or no bottlenecks, most drivers prefer to go express.

September

Some great events in the history of the United States occurred in the month of September, including the Battle of Lake Erie, the Battle of Lake Champlain, the meeting of the First Continental Congress, Washington's Farewell Address and the writing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Yet it is none of these events which is celebrated in September. When the average American thinks of September's arrival he thinks of Labor Day, the last holiday of the summer. Always observed on the first Monday in September, Labor Day provides opportunity to enjoy a long weekend vacation trip by automobile.

The Case Of An Inventor

MOST OF US take the dental inlay for granted but there is a long story behind the invention and the inventor, William H. Taggart. His fame rested upon a single contribution—namely, the cast inlay technic that revolutionized prosthetic dentistry. He patented the process which proved to be an unfortunate mistake.

Taggert was an excellent dentist with a desire to improve everything he did. According to Dr. M. D. K. Bremner, superior skill enabled Taggart to build a large practice. He dreamed of a filling that could be made outside the mouth, inserted into the cavity and then cemented into place. This was the cast inlay and he devoted much of his spare time and energy to perfecting it. After 15 years of experimentation the device was completed, and in 1907 he described it to a group of dentists in Brooklyn, New York.

This new way of filling teeth appealed to his colleagues because it would free them from the toil of malleting adhesive gold. Taggart was willing to give the idea to the dental profession but thought he could obtain compensation by selling the supplies and casting machine. But he was an inventor and not a manufacturer or merchant and could not begin to fill the orders that poured in. This problem would have been solved had he accepted a royalty offer from a large dental firm but he was adamant. Soon other contrivances flooded the market, which sold at a price far below Taggart's.

It was at this time that the United States Dental Protective association came to his rescue. Its president, Dr. J. N. Crouse, proposed a license plan in which each dentist was to pay $15 for the right to make the inlay. There were 15,000 men in practice at that time from whom Taggart could realize close to a quarter of a million dollars and each year he would obtain additional fees from recent graduates. Taggart agreed but Crouse was as poor a promoter as Taggart was a business man. Only a handful of dentists subscribed.

Then Taggart decided to take matters into his own hands. He sent an ultimatum to dentists using his technic, demanding $150 for a license; a delay of five days increased the price to $250. If the dentists failed to pay he would bring suit against them demanding a share of all the profits on inlays for the last 20 years. He felt sure of himself inasmuch as he had won a local verdict along this line in a Chicago district court.

This matter brought together the members of the profession to fight the case. The only hope for the defense was that some one other than Taggart might have made the same discovery at an earlier date. The lawyers found that 10 years before Taggart's discovery, Dr. B. F. Filbrook, an obscure dentist from Dennison, Ia., had reported on a similar device before a handful of dentists. A copy of the secretary's report, filed in the library of the Iowa State Dental school, was located in the basement. Taggart had gambled and lost. Renown often comes to men posthumously and he is no exception. Some dentists list him after Wells and Morton of anesthesia fame and Researchers Black and Miller among the "greats" of dentistry.

E. P. writes: I use considerable perfume and cologne and apply it directly to the skin since it leaves rings on clothing. Some one told me that I can get a skin disease from doing this. Could this happen?

REPLY

Considering the millions who use these preparations they must be relatively safe because only a few encounter reactions. Some individuals are sensitive to one or more of the ingredients of perfume or toilet waters. Others become sensitized to the sun through some substance in the product such as oil of bergamot. As a result, an eruption occurs over the exposed areas that have been touched with the cosmetic.

Nothing need be done unless the condition is producing symptoms. As a rule the amount of iron exceeds your level before this occurs. There are medicines that lower the blood count and blood transfusions from time to time also help.

HEART TERMS

B. T. writes: Is a dilated heart the same as an enlarged heart?

REPLY

Technically, no. There are two forms of cardiac enlargement. In one the organ is dilated like a balloon and in the other the increase in size is due to thickening of the heart muscle.

Averell Harriman Gave Truman First Peep At MacArthur's Statement; Navy Recalls That MacArthur Vetoed Its Plan To Occupy Formosa In 1944

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Here is a play-by-play account of what went on behind-the-scenes in the now historic rebuke of General MacArthur by President Truman.

First inkling that MacArthur had sent a message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the delicate question of Formosa came on Thursday, Aug. 24, when Carlton Kent of the Chicago Sun-Times queried Roger Tubby, State Department press relations office, as to whether the MacArthur statement had been cleared by the State Department.

Tubby passed the query on to the White House and the Defense Department, found that neither had either seen or heard of the MacArthur statement. It had been sent direct to newspapers in a personal letter on Aug. 21 with a release date for Aug. 28. This was in direct violation of the White House directive laid down during the famous Henry Wallace-Jimmie Byrnes row, after which it was decreed that no statement on foreign policy could be published by any official without clearance.

President Truman himself did not see the MacArthur statement until Saturday, Aug. 26, during a conference scheduled to hear the report of Navy chief Admiral Forrest Sherman and Army chief General Joe Collins, following their return from Tokyo.

At this conference, Averell Harriman handed the President a copy of the MacArthur statement. Harriman, who is part owner of Newsweek magazine, had obtained a copy of the press release.

Harriman Has Explained

Harriman told Truman that he had carefully explained American policy to MacArthur during his recent visit to Tokyo and that there was no reason for his misunderstanding it. Actually Harriman's trip was largely inspired by MacArthur's urge to occupy Formosa with American troops and his much-publicized hand-kissing visit to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek. It was felt that Harriman could diplomatically explain that the United States must work through the United Nations in regard to Formosa and that if the United States got embroiled in any conflict with China the Korean war would then last indefinitely, for the Chinese communists would have an excuse to pour troops into Korea.

Truman read the MacArthur statement and hit the ceiling. Without asking Secretary Acheson or any others present for their opinion, he directed Secretary of Defense Johnson to order MacArthur to withdraw his statement.

"I am charged by the Constitution with the sole responsibility for the conduct of our foreign policy," he told those in the room. "There can only be one voice of authority in expressing that policy. We can't have two, or three or ten people acting as official spokesmen. This is a fundamental rule.

"In the case of Formosa, we cannot act unilaterally," the President continued. "We must continue our efforts through the United Nations.

"If we let the MacArthur message go unchallenged every diplomat throughout the world will believe—despite our denials—that MacArthur was really speaking for the White House. The diplomats will be convinced we're floating a trial balloon. No diplomat would ever imagine MacArthur would presume to make such a statement without the direct authority of the White House."

Cable To MacArthur

The cable which Secretary Johnson immediately dispatched to MacArthur read pretty much as follows: "The President of the United States directs that you immediately recall your statement addressed to the Veterans of Foreign Wars containing your views regarding Formosa. Your statement is not in accord with the established foreign policy of the United States as enunciated by the President."

At this writing no reply has been received.

Though Secretary Johnson has agreed with MacArthur on Formosa and once worked backstage to overrule the State Department on Formosa, other high military men in the Pentagon Building now take a different view. This holds true of many in both the Army and Navy.

MacArthur Once Banned Formosa

In fact, Navy strategists are now recalling that during 1944 the Navy wanted MacArthur to occupy Formosa as a step toward bombing Japan and that MacArthur was vigorously opposed.

Plans for taking over Formosa were worked out in great detail by Admiral Nimitz in 1944 and approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington. But MacArthur, who was determined to liberate his old love, the Philippines, overruled them.

Chief reason, however, that U. S. military men disagree with MacArthur on Formosa is that the Joint Chiefs of Staff are now among the eagerest people in Washington to avoid any conflict which would cause Chinese troops to be sent into Korea.

If Chinese troops stay out of Korea, there seems to be a pretty good chance the war will be over early this winter. But if the Chinese pour their vast hordes into Korea, the war could last almost indefinitely.

On top of this, U. S. Intelligence reported vitally important information to the Joint Chiefs of Staff last week—namely that Mao Tse-Tung and ex-Foreign Minister Molotov were at odds over Korea and Formosa. Molotov has been urging Mao, according to this information, to intervene in Korea and also invade Formosa, but Mao has hesitated.

These reports indicated that the rift between Russia and China was inceasing, and that there might be some chance of patching up relations between China and the United States.

This information, of course, was not definite. No information out of China can be definite these days. But it seemed convincing enough so that top U. S. military men are most anxious not to cause any further rift with China now.

Supporting this information is the fact that Mao had twice postponed the date for a Chinese invasion of Formosa, and now has postponed it a third time to Sept. 15.

If the Chinese communists do send an armada of junks across the straits of Formosa and if hundreds of them are sunk by American airplanes and naval vessels, the reaction in China will be such that a Chinese invasion of Korea is almost inevitable.

Thus, the military men argue, we might be able to hold Formosa but be thrown out of Korea.

MATTER OF FACT

Good News

WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA

THE folly of making forecasts about this Korean war can be simply illustrated. After spending some days in the line with the hospitable 1st Battalion of the 27th Infantry Regiment, this reporter briefly returned to the rear. Here, among the big wheels as the brass is called in this war, the balloon was up. A great and menacing enemy effort was momentarily expected.

Next morning, however, a trip back to the front revealed no scenes of bloody carnage or last ditch stands. Instead, the enemy had begun a general withdrawal precisely where the big wheels had anticipated a massive onslaught. And by that afternoon my friends of the 1st Battalion were loudly rejoicing because the big wheels felt safe enough to pull the 27th Regiment out of the line, send it halfway across Korea, and reunite it after many weeks with its parent division, the 25th.

While one therefore wishes to avoid prophesy, it is none the less allowable to report that the men who do the actual fighting believe that the first great crisis is over in Korea. If they are right, the danger of a full-scale catastrophe has passed at last.

No one at home seems to realize how great that danger has been. Yet not so many days ago, Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker called for total, immediate mobilization of all air transport in Japan, in order to evacuate as many American troops as possible after an enemy breakthrough that was expected in twelve hours. We then had no reserves to cover a withdrawal and no prepared positions to withdraw to. If our incredibly thin defense line had been breached that day, even the greatest of air evacuation could hardly have prevented the loss of half our men and most of our equipment in Korea. Such was the danger.

Line Still Thin

Even now, the line remains alarmingly thin. Even now, the line's security mainly depends on certain small crack outfits like the 27th Regiment and the First Marine Brigade, which are pushed into the line like corks wherever a break theatens. The men who do the fighting feel new confidence not because of any high level strategical gains, but because they consider the North Koreans are growing visibly weaker while we grow visibly stronger.

This recently altered balance of strength was strikingly evident in the fighting this reporter has just seen with the 27th Regiment's 1st Battalion. In what may have been its culminating effort as a cork, the regiment had been used to meet a serious enemy threat on the main highway to Taegu, the provisional Korean capitol and hinge of our defense line. Although the North Koreans were locally driven back by the 27th's aggressive exploitation of our superior artillery fire power and air superiority, the enemy commanders continued trying for a breakthrough for five more days before they at length withdrew.

But they had no air. They used their armor gingerly. They employed their artillery largely for counter-battery fire. They were even fairly sparing with their mortars. And the few prisoners taken testified that the North Korean divisions on this front were feeding their men only once every two or three days, and were hardly able to keep up their stocks of small arms and machine gun ammunition.

All this of course resulted from the attrition imposed by our resistance, plus the increasing isolation of the battlefield by our air power. The North Koreans are still being supplied by the Soviets, but they are more and more unable to get the supplies to the front.

Strength Being Returned

While the North Koreans are thus losing their offensive capability more rapidly than seemed possible, our own units are at last getting back the regiments, battalions and rifle companies which "economy" docked from them. When people here speak of an American division, they are positively beginning to mean the real thing, and not a poor enfeebled skeleton with "courtesy of Louis A. Johnson" written all over its emaciation.

With 2,500 estimated aircraft within range of our Japanese bases, with great armies in Siberia, with satellite power in China, the Kremlin can of course reverse this whole new tendency of the Korean war in the short space of a single night.

But if the Kremlin does not choose to intervene here more directly, our existing forces are now probably sufficient to contain the whole strength the North Koreans can muster. If this is true, even a fairly small additional force, if well equipped, can rather quickly strike at the enemy's unprotected rear, either by direct breakthrough, or by securing a beachhead, or even from an airhead. And once the North Korean rear has been successfully attacked, only the nasty trick of mopping up will then remain.

In short, we might get out of this mess in Korea rather more quickly than seemed likely when catas-

Retroactive Profits Tax May Stimulate Inflation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 — When the Chrysler Corporation the other day voluntarily raised the pay of its workers even though it was not provided for in the union contract, and was not the result of any request from the Auto Workers Union, there were many persons who wondered just what motivated the step.

Here in Washington, where labor unrest is getting to be matter of more and more concern, the Chrysler action was viewed as significant in many ways. The first impression was that the company had taken the step as a means of demonstrating that it is continuing, as it did many years before there were unions in its plants, to make wage increases whenever conditions warranted. There were some critics here however, who felt that the move might stimulate an inflationary trend.

The truth about the situation, it now develops, is that the simple and fundamental provocations of competition between Chrysler and General Motors brought about the wage increase.

Maintain Differential

Chrysler officials state that, due to the recent General Motors five-year contract, the wages paid came to eight cents per hour higher than those of Chrysler. So, by raising its workers' wages ten cents an hour, the Chrysler Corporation hopes to maintain a two-cent differential in favor of its own employes. The statement is made by Chrysler spokesmen that they have always maintained a differential in wages of about two cents better than G. M. The reason given is the desire to get premium labor.

Curiously enough, an employer nowadays cannot raise wages of his own initiative. He must call in the union representatives and get their consent, or else it's an "unfair labor practice" under the law. Sometimes the union officials use the occasion to ask for more than is being offered and negotiations ensue which permit the union officials to claim credit for the raise.

In the Chrysler instance, the company officials set forth their plan to the union for a raise of ten cents an hour and asked immediate acceptance or rejection, stating their intention to make public the offer in either event. The union officials agreed and the announcement of acceptance was issued.

Meanwhile a small strike has developed at the Ford Motor Company, some of whose employes feel they should be given an increase, too even though the contract doesn't call for it at this time. The strike is called "unauthorized" by the union but sympathy is expressed publicly just the same by the union officials for the point of view of the strikers — something that doesn't augur well for the sanctity of contracts with "no strike" pledges in them.

The General Motors Corporation, in its five-year contract signed before the Korean war, stipulates progressive increases in wages and an upward rise based on a cost-of-living index of the federal government. It remains yet to be seen whether workers will accept a serious downturn in the index as a basis some day for a wage cut.

Contribution To Inflation

What lurks in the background of the entire situation at present is the possibility that a wave of wage increases will be set off due to competition for manpower, and that this will contribute to the inflationary spiral.

The most serious prospect of an inflation panic may come out of the proposed passage of an excess-profits tax law. The big companies with large profits will be tempted to increase wages and other expenses, especially when the government applies an 85 per cent maximum rate for excess-pofits purposes. Prices and wages would have skyrocketed if wage and price control had not been instituted during the last war.

Those who are proposing excess-profits taxes at once seem to be pressing for more and more inflation on the one side and no immediate restraint on prices or wages on the other. The three things are interwined and interdependent. The mere announcement this week that an excess-profits tax bill, when passed next January, will be made retroactive through half of the year 1950 will produce a dangerous price situation. The President had announced that no bill was desired till next year but radical Democrats are pressing for a promise to have the law made to apply back through the second-half of 1950. Apart from the difficulty of administering such a law, the stimulus to inflation is obvious.

Principles Of Life

EVERY once-in-a-while, someone attempts to restate the principles of Americanism, the latest being an article in "Look," prepared by Sigurd S. Larmon and Thomas W. Lapham of the advertising firm of Young and Rubicam. It needs wide circulation, particularly among many of our youth who have never been taught that their country is not a geographic accident but the product of a philosophy.

It seems to me that the Larmon and Lapham statement avoids the central inspirational ideal of our civilization. Either the authors do not feel the hard core of American history or they avoided it lest it stimulate controversy. Yet, it is controversy we need over such a task as theirs. So let us quarrel.

I will take Point 1. in this article: "Each person is of importance and value as an individual.

"This is the cornerstone . . . the foundation of all our other beliefs in the individual's right to live his own life, to speak for himself, to choose and change his leaders..."

We must ask why "each person is of importance and value as an individual." Young people who have been trained in the natural and social sciences say that not the individual but that society is important.

It is impossible to avoid this issue between Marxism and Christianity; this quarrel between natural law and biologic theory. In a word, unless we accept, as Americans have for three centuries accepted, the concept that the individual man, as a creation of God, possesses qualities different and distinct from all else in nature, it is impossible to say that "each person is of importance and value as an individual."

He is of this nature by the grace of God, or he is no different from any other mammal—something expendable, removable, transferable, to be suppressed, if need be, by those who, in the struggle for existence, possess the power so to decide.

Dodging this issue does not help us, because whereas the Marxian concept recognizes man as a biologic thing, the Judaic-Christian concept recognizes man as a creature of God, and Americans incorporated that ideal of life in the Declaration of Independence, thus making it a fundamental principle of our existence as a nation.

So, the authors, Larmon and Lapham, say in their Point 3 that "we believe that all men are created equal," but created by whom? That they do not say. If there is a creation, there must be a God.

Why do we avoid that word?

Many today believe that all that exists is the product of chance; that in the fierce struggle for life that has marked the millions of years of the living in the universe, atoms, molecules and all else that they describe in precise terms joined together in millions of combinations and permutations and produced what exists, including man.

But if life is a chance, then no creator was necessary and therefore there can be no divine law, no morals, no ethics, no free will, no freedom of choice—only the constant and unending struggle for survival.

Alexander Hamilton answered that when he said:

"The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records. They are written as with a sunbeam, in the whole volume of human nature by the Hand of Divinity itself and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power."

The American ideal is that freedom comes from God; that we are free men and women, each as an individual, not because a constitution or an act of Congress made us so, but that God so willed it and stipulated natural law as the protectives of freedom.

The authors do say that "from the days of the Declaration of Independence and the writing of the Constitution, Americans have been wise enough to know that even though life, liberty, and other unallenable rights are granted to man by his Creator, they require some protection by man, himself."

But it is not that man requires some protection by man, but rather that he must live within the confines of natural law, for only thus can he be protected.

We have surely lost our way and anyone who seeks to lead us back to the white, paved road of truth that served us from Jamestown and Plymouth to this generation is constructive in our days.

Top Western Pa. Reds Are Jailed

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP)—The chairman of the communist party of Western Pennsylvania and two men identified as his lieutenants were jailed on sedition charges today.

Arrested under a 1939 state law were Steve Nelson, regional party head; James Dolsen, named as a correspondent for the communist party newspaper Daily Worker; and Andrew Onda, identified as an organizer assigned to enlist steel workers in the communist party.

City detectives arrested the trio in their homes before dawn on charges filed by Judge Michael A. Musmanno, Allegheny County jurist who is the Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania.

Musmanno followed up the arrests by accompanying city detectives who raided the communist party headquarters in a building just across the street from the city-county building in Pittsburgh. Party literature and records were seized.

Mahoney Denies Buffington Is Advisor

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—George P. Mahoney denied today that Delegate J. Raynold Buffington is his advisor on mental hospital problems, as Gov. Lane had described him.

Mahoney, who is fighting Lane for the Democratic nomination for governor, said that the Baltimore City delegate is "one of many interested citizens who are deeply concerned with the conditions existing in the mental hospitals."

In a campaign statement yesterday, Lane said that Buffington had proposed in 1947 that the money the Governor had allotted in his budget for food allowances at the mental hospitals be cut by $1,600,000.

Income Receipt Speedup Will Not Cut 1950 Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—Taxpayers can't save anything on their 1950 income tax bills by speeding up their income receipts, officials said today.

They blasted notions apparently held in some quarters that the higher individual income tax rates in the bill now near passage will apply only to income received after October 1.

Some confusion has arisen from the fact that the scheduled boost in tax withholding rates will be effective only on wages and salaries paid after October 1—that is, in 1950's last quarter.

Officials said, however, the October 1 date for application of new withholding rates will not matter on final settlement of 1950 income tax due next March 15.

Red Guerrillas Enter Greece From Albania

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Ministry of Public Order said tonight a communist guerrilla band of 20 men had entered Greece from Albania two nights ago.

The announcement said one member of the band had killed his leader and surrendered to the Greek authorities. He told them the group was an advanced intelligence group which had gone to Albania from Poland.

State PAC Neutral

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — The Maryland Political Action Committee of the CIO said today it still isn't taking sides in the Gov. Lane-George P. Mahoney political battle.

State CIO President Frank J. Bender has personally endorsed Mahoney for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. But the P.A.C. said it still is neutral.

The announcement came after a meeting yesterday of about 100 CIO leaders.

1950 Traffic Death Toll May Be Second Highest

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 (AP)—Unless the public mends its ways, 1950 will be the second worst year for traffic deaths in history.

That is the conclusion of National Safety Council engineers based upon statistics for the first seven months of this year. The council estimated today that 36,000 persons will be killed this year.

The council has estimated that 435 persons will die in highway accidents during the Labor Day weekend holiday.

tanks and killing several hundred men.

This red bid for Pusan by way of Masan was considered their second choice. The first was from Waegwan, more than 65 miles northwest of Pusan. That red push failed more than two weeks ago.

The third choice was from Pohang, the east coast anchor of the 120-mile battle perimeter. Today red forces were three to four miles north of Pohang. Yesterday they had penetrated within rifle range only to be rolled back by American and South Korean troops, aided by planes, tanks and naval fire power from warships close offshore.

Teddy's Grandson Will Wed Newswoman

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Archibald B. Roosevelt, Jr., grandson of the late Teddy Roosevelt, today took out a license to marry a 21-year-old Kingsport, Tenn., newspaperwoman.

Wedding plans were not announced.

The bride-to-be is Selwa Carmen Showker, who listed herself as a newspaper writer.

Gambler Cohen Gets Bum's Rush

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 31 (AP) — Texas Rangers gave Mickey Cohen the bum's rush out of the Lone Star State today because they said he was trying to set up a "gambling and racketeering empire."

The little West Coast gambler protested he was in Texas on legitimate business, hunting more money to support his "beautiful wife" and the men on his payroll.

The ranger roused him out of his hotel at Wichita Falls, took him to Fort Worth and put him on a westbound plane for California.

When the plane arrived here at the International Airport he was arrested by police and held at headquarters until his plane left for Los Angeles.

"I got to have more money," he complained while under arrest here.

"I have a beautiful wife, but she spends a lot of money. It costs a lot of money to live."

Air Parcel Post Rates Will Increase Nov. 1

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP) — Higher rates for air parcel post effective Nov. 1 were announced today by Postmaster General Donaldson.

The major increase will come on packages weighing more than one pound.

Donaldson said about half of all air parcel post packages weigh less than a pound and 75 per cent weigh less than two pounds.

Negro Woman Accused

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—The grand jury today charged a negro woman with getting $7,615 in relief money from the city by fraud.

She was listed as Catherine Robertson, also known as Catherine Smith, and investigators said she has five children.

State's Attorney J. Bernard Wells refused to give details of the accusation but indicated the woman had gotten two sets of relief payments under different names.

Tydings Hits 'Propaganda' In Opening His Campaign

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — Sen. Tydings (D-Md) said tonight that "some designing, irresponsible individuals" are directing an "intensive campaign of falsehood, mud-slinging and political propaganda" against him.

"The core of opposition propaganda," he said, "is that I, as chairman of a Senate subcommittee established to investigate charges of disloyalty in the State Department, have been covering up and 'whitewashing' for the administration."

"These charges are absolutely ridiculous," he said in opening his campaign for re-nomination to a fifth consecutive term.

"In truth, whatever my strength and weaknesses are, it never has occurred to me that anybody could question my love of country and my opposition to and contempt for all communists and fellow travelers, whether in or out of government."

Tydings' speech was prepared for delivery over a network of four television stations and nine radio stations in Baltimore, Washington and Cumberland.

He said that "you and I are suddenly confronted with propaganda to the effect that I xxx have even stooped so low as to connive to keep disloyal persons in the employ of our government.

"To add force to this propaganda, you have been told by utterly false rumor that I am doing this because I am to be appointed ambassador to Great Britain or that I am a candidate for vice president, or out to get something else," he said, adding:

"If anyone tries to tell this to you, you tell them it is a barefaced and unmitigated lie.

"I am a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate and that is where I hope to be xxx all during the next six-year term."

He spent much of his 30-minute speech in recounting how his subcommittee had investigated the charges by Sen. McCarthy that card-carrying communists had worked in the State Department — and how the committee had gone over the loyalty files of 81 persons named by McCarthy.

Blankety-Blank

BECAUSE I sometimes tote around more than two dollars, and because my house has demonstrated a tendency to get burgled, I have a license to carry a revolver—and sometimes do. But I certainly hope I never get into a spot where I have to use it, because I doubt whether I could hit the back wall of a brewery if I were twenty feet away.

Billy Rose

And it isn't because I haven't practiced aplenty. There's a makeshift pistol range back of my house up at Mt. Kisco, and over the years I guess I've used up enough ammunition to keep a small Balkan war going. But no matter how carefully I sight and squeeze the baby gun with the short nose, I've never been able to do much more to the bullseye than glare at it. And two will get you twenty that most of the Deadeye Dicks you read about can't do much better.

The U. S. Army evidently agrees with me about the difficulty in handling this tricky bit of mechanism effectively. Next time you see newsreel closeups of the kids who are doing the fighting in Korea, look closely and you'll see they're armed with rifles—Gerands and Browning automatics — but about the only place you'll see a sixgun will be in the holster of a two-star general.

I first learned that expert shooting with a revolver is more bull than bullseye when I moseyed down to Fort Worth 14 years ago to stage that city's Centennial Exposition. One of the whoopty-dos I put on, "The Last Frontier," was a wild west show, and the cast included the best hoss hands in the business—Galahads in 10-gallon hats who had won prize money in every rodeo from Pendleton to Madison Square Garden. Naturally, I wanted to include an exhibition of pistol shooting, and as a charter member of the Zane Grey Club I figured that almost any one of my bronco busters could pop a clay pipe out of a girl's mouth at 30 feet.

Well, I figured wrong. There was no one in the cast who could hit the pipe without taking the mouth with it, and I wound up having to import the national pistol champion —a skinny kid from Brooklyn who had learned his markmanship in a Coney Island shooing gallery.

This ineptness with what Damon Runyon used to call "the equalizer" is even more common among gangsters. Sure, the hoodlums of the '20's pistoled many a citizen, but almost invariably the victim was in a motor car, and the range a couple of inches from the nape of his neck. Whenever the corpse-to-be figured to be more than a few feet away, the killers used sawed-off shotguns with a three-foot spread, or tommyguns which produced a spray like a garden hose.

A few years back, an ex-bootlegger—now vice president of a national whiskey company—told me a story about Al Capone which illustrates my point. It seems Al was tipped off that one of his bodyguards was playing footsie with a rival gang, so he threw a banquet for 200 of his hired help, and after the feed made some complimentary remarks about the double-crosser and asked him to get up on the table and take a bow. As the guest of honor was bowing, the 200 hoodlums reached for their rods and let him have it. But when Capone—always the good bookkeeper—counted the bullet holes, he found only twenty in the carcass—180 of the triggermen had missed.

Years ago, I used to haunt the 42nd Street shooting galleries, and got so handy with a .22 rifle that I could knock the dancing celluloid ball off the stream of water five times out of ten. And I was plenty cocky about my marksmanship until one day when I went up to see Ben Hecht at his place in Nyack.

Hecht, fed up with my big talk about small arms, suggested I shoot it out with Charlie Lederer, the screen writer, who was spending the weekend with him.

"I've got nothing against Lederer," I said modestly. "Let him live."

"The target will be a tomato can at ten feet," said Ben, "and you and Charlie can take turns with my .22 automatic pistol."

We went out on the lawn and Lederer, sighting carefully hit the can two out of three times. I didn't even nick it.

Last month while vacationing in Hollywood, I lunched with Hecht and reminded him of the debacle which ended my career as a marksman.

"I might as well have been shooting blanks," I said.

"As a matter of fact," grinned Ben, "you were."

Britain Unveils Super-Jet Engine

LONDON (AP) — Britain unveiled the most powerful jet engine in the world today.

Its manufacturers asserted the engine has as much power as all four of the 3,500 horsepower piston engines which drive a Superfortress bomber.

The engine, named the Sapphire, already has been thoroughly flight-tested by equipping one of Britain's twin-jet meteor fighters with two of them.

The Meteor test plane was flown before correspondents at London airport but for security reasons its performance was kept largely under wraps.

Reports of the engine say it is powerful enough to make a fighter climb straight up. Low cloud cover prevented any such demonstration and the company declined to confirm this report, which has been circulating for months among military attaches in London.

Jan Zurakowski, test pilot for Armstrong Siddeley Company, makers of the engine, said the Meteor, equipped with Sapphire engines, "can outclimb any other fighter in the world — British, American, Russian."

World Wheat Market Reflects Dollar Troubles

Last year 42 nations entered an international agreement under which the flow of wheat in the world market was to be controlled. The United States, with much misgiving on the part of some leaders, joined the agreement. Now the first year of its operation is ended, and preliminary figures of the Canadian Bureau of Statistics indicate that the trade flow did not work out according to plan. The blame is not put on the plan itself, but on that familiar ailment, the dollar shortage.

The United States and Canada have disposed of far less than their export quotas of wheat. Australia and France, able to sell for sterling rather than dollars, got rid of almost their full quotas. The importing nations which fell furthest short of their allotted purchases were ones having severe dollar troubles, West Germany, Italy and Brazil.

To say that the United States fared better or worse under the agreement than it would have done in a free market over the past year would be hardly more than a guess. One thing seems to be confirmed. There is an incalculable obstruction to trade in the currency exchange troubles which divide the world into two monetary areas, with trade between them limited by the number of dollars which can be obtained. Until that dollar limitation can be overcome, the United States is going to have world marketing difficulties.

Live Long And Like It

Who would like to live to 110 or 120? This may become a common experience, the National Conference on Aging was told by Dr. Martin L. Gumpert, who specializes in the medical problems of old age. Medical and public health advances are steadily lengthening the average span of human life, so that before long centenarians may become frequent. Is this desirable prospect without drawbacks?

At present it may not seem so. Most old people have little with which to occupy their time, unless they have had the foresight to develop a hobby. They also have little or no money, and must depend on support by the state or the charity of relatives. Even the most devoted of descendants might be appalled at the prospect of supporting a grandparent for the 50 years between retirement at 70 and death at 120.

Longer life also is no guarantee of freedom from failing sight and hearing and enfeeblement of the mind. Jonathan Swift, more than 200 years ago, envisioned this development in "Gulliver's Travels." He described a race of "struldbrugs," doomed to immortality, and leading a ghastly existence of complete physical and mental helplessness.

To provide for the happiness of the aged is becoming a major social problem. "Live long and like it" clubs, providing lectures and entertainment, under the auspices of the public library or civic minded private organizations, are one answer. But whatever is done for them, most aging people should anticipate the future, and make some provision for mental occupation when they retire.

The Rain-Makers

Those who scoffed when New York City hired an official rain-maker last winter may yet have to change their tune. The rain-maker, Dr. Wallace E. Howell of Harvard University, has been retained for a second six-month period. Even Dr. Howell is not sure how much credit he should claim, but the fact of the weather is that rainfall in the Catskill watersheds, whence comes New York's water supply, was six per cent above normal for the first half of this year. Both the city and the meteorologist wants to run the experiment over a full year, so as to cover all the seasons.

Commenting on rainfall and water supply, Life magazine recently reported that of the rainfall which drops annually on the United States only two per cent is actually consumed by man, including what is used for irrigation. It also said that man wastes an amount equal to half of what is used. As for the rest of the rainfall, 26 per cent of the total flows back to the sea in streams and 71 per cent is absorbed by the earth or by vegetation, or evaporated back into the air.

This might suggest that the ultimate solution of water supply problems is to be found not in rain-making but in obtaining more usefulness from the rain which falls. This amount seems to remain constant; the Weather Bureau reports that in 80 years of record keeping no significant variation in average anual rainfall has been detected. If we could merely save the one per cent now wasted, water problems might be solved for many years to come.

Better Routes

An express highway, when considered solely as a means of expediting traffic and carrying more of it, seems like a simple proposition.

There are several angles to be considered when planning one of these arterial roads, however. Bottlenecks at each end must be avoided, so that already over-crowded streets or roads may not be still further burdened. A long look ahead is necessary to calculate an increase in traffic which may require the addition of several more lanes. Changes are made in real estate values, too, resulting sometimes in smaller tax returns. These problems are eminently worth solving, however, when one considers the benefits to motorists and the public in general. Travel by express highway is cheaper and safer, involving less mental strain for driver and passenger, and truck shipments are speeded up, reducing costly delays.

Travelers who make use of the express highways strongly advocate more of them. The contrast between the free flow of traffic on these roads and the constant delays caused by slow-moving vehicles on conventional highways of two or three lanes is glaring. Bottlenecks or no bottlenecks, most drivers prefer to go express.

September

Some great events in the history of the United States occurred in the month of September, including the Battle of Lake Erie, the Battle of Lake Champlain, the meeting of the First Continental Congress, Washington's Farewell Address and the writing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Yet it is none of these events which is celebrated in September. When the average American thinks of September's arrival he thinks of Labor Day, the last holiday of the summer. Always observed on the first Monday in September, Labor Day provides opportunity to enjoy a long weekend vacation trip by automobile.

The Case Of An Inventor

MOST OF US take the dental inlay for granted but there is a long story behind the invention and the inventor, William H. Taggart. His fame rested upon a single contribution—namely, the cast inlay technic that revolutionized prosthetic dentistry. He patented the process which proved to be an unfortunate mistake.

Taggert was an excellent dentist with a desire to improve everything he did. According to Dr. M. D. K. Bremner, superior skill enabled Taggart to build a large practice. He dreamed of a filling that could be made outside the mouth, inserted into the cavity and then cemented into place. This was the cast inlay and he devoted much of his spare time and energy to perfecting it. After 15 years of experimentation the device was completed, and in 1907 he described it to a group of dentists in Brooklyn, New York.

This new way of filling teeth appealed to his colleagues because it would free them from the toil of malleting adhesive gold. Taggart was willing to give the idea to the dental profession but thought he could obtain compensation by selling the supplies and casting machine. But he was an inventor and not a manufacturer or merchant and could not begin to fill the orders that poured in. This problem would have been solved had he accepted a royalty offer from a large dental firm but he was adamant. Soon other contrivances flooded the market, which sold at a price far below Taggart's.

It was at this time that the United States Dental Protective association came to his rescue. Its president, Dr. J. N. Crouse, proposed a license plan in which each dentist was to pay $15 for the right to make the inlay. There were 15,000 men in practice at that time from whom Taggart could realize close to a quarter of a million dollars and each year he would obtain additional fees from recent graduates. Taggart agreed but Crouse was as poor a promoter as Taggart was a business man. Only a handful of dentists subscribed.

Then Taggart decided to take matters into his own hands. He sent an ultimatum to dentists using his technic, demanding $150 for a license; a delay of five days increased the price to $250. If the dentists failed to pay he would bring suit against them demanding a share of all the profits on inlays for the last 20 years. He felt sure of himself inasmuch as he had won a local verdict along this line in a Chicago district court.

This matter brought together the members of the profession to fight the case. The only hope for the defense was that some one other than Taggart might have made the same discovery at an earlier date. The lawyers found that 10 years before Taggart's discovery, Dr. B. F. Filbrook, an obscure dentist from Dennison, Ia., had reported on a similar device before a handful of dentists. A copy of the secretary's report, filed in the library of the Iowa State Dental school, was located in the basement. Taggart had gambled and lost. Renown often comes to men posthumously and he is no exception. Some dentists list him after Wells and Morton of anesthesia fame and Researchers Black and Miller among the "greats" of dentistry.

PERFUME DERMATITIS

E. P. writes: I use considerable perfume and cologne and apply it directly to the skin since it leaves rings on clothing. Some one told me that I can get a skin disease from doing this. Could this happen?

REPLY

Considering the millions who use these preparations they must be relatively safe because only a few encounter reactions. Some individuals are sensitive to one or more of the ingredients of perfume or toilet waters. Others become sensitized to the sun through some substance in the product such as oil of bergamot. As a result, an eruption occurs over the exposed areas that have been touched with the cosmetic.

HIGH HEMOGLOBIN

S. J. writes: What is the remedy for a hemoglobin of 107?

REPLY

Nothing need be done unless the condition is producing symptoms. As a rule the amount of iron exceeds your level before this occurs. There are medicines that lower the blood count and blood transfusions from time to time also help.

HEART TERMS

B. T. writes: Is a dilated heart the same as an enlarged heart?

REPLY

Technically, no. There are two forms of cardiac enlargement. In one the organ is dilated like a balloon and in the other the increase in size is due to thickening of the heart muscle.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Averell Harriman Gave Truman First Peep At MacArthur's Statement; Navy Recalls That MacArthur Vetoed Its Plan To Occupy Formosa In 1944

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Here is a play-by-play account of what went on behind-the-scenes in the now historic rebuke of General MacArthur by President Truman.

First inkling that MacArthur had sent a message to the Veterans of Foreign Wars on the delicate question of Formosa came on Thursday, Aug. 24, when Carlton Kent of the Chicago Sun-Times queried Roger Tubby, State Department press relations office, as to whether the MacArthur statement had been cleared by the State Department.

Tubby passed the query on to the White House and the Defense Department, found that neither had either seen or heard of the MacArthur statement. It had been sent direct to newspapers in a personal letter on Aug. 21 with a release date for Aug. 28. This was in direct violation of the White House directive laid down during the famous Henry Wallace-Jimmie Byrnes row, after which it was decreed that no statement on foreign policy could be published by any official without clearance.

President Truman himself did not see the MacArthur statement until Saturday, Aug. 26, during a conference scheduled to hear the report of Navy chief Admiral Forrest Sherman and Army chief General Joe Collins, following their return from Tokyo.

At this conference, Averell Harriman handed the President a copy of the MacArthur statement. Harriman, who is part owner of Newsweek magazine, had obtained a copy of the press release.

Harriman Has Explained

Harriman told Truman that he had carefully explained American policy to MacArthur during his recent visit to Tokyo and that there was no reason for his misunderstanding it. Actually Harriman's trip was largely inspired by MacArthur's urge to occupy Formosa with American troops and his much-publicized hand-kissing visit to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek. It was felt that Harriman could diplomatically explain that the United States must work through the United Nations in regard to Formosa and that if the United States got embroiled in any conflict with China the Korean war would then last indefinitely, for the Chinese communists would have an excuse to pour troops into Korea.

Truman read the MacArthur statement and hit the ceiling. Without asking Secretary Acheson or any others present for their opinion, he directed Secretary of Defense Johnson to order MacArthur to withdraw his statement.

"I am charged by the Constitution with the sole responsibility for the conduct of our foreign policy," he told those in the room. "There can only be one voice of authority in expressing that policy. We can't have two, or three or ten people acting as official spokesmen. This is a fundamental rule.

"In the case of Formosa, we cannot act unilaterally," the President continued. "We must continue our efforts through the United Nations.

"If we let the MacArthur message go unchallenged every diplomat throughout the world will believe—despite our denials—that MacArthur was really speaking for the White House. The diplomats will be convinced we're floating a trial balloon. No diplomat would ever imagine MacArthur would presume to make such a statement without the direct authority of the White House."

Cable To MacArthur

The cable which Secretary Johnson immediately dispatched to MacArthur read pretty much as follows: "The President of the United States directs that you immediately recall your statement addressed to the Veterans of Foreign Wars containing your views regarding Formosa. Your statement is not in accord with the established foreign policy of the United States as enunciated by the President."

At this writing no reply has been received.

Though Secretary Johnson has agreed with MacArthur on Formosa and once worked backstage to overrule the State Department on Formosa, other high military men in the Pentagon Building now take a different view. This holds true of many in both the Army and Navy.

MacArthur Once Banned Formosa

In fact, Navy strategists are now recalling that during 1944 the Navy wanted MacArthur to occupy Formosa as a step toward bombing Japan and that MacArthur was vigorously opposed.

Plans for taking over Formosa were worked out in great detail by Admiral Nimitz in 1944 and approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington. But MacArthur, who was determined to liberate his old love, the Philippines, overruled them.

Chief reason, however, that U. S. military men disagree with MacArthur on Formosa is that the Joint Chiefs of Staff are now among the eagerest people in Washington to avoid any conflict which would cause Chinese troops to be sent into Korea.

If Chinese troops stay out of Korea, there seems to be a pretty good chance the war will be over early this winter. But if the Chinese pour their vast hordes into Korea, the war could last almost indefinitely.

On top of this, U. S. Intelligence reported vitally important information to the Joint Chiefs of Staff last week—namely that Mao Tse-Tung and ex-Foreign Minister Molotov were at odds over Korea and Formosa. Molotov has been urging Mao, according to this information, to intervene in Korea and also invade Formosa, but Mao has hesitated.

These reports indicated that the rift between Russia and China was inceasing, and that there might be some chance of patching up relations between China and the United States.

This information, of course, was not definite. No information out of China can be definite these days. But it seemed convincing enough so that top U. S. military men are most anxious not to cause any further rift with China now.

Supporting this information is the fact that Mao had twice postponed the date for a Chinese invasion of Formosa, and now has postponed it a third time to Sept. 15.

If the Chinese communists do send an armada of junks across the straits of Formosa and if hundreds of them are sunk by American airplanes and naval vessels, the reaction in China will be such that a Chinese invasion of Korea is almost inevitable.

Thus, the military men argue, we might be able to hold Formosa but be thrown out of Korea.

Good News

WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA

THE folly of making forecasts about this Korean war can be simply illustrated. After spending some days in the line with the hospitable 1st Battalion of the 27th Infantry Regiment, this reporter briefly returned to the rear. Here, among the big wheels as the brass is called in this war, the balloon was up. A great and menacing enemy effort was momentarily expected.

Next morning, however, a trip back to the front revealed no scenes of bloody carnage or last ditch stands. Instead, the enemy had begun a general withdrawal precisely where the big wheels had anticipated a massive onslaught. And by that afternoon my friends of the 1st Battalion were loudly rejoicing because the big wheels felt safe enough to pull the 27th Regiment out of the line, send it halfway across Korea, and reunite it after many weeks with its parent division, the 25th.

While one therefore wishes to avoid prophesy, it is none the less allowable to report that the men who do the actual fighting believe that the first great crisis is over in Korea. If they are right, the danger of a full-scale catastrophe has passed at last.

No one at home seems to realize how great that danger has been. Yet not so many days ago, Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker called for total, immediate mobilization of all air transport in Japan, in order to evacuate as many American troops as possible after an enemy breakthrough that was expected in twelve hours. We then had no reserves to cover a withdrawal and no prepared positions to withdraw to. If our incredibly thin defense line had been breached that day, even the greatest of air evacuation could hardly have prevented the loss of half our men and most of our equipment in Korea. Such was the danger.

Line Still Thin

Even now, the line remains alarmingly thin. Even now, the line's security mainly depends on certain small crack outfits like the 27th Regiment and the First Marine Brigade, which are pushed into the line like corks wherever a break theatens. The men who do the fighting feel new confidence not because of any high level strategical gains, but because they consider the North Koreans are growing visibly weaker while we grow visibly stronger.

This recently altered balance of strength was strikingly evident in the fighting this reporter has just seen with the 27th Regiment's 1st Battalion. In what may have been its culminating effort as a cork, the regiment had been used to meet a serious enemy threat on the main highway to Taegu, the provisional Korean capitol and hinge of our defense line. Although the North Koreans were locally driven back by the 27th's aggressive exploitation of our superior artillery fire power and air superiority, the enemy commanders continued trying for a breakthrough for five more days before they at length withdrew.

But they had no air. They used their armor gingerly. They employed their artillery largely for counter-battery fire. They were even fairly sparing with their mortars. And the few prisoners taken testified that the North Korean divisions on this front were feeding their men only once every two or three days, and were hardly able to keep up their stocks of small arms and machine gun ammunition.

All this of course resulted from the attrition imposed by our resistance, plus the increasing isolation of the battlefield by our air power. The North Koreans are still being supplied by the Soviets, but they are more and more unable to get the supplies to the front.

Strength Being Returned

While the North Koreans are thus losing their offensive capability more rapidly than seemed possible, our own units are at last getting back the regiments, battalions and rifle companies which "economy" docked from them. When people here speak of an American division, they are positively beginning to mean the real thing, and not a poor enfeebled skeleton with "courtesy of Louis A. Johnson" written all over its emaciation.

With 2,500 estimated aircraft within range of our Japanese bases, with great armies in Siberia, with satellite power in China, the Kremlin can of course reverse this whole new tendency of the Korean war in the short space of a single night.

But if the Kremlin does not choose to intervene here more directly, our existing forces are now probably sufficient to contain the whole strength the North Koreans can muster. If this is true, even a fairly small additional force, if well equipped, can rather quickly strike at the enemy's unprotected rear, either by direct breakthrough, or by securing a beachhead, or even from an airhead. And once the North Korean rear has been successfully attacked, only the nasty trick of mopping up will then remain.

In short, we might get out of this mess in Korea rather more quickly than seemed likely when catas-

Retrocctive Profits Tax May Stimulate Inflation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 — When the Chrysler Corporation the other day voluntarily raised the pay of its workers even though it was not provided for in the union contract, and was not the result of any request from the Auto Workers Union, there were many persons who wondered just what motivated the step.

Here in Washington, where labor unrest is getting to be matter of more and more concern, the Chrysler action was viewed as significant in many ways. The first impression was that the company had taken the step as a means of demonstrating that it is continuing, as it did many years before there were unions in its plants, to make wage increases whenever conditions warranted. There were some critics here however, who felt that the move might stimulate an inflationary trend.

The truth about the situation, it now develops, is that the simple and fundamental provocations of competition between Chrysler and General Motors brought about the wage increase.

Maintain Differential

Chrysler officials state that, due to the recent General Motors five-year contract, the wages paid came to eight cents per hour higher than those of Chrysler. So, by raising its workers' wages ten cents an hour, the Chrysler Corporation hopes to maintain a two-cent differential in favor of its own employes. The statement is made by Chrysler spokesmen that they have always maintained a differential in wages of about two cents better than G. M. The reason given is the desire to get premium labor.

Curiously enough, an employer nowadays cannot raise wages of his own initiative. He must call in the union representatives and get their consent, or else it's an "unfair labor practice" under the law. Sometimes the union officials use the occasion to ask for more than is being offered and negotiations ensue which permit the union officials to claim credit for the raise.

In the Chrysler instance, the company officials set forth their plan to the union for a raise of ten cents an hour and asked immediate acceptance or rejection, stating their intention to make public the offer in either event. The union officials agreed and the announcement of acceptance was issued.

Meanwhile a small strike has developed at the Ford Motor Company, some of whose employes feel they should be given an increase, too even though the contract doesn't call for it at this time. The strike is called "unauthorized" by the union but sympathy is expressed publicly just the same by the union officials for the point of view of the strikers — something that doesn't augur well for the sanctity of contracts with "no strike" pledges in them.

The General Motors Corporation, in its five-year contract signed before the Korean war, stipulates progressive increases in wages and an upward rise based on a cost-of-living index of the federal government. It remains yet to be seen whether workers will accept a serious downturn in the index as a basis some day for a wage cut.

Contribution To Inflation

What lurks in the background of the entire situation at present is the possibility that a wave of wage increases will be set off due to competition for manpower, and that this will contribute to the inflationary spiral.

The most serious prospect of an inflation panic may come out of the proposed passage of an excess-profits tax law. The big companies with large profits will be tempted to increase wages and other expenses, especially when the government applies an 85 per cent maximum rate for excess-pofits purposes. Prices and wages would have skyrocketed if wage and price control had not been instituted during the last war.

Those who are proposing excess-profits taxes at once seem to be pressing for more and more inflation on the one side and no immediate restraint on prices or wages on the other. The three things are interwined and interdependent. The mere announcement this week that an excess-profits tax bill, when passed next January, will be made retroactive through half of the year 1950 will produce a dangerous price situation. The President had announced that no bill was desired till next year but radical Democrats are pressing for a promise to have the law made to apply back through the second-half of 1950. Apart from the difficulty of administering such a law, the stimulus to inflation is obvious.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Principles Of Life

EVERY once-in-a-while, someone attempts to restate the principles of Americanism, the latest being an article in "Look," prepared by Sigurd S. Larmon and Thomas W. Lapham of the advertising firm of Young and Rubicam. It needs wide circulation, particularly among many of our youth who have never been taught that their country is not a geographic accident but the product of a philosophy.

It seems to me that the Larmon and Lapham statement avoids the central inspirational ideal of our civilization. Either the authors do not feel the hard core of American history or they avoided it lest it stimulate controversy. Yet, it is controversy we need over such a task as theirs. So let us quarrel.

I will take Point 1. in this article: "Each person is of importance and value as an individual.

"This is the cornerstone . . . the foundation of all our other beliefs in the individual's right to live his own life, to speak for himself, to choose and change his leaders..."

We must ask why "each person is of importance and value as an individual." Young people who have been trained in the natural and social sciences say that not the individual but that society is important.

It is impossible to avoid this issue between Marxism and Christianity; this quarrel between natural law and biologic theory. In a word, unless we accept, as Americans have for three centuries accepted, the concept that the individual man, as a creation of God, possesses qualities different and distinct from all else in nature, it is impossible to say that "each person is of importance and value as an individual."

He is of this nature by the grace of God, or he is no different from any other mammal—something expendable, removable, transferable, to be suppressed, if need be, by those who, in the struggle for existence, possess the power so to decide.

Dodging this issue does not help us, because whereas the Marxian concept recognizes man as a biologic thing, the Judaic-Christian concept recognizes man as a creature of God, and Americans incorporated that ideal of life in the Declaration of Independence, thus making it a fundamental principle of our existence as a nation.

So, the authors, Larmon and Lapham, say in their Point 3 that "we believe that all men are created equal," but created by whom? That they do not say. If there is a creation, there must be a God.

Why do we avoid that word?

Many today believe that all that exists is the product of chance; that in the fierce struggle for life that has marked the millions of years of the living in the universe, atoms, molecules and all else that they describe in precise terms joined together in millions of combinations and permutations and produced what exists, including man.

But if life is a chance, then no creator was necessary and therefore there can be no divine law, no morals, no ethics, no free will, no freedom of choice—only the constant and unending struggle for survival.

Alexander Hamilton answered that when he said:

"The sacred rights of mankind are not to be rummaged for among old parchments or musty records. They are written as with a sunbeam, in the whole volume of human nature by the Hand of Divinity itself and can never be erased or obscured by mortal power."

The American ideal is that freedom comes from God; that we are free men and women, each as an individual, not because a constitution or an act of Congress made us so, but that God so willed it and stipulated natural law as the protectives of freedom.

The authors do say that "from the days of the Declaration of Independence and the writing of the Constitution, Americans have been wise enough to know that even though life, liberty, and other unalienable rights are granted to man by his Creator, they require some protection by man, himself."

But it is not that man requires some protection by man, but rather that he must live within the confines of natural law, for only thus can he be protected.

We have surely lost our way and anyone who seeks to lead us back to the white, paved road of truth that served us from Jamestown and Plymouth to this generation is constructive in our days.

Blankety-Blank

BECAUSE I sometimes tote around more than two dollars, and because my house has demonstrated a tendency to get burgled, I have a license to carry revolver—and sometimes do. But I certainly hope I never get into a spot where I have to use it, because I doubt whether I could hit the back wall of a brewery if I were twenty feet away.

Billy Rose

And it isn't because I haven't practiced aplenty. There's a makeshift pistol range back of my house up at Mt. Kisco, and over the years I guess I've used up enough ammunition to keep a small Balkan war going. But no matter how carefully I sight and squeeze the baby gun with the short nose, I've never been able to do much more to the bullseye than glare at it. And two will get you twenty that most of the Dead-eye Dicks you read about can't do much better.

The U. S. Army evidently agrees with me about the difficulty in handling this tricky bit of mechanism effectively. Next time you see newsreel closeups of the kids who are doing the fighting in Korea, look closely and you'll see they're armed with rifles—Gerands and Browning automatics — but about the only place you'll see a six-gun will be in the holster of a two-star general.

I first learned that expert shooting with a revolver is more bull than bullseye when I moseyed down to Fort Worth 14 years ago to stage that city's Centennial Exposition. One of the whoopty-dos I put on, "The Last Frontier," was a wild west show, and the cast included the best hoss hands in the business—Galahads in 10-gallon hats who had won prize money in every rodeo from Pendleton to Madison Square Garden. Naturally, I wanted to include an exhibition of pistol shooting, and as a charter member of the Zane Grey Club I figured that almost any one of my bronco busters could pop a clay pipe out of a girl's mouth at 30 feet.

Well, I figured wrong. There was no one in the cast who could hit the pipe without taking the mouth with it, and I wound up having to import the national pistol champion —a skinny kid from Brooklyn who had learned his markmanship in a Coney Island shooing gallery.

This ineptness with what Damon Runyon used to call "the equalizer" is even more common among gangsters. Sure, the hoodlums of the '20's pistoled many a citizen, but almost invariably the victim was in a motor car, and the range a couple of inches from the nape of his neck. Whenever the corpse-to-be figured to be more than a few feet away, the killers used sawed-off shotguns with a three-foot spread, or tommy-guns which produced a spray like a garden hose.

A few years back, an ex-bootlegger—now vice president of a national whiskey company—told me a story about Al Capone which illustrates my point. It seems Al was tipped off that one of his bodyguards was playing footsie with a rival gang, so he threw a banquet for 200 of his hired help, and after the feed made some complimentary remarks about the double-crosser and asked him to get up on the table and take a bow. As the guest of honor was bowing, the 200 hoodlums reached for their rods and let him have it. But when Capone—always the good bookkeeper—counted the bullet holes, he found only twenty in the carcass—180 of the triggermen had missed.

Years ago, I used to haunt the 42nd Street shooting galleries, and got so handy with a .22 rifle that I could knock the dancing celluloid ball off the stream of water five times out of ten. And I was plenty cocky about my marksmanship until one day when I went up to see Ben Hecht at his place in Nyack.

Hecht, fed up with my big talk about small arms, suggested I shoot it out with Charlie Lederer, the screen writer, who was spending the weekend with him.

"I've got nothing against Lederer," I said modestly. "Let him live."

"The target will be a tomato can at ten feet," said Ben, "and you and Charlie can take turns with my .22 automatic pistol."

We went out on the lawn and Lederer, sighting carefully hit the can two out of three times. I didn't even nick it.

Last month while vacationing in Hollywood, I lunched with Hecht and reminded him of the debacle which ended my career as a marksman.

"I might as well have been shooting blanks," I said.

"As a matter of fact," grinned Ben, "you were."

Britain Unveils Super-Jet Engine

LONDON (AP) — Britain unveiled the most powerful jet engine in the world today.

Its manufacturers asserted the engine has as much power as all four of the 3,500 horsepower piston engines which drive a Superfortress bomber.

The engine, named the Sapphire, already has been thoroughly flight-tested by equipping one of Britain's twin-jet meteor fighters with two of them.

The Meteor test plane was flown before correspondents at London airport but for security reasons its performance was kept largely under wraps.

Reports of the engine say it is powerful enough to make a fighter climb straight up. Low cloud cover prevented any such demonstration and the company declined to confirm this report, which has been circulating for months among military attaches in London.

Jan Zurakowski, test pilot for Armstrong Siddleley Company, makers of the engine, said the Meteor, equipped with Sapphire engines, "can outclimb any other fighter in the world — British, American, Russian."

trophe still imminently threatened. As a nation, we shall then meet our greatest test, whether to continue to plod down the hard road to survival, or whether to listen again to the [illegible] politicians who have tried so hard to cover up the origin and greatness of the danger here, who even now are shamelessly concealing the grim toll of our dead, wounded and missing whose blood has been the heavy price of grandstand "economizing."

THE LONG LEAN LOOK WITH SPECIAL EMPHASIS ON UNUSUAL NECKLINES IS NOW BEING FEATURED IN PARIS

By FLORENCE MILLS
AP Newsfeatures

PARIS—A long lean look with pecial emphasis on unusual and ften very revealing necklines is eing featured by Jeanne Lanvin is fall.

The leanness is seen mainly in ay and cocktail dresses which are nodeled skintight to the figure in n unbroken line. She uses no belts nd indents the waist by paneling r darting.

One number had such a sleek fit he zipper ran from under the arm ight down to the thigh.

Some skirts, however, splash into ullness at the sides just above the nee.

The embroidery for which this ld-established fashion house is amous is sprinkled over every type f dress and even on coats.

The accent is on white and gold with embroidery in tiny rhinestones, ugle beads, gold and silver thread and pieces of mirror mingled with ilver sequins.

Her necklines vary greatly. Topcoats and day dresses have standup, shell-shaped collars, often supported by a bright-colored taffeta scarf tied into a huge, stiff bow in ront of the neck.

Cocktail dresses in velvet and wool have a jagged "broken eggshell" effect, high in front and dipping to waistdeep vee at the back. She has an even more naked look for evening—quite backless and strapless.

One of the daintiest of her slimkirted cocktail dresses was in a ery fine grey worsted, embroidered o within a foot of the hem, with pider webs spun from very tiny hinestones.

Lanvin shows one of the prettiest ollections of debutante dresses. She nakes them all in white tulle with normous crinoline skirts looped vith pink or blue satin ribbon and cattered with roses. The strapless ecklines are softened with drapery r with fans of pleating which droop ver the bust.

In contrast to the slim line of ll her dresses, Lanvin shows trenendous coats with whole wads of leats in the back of them. She has new treatment for the sleeves. They are cut bell shaped, then lashed up the middle to just below he shoulder so as to show their uxurious nutria or squirrel lining.

One topcoat in violet broadcloth ad an immense hood unbuttoned ver the crown and folded down to ecome a huge cape collar, emroidered in scroll design with fine old thread. Long, violet suede oves were embroidered to match.

With all the dressier models, trenendous blue and white diamond arrings were worn. They were tearrop-shaped and covered practically he entire ear.

Brush up on your knowledge of movie and theater etiquette. Rate yourself on today's eight points.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

YOU CAN substitute poise for unsureness, and sail through any social occasion with grace, just by boning up on the manners and customs that cover it. When you want to make a good impression, knowing the gracious, fine points of conduct is just as important as grooming your appearance to perfection.

An occasional, quick brush-up on the accepted ways of action in various situations will prevent any little frictions from occurring that might rob you of enjoyment during the fall and winter social whirl. How about taking your movie and theater brush-up today? Mark the following points T. for true and F. for false.

1. The lady holds her own ticket of admission. T. or F. 2. A woman always checks her coat when her escort checks his. T. or F. 3. Your escort always precedes you down the aisle and enters the row of seats ahead of you. T. or F.

4. If you are with another couple, the ladies sit together. T. or F. 5. Must you remove your hat- T. or F. 6. During the performance you may make remarks providing they are amusing. T. or F. 7. A woman does not have to stand up to let people pass her seat. T or F.

8. When your escort or anyone else fails to observe a small amenity, you should point this out. T. or F.

Now, see how you made out. All your answers will be correct, if you have kept in mind that the gracious acting way is the right way.

1. False, because it is gracious for your escort to assume all the responbility for an evening's entertainment. 2. False: a woman keeps her coat aound her (unless it is wet) as a protection from chill drafts. 3. True and false: a woman preceds her escort down the aisle unless there is no usher present, but her escort always enters the row of seats ahead of her to clear the way.

4. True: the ladies sit together with the escorts on each side. 5. True: you must remove your hat unless it is as head-conforming as your hair. False: talking of any kind is unforgivably-bad conduct. 7. False: for everybody's sake, including your own, stand up promptly and cheerfully.

8. False: consideration of the feelings of others is the first rule of etiquette in any situation.

Today it is fun to present a man who has written a column on comic strips for the Encyclopedia Brittanica . . . But to forty million readers everydays he's better known as the author of Li'l Abner.

He's the only living creator of a national youth holiday—Sadie Hawkins' Day, usually the Saturday after Armistice . . . Not only celebrated in America but also observed in Tokyo, Scandinavia, Germany and France.

He's the only comic strip author who's created a comic strip within a comic strip — FEARLESS FOSDICK.

The Shmoo, Lower Slobovia, Daisy Mae and Lena the Hyena are now part of the American idiom.

Mr. Capp, who looks quite a lot like his own creation, with a shock of hair, mischievous grin and heavy black eyebrows, is the President of a business which licenses over 101 different items, using Li'l Abner characters . . . Everything from towels, soap and wash cloth to doughnut making machines.

But he thinks cartoonists should be Presidents of the Yewnited States, too!

Of this column he says: "It was fun to write without having to draw pictures."

A Cartoonist Should Be President

By AL CAPP

THIS IS THE season when Americans submit themselves to their fellow-Americans, as candidates for public office.

This is the season when those of us who aren't candidates (and there are mighty few of us left) carefully consider the qualifications of those who are.

Soon we will be making senators, governors and representatives of businessmen, lawyers and industrialists.

Every profession will be honored — except the cartoonist.

It has never occurred to anyone that being a cartoonist qualifies a man for dealing with huge numbers of his fellowmen and yet, if you think it over, there is no profession which qualifies a man more.

AL CAPP

A lawyer, to be successful enough to be nominated for public office, must know the written laws of his people.

A cartoonist must know the emotion of his people, the unwritten laws, statute books.

A lawyer has it all spelled out for him, in the statue books.

It is not spelled out for the cartoonist.

He must instinctively understand what is in the minds and hearts of people.

The lawyer must beguile and convince one judge at a time.

The cartoonist must plead his case before forty million judges, every day and on Sunday, too, all the time.

The businessman has something to sell that you can touch, like an automibile or a chocolate bar or a suit of clothes.

A businessman has something to sell that people know they need. And that makes it easier.

The cartoonist has something to sell that people do not know they need, and yet they need the laughter that the cartoonist has to sell, more than they need anything else. And although you cannot touch it with your hands, this laughter is made of real things—it's made of the cartoonist's understanding of what you will laugh at, what you consider sacred, his understanding of how you feel about war, about peace, about your golf game, about your secretary, your relatives, your politics, your neighbor's politics, your kids, and yourself.

For only by understanding all this about all of you can he make you laugh.

• — • — •

Once elected to office, the public official may, if he's that kind of a fellow, serve the privileged interest, ignore the common people—and get away with it.

Once elected to the comic page, the cartoonist must serve all the people, common and uncommon, privileged and underprivileged, or its away with him.

A cartoonist cannot disregard the wishes of his "constituents" for a single day. The cartoonist is the real servant of the people.

Of all the American professions, the profession of cartooning best qualifies a man for finding out what everybody wants, and giving it to 'em. And that's what good government is, isn't it?

Why doesn't somebody nominate a cartoonist for President?

It'd be a sure thing. We've been campaigning for votes every day of our lives, and we've always won by landslides!

At this time plans will be formulated for a membership lawn party to be held at the home of Mrs. Lena Kauffman, LaVale. The new chairmen are to give their reports and other chairmen will be appointed.

The weekly card party will be resumed following the business session. Mrs. Robert Goldfine is chairman of the Hostess committee. At subsequent parties refreshments will be served at the conclusion of play.

If you carelessly made the mistake of pressing your suit collar on the right side, with resulting shininess, try saturating a cloth with hot vinegar and then wringing it out. Pat and sponge the collar with this cloth, and while still damp, press on the wrong side.

THE LONG LEAN LOOK WITH SPECIAL EMPHASIS ON UNUSUAL NECKLINES IS NOW BEING FEATURED IN PARIS

By FLORENCE MILLS
AP Newsfeatures

PARIS—A long lean look with special emphasis on unusual and often very revealing necklines is eing featured by Jeanne Lanvin is fall.

The leanness is seen mainly in day and cocktail dresses which are modeled skintight to the figure in an unbroken line. She uses no belts and indents the waist by paneling or darting.

One number had such a sleek fit the zipper ran from under the arm right down to the thigh.

Some skirts, however, splash into fullness at the sides just above the knee.

The embroidery for which this old-established fashion house is famous is sprinkled over every type of dress and even on coats.

The accent is on white and gold with embroidery in tiny rhinestones, bugle beads, gold and silver thread and pieces of mirror mingled with silver sequins.

Her necklines vary greatly. Topcoats and day dresses have stand-up, shell-shaped collars, often supported by a bright-colored taffeta scarf tied into a huge, stiff bow in front of the neck.

Cocktail dresses in velvet and wool have a jagged "broken eggshell" effect, high in front and dipping to a waistdeep vee at the back. She has an even more naked lóok for evening—quite backless and strapless.

One of the daintiest of her slim-skirted cocktail dresses was in a very fine grey worsted, embroidered to within a foot of the hem, with spider webs spun from very tiny rhinestones.

Lanvin shows one of the prettiest collections of debutante dresses. She makes them all in white tulle with enormous crinoline skirts looped with pink or blue satin ribbon and scattered with roses. The strapless necklines are softened with drapery or with fans of pleating which droop over the bust.

In contrast to the slim line of all her dresses, Lanvin shows tremendous coats with whole wads of pleats in the back of them. She has a new treatment for the sleeves. They are cut bell shaped, then slashed up the middle to just below the shoulder so as to show their luxurious nutria or squirrel lining.

One topcoat in violet broadcloth had an immense hood unbuttoned over the crown and folded down to become a huge cape collar, embroidered in scroll design with fine gold thread. Long, violet suede gloves were embroidered to match.

With all the dressier models, tremendous blue and white diamond earrings were worn. They were teardrop-shaped and covered practically the entire ear.

Brush up on your knowledge of movie and theater etiquette. Rate yourself on today's eight points.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

YOU CAN substitute poise for unsureness, and sail through any social occasion with grace, just by boning up on the manners and customs that cover it. When you want to make a good impression, knowing the gracious, fine points of conduct is just as important as grooming your appearance to perfection.

An occasional, quick brush-up on the accepted ways of action in various situations will prevent any little frictions from occurring that might rob you of enjoyment during the fall and winter social whirl. How about taking your movie and theater brush-up today? Mark the following points T. for true and F. for false.

1. The lady holds her own ticket of admission. T. or F. 2. A woman always checks her coat when her escort checks his. T. or F. 3. Your escort always precedes you down the aisle and enters the row of seats ahead of you. T. or F.

4. If you are with another couple, the ladies sit together. T. or F. 5. Must you remove your hat- T. or F. 6. During the performance you may make remarks providing they are amusing. T. or F. 7. A woman does not have to stand up to let people pass her seat. T or F.

8. When your escort or anyone else fails to observe a small amenity, you should point this out. T. or F.

Now, see how you made out. All your answers will be correct, if you have kept in mind that the gracious acting way is the right way.

1. False, because it is gracious for your escort to assume all the respsonbility for an evening's entertainment. 2. False: a woman keeps her coat aound her (unless it is wet) as a protection from chill drafts. 3. True and false: a woman preceds her escort down the aisle unless there is no usher present, but her escort always enters the row of seats ahead of her to clear the way.

4. True: the ladies sit together with the escorts on each side. 5. True: you must remove your hat unless it is as head-conforming as your hair. False: talking of any kind is unforgivably-bad conduct. 7. False: for everybody's sake, including your own, stand up promptly and cheerfully.

8. False: consideration of the feelings of others is the first rule of etiquette in any situation.

Today it is fun to present a man who has written a column on comic strips for the Encyclopedia Brittanica . . . But to forty million readers everydays he's better known as the author of Li'l Abner.

He's the only living creator of a national youth holiday—Sadie Hawkins' Day, usually the Saturday after Armistice . . . Not only celebrated in America but also observed in Tokyo, Scandinavia, Germany and France.

He's the only comic strip author who's created a comic strip within a comic strip — FEARLESS FOSDICK.

The Shmoo, Lower Slobovia, Daisy Mae and Lena the Hyena are now part of the American idiom.

Mr. Capp, who looks quite a lot like his own creation, with a shock of hair, mischievous grin and heavy black eyebrows, is the President of a business which licenses over 101 different items, using Li'l Abner characters . . . Everything from towels, soap and wash cloth to doughnut making machines.

But he thinks cartoonists should be Presidents of the Yewnited States, too!

Of this column he says: "It was fun to write without having to draw pictures."

A Cartoonist Should Be President

By AL CAPP

THIS IS THE season when Americans submit themselves to their fellow-Americans, as candidates for public office.

This is the season when those of us who aren't candidates (and there are mighty few of us left) carefully consider the qualifications of those who are.

Soon we will be making senators, governors and representatives of businessmen, lawyers and industrialists.

Every profession will be honored — except the cartoonist.

It has never occurred to anyone that being a cartoonist qualifies a man for dealing with huge numbers of his fellowmen and yet, if you think it over, there is no profession which qualifies a man more.

AL CAPP

A lawyer, to be successful enough to be nominated for public office, must know the written laws of his people.

A cartoonist must know the emotion of his people, the unwritten laws, statute books.

A lawyer has it all spelled out for him, in the statue books.

It is not spelled out for the cartoonist.

He must instinctively understand what is in the minds and hearts of people.

The lawyer must beguile and convince one judge at a time.

The cartoonist must plead his case before forty million judges, every day and on Sunday, too, all the time.

The businessman has something to sell that you can touch, like an automibile or a chocolate bar or a suit of clothes.

A businessman has something to sell that people know they need. And that makes it easier.

The cartoonist has something to sell that people do not know they need, and yet they need the laughter that the cartoonist has to sell, more than they need anything else. And although you cannot touch it with your hands, this laughter is made of real things—it's made of the cartoonist's understanding of what you will laugh at, what you consider sacred, his understanding of how you feel about war, about peace, about your golf game, about your secretary, your relatives, your politics, your neighbor's politics, your kids, and yourself.

For only by understanding all this about all of you can he make you laugh.

Once elected to office, the public official may, if he's that kind of a fellow, serve the privileged interest, ignore the common people—and get away with it.

Once elected to the comic page, the cartoonist must serve all the people, common and uncommon, privileged and underprivileged, or its away with him.

A cartoonist cannot disregard the wishes of his "constituents" for a single day. The cartoonist is the real servant of the people.

Of all the American professions, the profession of cartooning best qualifies a man for finding out what everybody wants, and giving it to 'em. And that's what good government is, isn't it?

Why doesn't somebody nominate a cartoonist for President?

It'd be a sure thing. We've been campaigning for votes every day of our lives, and we've always won by landslides!

Flood Control

Paye added it is hoped that the City Park Department can replace the bandstand with a new structure, possibly on top of the levee but that could not be done before the levee is completed, he said.

The sewer and water line work in the park is expected to be completed by November, after which plants and shrubs can be restored in readiness for the spring season.

Riverside Park property will be retained by the city, except for a small section at the tip near the confluence of the creek and river.

That piece is part of the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal property and was acquired by the Department of the Interior a number of years ago. It contains a stone abutment which was formerly part of a canal bridge landing.

Meanwhile, Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder reported yesterday that she and Mrs. Marguerite E. Findlay, a member of the City Park Board, have conferred with Army Engineers regarding the work.

Majority of the 160 benches in the park have been taken out, and tool rooms and the rest rooms have been dismantled. Some of the benches have been loaned to city playgrounds.

Barberry shrubs around the electric fountain will be moved near the Girl Scout House. Some shrubbery around the bandstand has been transferred to the grounds of the Keating Day Nursery, Mrs. Findley said.

Masonry from the drinking fountain will be saved for future use. Several beds of daffodils, jonquils and tulips will be moved, with some of the tulips to be taken to the Maryland Avenue plot at the intersection of Williams Street.

Mrs. Roeder commented that tulip bulbs are used year after year for as long as possible.

Items To Be Saved

Spotlights and the electric fountain must also be moved, as well as 300 or 400 pieces of privet hedge.

Mrs. Findlay said she has itemized every piece of equipment and supplies used at Riverside Park. The list totals at least $2,000. Every item possible will be salvaged for future use, he said.

Although the bandstand must be demolished because of the flood control work, funds can be supplied in the Park Appropriation in the future to replace it, Mrs. Roeder said.

Flood control work also affected the small park on Valley Street but the flower beds of scarlet sage, cannas and zinnias were saved and will be ready next spring, Mrs. Findlay said.

Recalling Mrs. Findlay's 17 years of service to the city, Mrs. Roeder commended her for "a wonderful job" and for her sense of responsibility in the use and care of equipment needed for maintaining the parks.

William Claus

Joseph M. Miller and John T. Jones. This group worked out many flood control problems and analyzed the reports of the Army Engineers. They recommended through Small to the Mayor and Council and County Commissioners the present plan now being constructed.

Claus also headed a committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce in 1945 which sponsored an investigation of the lower coal seams in this area, below the Pittsburgh or Big Vein Seam. The work was financed through the United States Bureau of Mines.

Field surveys were made, 26 diamond drill holes were driven, 20 beds of coal were penetrated and the Bureau published two reports showing that millions of tons of recoverable coal are in the area.

Claus said yesterday that the best and short range coal available that could be produced in the area lies between Lonaconing and Westernport. He declared yesterday that committees working on industrial development should give consideration to attracting capital to revive the industry in that area. Such a revival would be a permanent benefit to Cumberland and the county, he said.

Claus is a native of Philadelphia, Pa., born there August 4, 1885. He was educated in public schools, Central High School, Drexel Institute and Temple College, all located in Philadelphia. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Cumberland Kiwanis Club and the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He began his civil engineering practice in 1905 with the engineering firm of Pugh and Hubbard as a rodman, transitman and designer. He later had charge of development work at Broadway, Flushing, New York City; Queen Lane Manor, Germantown, Philadelphia, one of the city's most beautiful suburbs; townsite of Enola, Harrisburg, Pa.; and design and construction of a sewage system at Manasquan, N. J., where an outlet pipe was extended far out into the ocean.

From 1910 to 1913 he was engaged by the Southern Pacific Railroad with headquarters at Victoria, Tex., as assistant division engineer of 450 miles of railroad property. There he designed bridges, terminals, water supply and extension of new lines.

On November 11, 1911, he married in Victoria, Tex., to Annie Marie Davenport of Ennis, Tex. They had two children, Mrs. Amelia Ann Shuck, of Washington, D. C., and William Davenport Claus, LaVale.

Prior to coming here, he was engaged as an engineer with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and designed street car terminals and line extensions.

New Headquarters

Fire Company maintained and preserved it, and it served the community as a headquarters for the Boy Scouts and Red Cross and as a Health and Recreation Center.

At the close of World War II, when it became apparent that the Maryland State Police would have to seek a new headquarters, Colonel Beverly Ober, then superintendent of the department, introduced the idea of renovating the property for the purpose. Rehabilitation was begun in 1949.

As the headquarters of the Maryland State Police, the Old United States Arsenal will house those divisions dealing with administration, communications, traffic, supply, investigation, records and training. Upon completion of the Training School, its facilities and staff will be made available to all police departments in the State.

candidate declared he favors a bill with referendum on the soldiers' bonus and is interested in the development of a broad recreation program for Western Maryland.

Mahoney described Garrett and Allegany Counties as "the forgotten counties" so far as the recent governors of Maryland are concerned. He declared he could never understand why the governor would prefer to sail around on a $60,000 yacht when he could come to Western Maryland and enjoy the mountain top beauty, at its best in the autumn.

Recreation is big business, and stocking of the forests with game and the streams and lakes with fish would make this area a sportsmen's paradise, attracting tourists and new business, he declared.

He promised aid to Miners Hospital and State Teachers College, and declared, "As soon as I become governor I shall inaugurate a plan or program to do something definite about the unemployment in this county."

Mahoney appealed for support for his campaign and urged the people present to register as many of their friends and relatives as possible on September 5 and get out the "Mahoney" vote on September 18.

Michael F. Prendergast, chairman of the Mahoney for Governor Committee in this county, presided and introduced a number of party candidates and party workers. He appealed for workers in the Mahoney headquarters and thanked those who have shown interest in the campaign.

Mahoney Group

connected with it interfered with the rights and privileges of candidates for office, nor has anyone in it violated the sanctity of the homes of the Democrats of the county by continual phone calls asking 'how they feel about certain candidates'. The statement printed in the paper is not the same as the one I received from Mr. Wilson this (Thursday) morning. Why?

"The reference to his 'being embarrassed' is ridiculous. Was he embarrassed at the upset caused in the home of Alexander Nicol, magistrate at Frostburg, who was 'pressured' to drop out of the race against State Senator Kimble. And was it embarrassing to him that Judge James P. Kenney of Frostburg was told by a messenger that he was 'too old to be on the State Central Committee and should not file for re-election'...

"If Mr. Wilson was embarrassed by my invitation, the things enumerated above surely must have made him feel terrible, by comparison. He must feel upset also that so many Republicans get state jobs that come under his 'clearance' as chairman of the committee.

"Surely these things are not helping the Democratic party, and they are definitely no help to Governor Lane, Mr. Wilson should know...

"Mr. Wilson had plenty of opportunity in several campaigns to call attention to statements that I have made and have printed, if any of them had been inaccurate. He never did, because all I have said and have written has been accurate, and he and the Lane people know it.

"When Mr. Wilson speaks of 'Standards of Decency' he should look to his own glass house—if there is any glass left in it."

Armed Unification Proves Itself In Korean War, Leva Tells VFW

CHICAGO—(AP)—Marx Leva, assistant Secretary of Defense, says that the unification of Armed Forces has proved itself in the "ordeal by fire" of Korea.

Leva addressed the 51st National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In the afternoon, 20,000 uniformed marchers staged a giant four-hour parade down Michigan Avenue. They were joined by Chicago area units of the Marines, Air Force, Navy and Army, 20 floats and 100 musical units.

Leva told the delegates that both secretaries of defense—James Forrestal and Louis Johnson—"have made great and lasting contributions to our national security."

These contributions, he added, "were achieved in spite of great obstacles."

Much of the criticism against Johnson, he added, "springs from a political base."

Discussing achievements under the unification program, Leva quoted a recent message from General MacArthur to President Truman saying "I do not believe that history records a comparable operation which excelled the speed and precision with which the eighth Army, the Far East Air Force and the Seventh Fleet have been deployed to a distant land for immediate commitment to major operations."

Leva said through unification, the consolidated shipping line operated by the Navy is making a "phenomenal record," the services are showing teamwork which MacArthur has praised "in the most glowing terms," and newly-developed weapons have been brought into action speedily.

He said in addition the joint chiefs of staff are acting promptly on MacArthur's requests—frequently implementing them in the same day they are received.

Blackout Hides Crete Love Story Developments Again

ATHENS, Greece—(AP)—A curtain of censorship has dropped on developments in the Romeo-and-Juliet type drama that has split the Island of Crete and stirred interest around the world.

There has been a blackout on the story for several days in certain newspapers. Correspondents at the scene have been reported roughly handled.

The public prosecutor banned publication by Athens newspapers of further details in the case of dark-haired Miss Stassoula Petracogeorgi and her lover, Constantine Kephaloyannis, who are presumed to be in hiding somewhere on Mount Ida.

Government censorship measures and security moves on Crete were taken to minimize tension on the island, where a blood feud has threatened between the politically powerful families of the principals.

The girl, who was abducted last week, is the 19-year-old daughter of George Petracogeorgi, a liberal member of Greece's parliament. Kephaloyannis' brother Manuel is a Populist (Royalist) member of Parliament.

In Detroit, Mich., a young man identified himself as Stassoula's brother, Hercules Petracogeorgi, expressed doubt about unconfirmed reports that she has married Kephaloyannis.

"If necessary," said Petracogeorgi, he'll go home to "fight for my sister's honor."

The youth, who said he was working in a Detroit chemical plant, added he couldn't understand reports quoting his sister that she wants to marry her lover.

"This cannot be," he said.

"I do not want civil war, but I do not want this Constantine as a brother-in-law.

GEORGE P. MAHONEY Says,

"For these things I stand"--

MY STAND ON THE SALES TAX

I am absolutely opposed to a permanent continuation of the present Sales Tax, and, when I am elected Governor, I shall take immediate steps to secure its prompt amendment and eventual elimination.

I am opposed to this present Sales Tax because it places an undue burden upon those people in the lower income brackets who are least able to pay, and is out of all proportion to their ability to pay; it favors some business enterprises at the expense of others; it drives business across State lines; it is subject to easy and simple evasion, is difficult of effective administration and it is unfair and unjust in its application and results.

But, I would not be honest with the people of Maryland if I attempted to make them believe that I, or anybody else, upon taking office as Governor of this State, could immediately eliminate the entire Sales Tax.

Commitments involving millions upon millions of dollars have already been made by the present administration which must be paid for out of taxes. Whether justified and warranted or not, whether extravagant or not, it will take time and a sincere desire and extraordinary effort to wisely reduce our tremendous and frightening increase in expenditures, and eliminate the taxes which pay for them.

I give my solemn pledge to the people of Maryland that if I am elected, I shall immediately use my best ability, every bit of my energy, and every possible means, to achieve that end and correct the mistakes that have been made.

However, these things I know I can do, and I shall do:

I will recommend to the Legislature:

(a) the immediate increase of the exemption in the Sales Tax from 14c to 34c;

(b) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all foods, whether purchased in restaurants and public eating places, or for outside consumption;

(c) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all fuels used for household purposes;

(d) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all medicines, drugs, and household remedies which are not now exempt, and from oils, powders and like articles used in the care of babies;

(e) an immediate reduction of ten per cent (10%) in income taxes on earned and unearned income of individuals.

I assure the people of Maryland these things can be done, and I pledge that I will do them without in any way detrimentally affecting teachers' salaries, the public school system, the operation and administration of our hospitals, the improvement and maintenance of our State roads, or any other vital public function, and without in any way depriving our political subdivisions of their financial aid.

I have been purposely conservative in the above reductions which I am recommending. I am convinced, however, that it will be possible to further increase the Sales Tax exemption and make other substantial reductions and eliminations in taxes after I have had the opportunity to examine our governmental and tax structures from within, instead of from the outside, as I am forced to do now.

BUDGETING AND ACCOUNTING CONTROLS

The Sales Tax and the recent tremendous increases in our other State taxes are to a large extent due to the failure to adopt and institute an adequate and approved system of fiscal accounting and budgetary controls, with competent, fearless and effective administration.

If an adequate, modern and understandable system of accounting and proper budgeting controls, with continuous scrutiny and checking, had been adopted—if the uneconomic freezing of millions of dollars of idle cash money in the State Treasury (which is held there through the antiquated system of special dedicated funds, and which takes money away from the taxpayers far in advance of any need for its use in financing State services) had been discontinued—if a stop had been put to the wasteful and profligate practice of basing requests for appropriations from the Legislature on estimated receipts by Departments (which encourages the spending of more money than is reasonably necessary)—and if, after study, changes had been made in the sprawling structure of government organization, with its innumerable independent and uncoordinated departments, boards, commissions and other agencies, over which there is now no effective control and management—all of which have been recommended time after time by the Efficiency and Economy Commission, by other experts and by the Press—there would have been no need for the tremendous increase in taxes forced upon the Legislature and the people of the State.

State agencies having general fund appropriations and special fund moneys both available, now spend those special fund moneys for purposes never contemplated or authorized by the budget and the appropriation bills approved and passed by the Legislature. There is no valid reason why special funds should not be subject to regular budgetary control just as general State funds are. Where special funds are included in the budget, no account is taken of the balances on hand. Year after year appropriations are made by the Legislature under a so-called budget based almost entirely on estimated receipts, and the balances are carried forward and expended under blanket authorizations, so that the expenditures finally far exceed the amounts actually budgeted and approved by the Legislature.

This procedure creates unlimited opportunities for extravagance and almost criminal waste in the expenditure of the hard-earned money of the people of this State.

Immediately upon my inauguration I shall take steps to abolish these vicious practices, and I shall set up a small permanent staff of experts to make a thorough study of the organization and operation of the administrative structure of the State Government for the purpose of eliminating the over-lapping and duplication which now exist in State agencies and their work, to correct our obsolete, unbusinesslike, misleading system of accounting and budgeting, and our haphazard taxing practices, and secure such legislation as may be necessary to effect the needed changes; and then I shall make that staff a continuing, day-to-day check at the operating levels of the State government.

In addition, I shall appoint an advisory board of recognized public spirited business and professional men and women who will put the interests of the people first, to give the State the benefit of their experience and judgment in these matters, and to guard the interests of the public.

ROADS

I propose to build throughout the State of Maryland the kind of roads the State needs and can afford. I am opposed, however, to the State roads building program which will cost another Five Hundred Million Dollars, according to Govenor Lane and his State Roads Commission, in addition to the Two Hundred Million Dollars which already has been committed for or spent by them. I am opposed to the building of fancy "denied-access" roads throughout this State, which cost from Eight Hundred Thousand to One Million Dollars a mile to build, and which will, if Mr. Lane builds them, saddle the State with a debt from which it can never extricate itself, require the raising of the tax on gasoline to fifteen cents or twenty cents a gallon, or the doubling or perhaps tripling of the present Sales Tax, or the putting of toll gates across the roads of Maryland and the making of toll charges against the citizens of this State who are compelled to use its roads.

What Maryland really needs, and what I shall give it, are plenty of good dual-lane highways, honestly constructed, the majority of which can be built for anywhere from Two Hundred Thousand to Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars a mile, and at the most Four Hundred Thousand Dollars a mile, instead of roads now being built costing from Eight Hundred Thousand to One Million Dollars a mile.

STATE HIGHWAY EXPLOITATIONS

I am in favor of legislation which will control the use and development of land bordering on State highways so as to eliminate road-side slums, dangers to life, and unbridled exploitation by billboards and business establishments of land immediately adjacent to our roads.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS AND DAMAGE OF STATE ROADS

I promise an immediate study and proposal of effective legislation to reduce the deplorable and tragic number of deaths and accidents occurring on State roads, and the damage and destruction of those roads as a result of uncontrolled overweight trucks, improper and unsafe motor vehicles, and the lack of adequate inspection.

MENTAL HOSPITALS

I shall immediately correct the deplorable conditions which still exist in our mental hospitals and proceed with the improvements so long neglected; and I shall take steps to inaugurate and operate a mental care hospital program, with the emphasis on treatment and cure rather than on bricks and mortar, which will not call for the spending of millions of dollars on the erection of buildings and the expenditure of many more millions for their maintenance and operation, but will be primarily designed to properly staff our institutions and establish and carry on mental hygiene clinics in the cities and counties of the State, where unfortunate mental cases can be diagnosed, treated, and cured, and complete mental breakdowns prevented.

COMMUNISM AND SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES

I am opposed to Communism and to the coddling of Communists in this State and in this Country. I believe with every fibre of my being that the State should take every proper constitutional measure to protect itself, its citizens and its institutions against the infiltration of Communism, anti-democratic processes and subversive activities, and that this State should use its influence with the Federal Government to the same end.

HOME RULE

In am in favor of legislation that will give to the cities, towns and counties of Maryland the kind of home rule that will enable them to have a greater measure of self-government. This is a vital part of the democratic process in which I believe.

PUBLIC EDUCATION

It is my conviction that the subject of public education is a matter of primary importance. The very best in educational facilities for every child in the State is a requisite for good citizenship. A modern, progressive system of education, completely divorced from politics, with continuing aid to cities and counties, with planned programs for higher educational facilities, for handicapped children, vocational education, in-service training for teachers, and above all, adequate salaries sufficient to attract well qualified men and women to the teaching profession, are a necessary part of such a progressive system of education. They are merely sensible, businesslike investments, the dividends from which are intelligent, independent, wage-earning citizens, who, in turn, add to the wealth of the State and help to provide the means for maintaining other public needs as well as adequate educational facilities.

CONSERVATION AND FISHERIES

I propose to put an end to the practice of making our problems of conservation of natural resources and tidewater industries a political football. The judgment and advice of practical, qualified, intelligent and honest tidewater county citizens and of experts, who can work harmoniously with each other and with the Governor, should be sought and utilized in establishing a program of research, experiment, and enforcement which will rehabilitate our oyster, crab and fish industries, and encourage and protect this great source of livelihood for our tidewater county citizens.

WELFARE PROGRAM

I promise an immediate study and improvement of our State Welfare program having to do with relief aid, old age assistance, child care, the blind and deaf, and other disadvantaged groups.

ORGANIZED LABOR

I believe that Organized Labor should be represented on those Boards and Commissions of the State that are engaged in public functions which affect the working men and women of the State; and I shall appoint to office qualified representatives from the ranks of labor to the State Industrial Accident Commission and the State Unemployment Security Board.

WOMEN'S PART IN STATE GOVERNMENT

I stand for giving the women of Maryland a greater opportunity to take the important part which they are qualified to take in the management of State affairs, instead of the minor part that has been thrown to them in the past as a political sop. I promise to make appointments of women to those positions in which they are particularly qualified to act.

OFFICES OF CLERKS OF COURT AND ORPHANS' COURTS

I am in favor of legislation looking to the eventual consolidation of the offices of the clerks of court and the abolition of the present Orphans' Court system. However, I believe, and will insist, that fair and reasonable consideration and protection should be given to those persons now serving in such offices who would be affected by these changes.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The best legal and disinterested political thought in the State is divided on the question as to (a) whether there is a real need for a new State Constitution, (b) whether a Constitutional Convention is the best and most practical means for making such changes as may be determined to be proper and necessary, and (c) whether this State should embark, at this period of domestic and world-wide upheaval upon the rewriting in its entirety of our State Constitution.

In any event, this question is more properly one for the people in November, when it will be voted upon by all the voters of the State. In the meantime, a general and full discussion of the subject can be had, an attempt can be made to secure crystalization of competent opinion, and the respective candidates for legislative and executive offices of both dominant political parties can make known their positions and their platform promises on the subject.

Then if a majority of the voters indicate their desire for a constitutional convention, I will do everything I can, as Governor, to carry out their wishes.

REPRESENTATION IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

I believe that the City and the counties of the State should have fair and reasonable representation in the General Assembly.

VETERANS' BONUS

I believe the matter of a State bonus for Veterans should be determined in the democratic way by a referendum to the voters of Maryland. If the Legislature passes a proper Act with provision for a referendum, I pledge, that I, as Governor, will sign it forthwith.

JUDICIAL REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE ASSESSMENTS

I believe that there should be some provision made for judicial review of the facts as well as the law under decisions of the State Tax Commission respecting valuations and assessments on real estate.

VETO POWER

I believe the Governor of the State should not have the power to pigeonhole enactments of the State Legislature until after the adjournment of the General Assembly and then thwart the will of the Legislature by a veto when it is impossible for the Legislature to override his veto.

REGISTRATION

The experience, in recent times in Baltimore City, with the operation of the permanent registration system for voters, has demonstrated to the public, I believe, and has convinced me, that some revision of the law and practices in connection with registration must be made, so as to better serve the public convenience and guarantee fair and honest elections.

HOUSING ACCOMMODATIONS

I believe the State has been derelict in not grappling with the statewide problem of insufficient housing accommodations. I propose to have a study made of these conditions with a view to having the State assist in ameliorating them.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF STATE INDUSTRIES

I believe that, to every extent possible, the purchases of supplies should be of Maryland commodities and Maryland products and in aid of Maryland industries, so that such industries, as coal mining in Western Maryland, for instance, can be encouraged, and residents of mining communities can be gainfully employed.

And, finally, I promise that:

(a) I shall attend to the business of this State day in and day out, and be available to and in continuous touch with department heads; and I promise that no vacancies will be allowed to exist in important State positions and Boards;

(b) I will periodically visit every city and county in the State and keep myself informed of their problems and views;

(c) No business I am engaged in or financially interested in will have, at any time, any business dealings with the State of Maryland while I am Governor;

(d) I will be available to the Press for interrogation, so the people can be informed on all matters of public interest; and I shall be accessible at all reasonable times to the people themselves;

I am not now, and I will not be, obligated to or controlled by any political bosses, so that when elected, I shall be a free Governor of the Free State of Maryland.

Flood Control

Paye added it is hoped that the City Park Department can replace the bandstand with a new structure, possibly on top of the levee but that could not be done before the levee is completed, he said.

The sewer and water line work in the park is expected to be completed by November, after which plants and shrubs can be restored in readiness for the spring season.

Riverside Park property will be retained by the city, except for a small section at the tip near the confluence of the creek and river.

That piece is part of the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal property and was acquired by the Department of the Interior a number of years ago. It contains a stone abutment which was formerly part of a canal bridge landing.

Meanwhile, Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder reported yesterday that she and Mrs. Marguerite E. Findlay, a member of the City Park Board, have conferred with Army Engineers regarding the work.

Majority of the 160 benches in the park have been taken out, and tool rooms and the rest rooms have been dismantled. Some of the benches have been loaned to city playgrounds.

Barberry shrubs around the electric fountain will be moved near the Girl Scout House. Some shrubbery around the bandstand has been transferred to the grounds of the Keating Day Nursery, Mrs. Findley said.

Masonry from the drinking fountain will be saved for future use. Several beds of daffodils, jonquils and tulips will be moved, with some of the tulips to be taken to the Maryland Avenue plot at the intersection of Williams Street.

Mrs. Roeder commented that tulip bulbs are used year after year for as long as possible.

Items To Be Saved

Spotlights and the electric fountain must also be moved, as well as 300 or 400 pieces of privet hedge.

Mrs. Findlay said she has itemized every piece of equipment and supplies used at Riverside Park. The list totals at least $2,000. Every item possible will be salvaged for future use, he said.

Although the bandstand must be demolished because of the flood control work, funds can be supplied in the Park Appropriation in the future to replace it, Mrs. Roeder said.

Flood control work also affected the small park on Valley Street but the flower beds of scarlet sage, cannas and zinnias were saved and will be ready next spring, Mrs. Findlay said.

Recalling Mrs. Findlay's 17 years of service to the city, Mrs. Roeder commended her for "a wonderful job" and for her sense of responsibility in the use and care of equipment needed for maintaining the parks.

William Claus

Joseph M. Miller and John T. Jones. This group worked out many flood control problems and analyzed the reports of the Army Engineers. They recommended through Small to the Mayor and Council and County Commissioners the present plan now being constructed.

Claus also headed a committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce in 1945 which sponsored an investigation of the lower coal seams in this area, below the Pittsburgh or Big Vein Seam. The work was financed through the United States Bureau of Mines.

Field surveys were made, 26 diamond drill holes were driven, 20 beds of coal were penetrated and the Bureau published two reports showing that millions of tons of recoverable coal are in the area.

Claus said yesterday that the best and short range coal available that could be produced in the area lies between Lonaconing and Westernport. He declared yesterday that committees working on industrial development should give consideration to attracting capital to revive the industry in that area. Such a revival would be a permanent benefit to Cumberland and the county, he said.

Claus is a native of Philadelphia, Pa., born there August 4, 1885. He was educated in public schools, Central High School, Drexel Institute and Temple College, all located in Philadelphia. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Cumberland Kiwanis Club and the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

He began his civil engineering practice in 1905 with the engineering firm of Pugh and Hubbard as a rodman, transitman and designer. He later had charge of development work at Broadway, Flushing, New York City; Queen Lane Manor, Germantown, Philadelphia, one of the city's most beautiful suburbs; townsite of Enola, Harrisburg, Pa.; and design and construction of a sewage system at Manasquan, N. J., where an outlet pipe was extended far out into the ocean.

From 1910 to 1913 he was engaged by the Southern Pacific Railroad with headquarters at Victoria, Tex., as assistant division engineer of 450 miles of railroad property. There he designed bridges, terminals, water supply and extension of new lines.

On November 11, 1911, he married in Victoria, Tex., to Annie Marie Davenport of Ennis, Tex. They had two children, Mrs. Amelia Ann Shuck, of Washington, D. C., and William Davenport Claus, LaVale.

Prior to coming here, he was engaged as an engineer with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and designed street car terminals and line extensions.

New Headquarters

Fire Company maintained and preserved it, and it served the community as a headquarters for the Boy Scouts and Red Cross and as a Health and Recreation Center.

At the close of World War II, when it became apparent that the Maryland State Police would have to seek a new headquarters, Colonel Beverly Ober, then superintendent of the department, introduced the idea of renovating the property for the purpose. Rehabilitation was begun in 1949.

As the headquarters of the Maryland State Police, the Old United States Arsenal will house those divisions dealing with administration, communications, traffic, supply, investigation, records and training. Upon completion of the Training School, its facilities and staff will be made available to all police departments in the State.

Loftiest volcano in the world is 23,000-foot Sahama, in Peru.

A native of Cumberland, he was the son of the late Joseph and Mary A. Yantz Johnson. He had been employed as ac lerk by the Union News Company and had never married.

Surviving are a brother, William Johnson, Altoona, Pa., and a sister, Mrs. Edith Hammersmith, Cumberland.

The body will remain at the Hafer Funeral Home where a service will be conducted at 2 p. m. Saturday. Rev. M. A. Keesecker, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Church, will officiate and interment will be in Rose Hill Cemetery.

Mahoney Outlines

candidate declared he favors a bill with referendum on the soldiers' bonus and is interested in the development of a broad recreation program for Western Maryland.

Mahoney described Garrett and Allegany Counties as "the forgotten counties" so far as the recent governors of Maryland are concerned. He declared he could never understand why the governor would prefer to sail around on a $60,000 yacht when he could come to Western Maryland and enjoy the mountain top beauty, at its best in the autumn.

Recreation is big business, and stocking of the forests with game and the streams and lakes with fish would make this area a sportsmen's paradise, attracting tourists and new business, he declared.

He promised aid to Miners Hospital and State Teachers College, and declared, "As soon as I become governor I shall inaugurate a plan or program to do something definite about the unemployment in this county."

Mahoney appealed for support for his campaign and urged the people present to register as many of their friends and relatives as possible on September 5 and get out the "Mahoney" vote on September 18.

Michael F. Prendergast, chairman of the Mahoney for Governor Committee in this county, presided and introduced a number of party candidates and party workers. He appealed for workers in the Mahoney headquarters and thanked those who have shown interest in the campaign.

connected with it interfered with the rights and privileges of candidates for office, nor has anyone in it violated the sanctity of the homes of the Democrats of the county by continual phone calls asking 'how they feel about certain candidates'. The statement printed in the paper is not the same as the one I received from Mr. Wilson this (Thursday) morning. Why?

"The reference to his 'being embarrassed' is ridiculous. Was he embarrassed at the upset caused in the home of Alexander Nicol, magistrate at Frostburg, who was 'pressured' to drop out of the race against State Senator Kimble. And was it embarrassing to him that Judge James P. Kenney of Frostburg was told by a messenger that he was 'too old to be on the State Central Committee and should not file for re-election'...

"If Mr. Wilson was embarrassed by my invitation, the things enumerated above surely must have made him feel terrible, by comparison. He must feel upset also that so many Republicans get state jobs that come under his 'clearance' as chairman of the committee.

"Surely these things are not helping the Democratic party, and they are definitely no help to Governor Lane, Mr. Wilson should know...

"Mr. Wilson had plenty of opportunity in several campaigns to call attention to statements that I have made and have printed, if any of them had been inaccurate. He never did, because all I have said and have written has been accurate, and he and the Lane people know it.

"When Mr. Wilson speaks of 'Standards of Decency' he should look to his own glass house—if there is any glass left in it."

Ohio Fisherman Survives Gull Attack In Lake

Spends 20 Hours In Erie Waters

TOLEDO, O.—(AP)—Thomas Navarre of Toledo — who survived 20 hours in Lake Erie, the attacks of sea gull bomber squadrons and artillery shells — swore off lake fishing.

"It was a terrible experience," the Toledo truck driver told rescuers. "They'll never get me out on that lake again."

An older companion, Harold P. Meidt, 50,-Toledo, died after their fishing boat overturned.

But, Navarre, 33, managed to survive, beating off sharp-billed sea gulls with exhausted, numb arms while he waited for someone to pick him up.

The sea gulls swooped down in squads of four or five to peck at his head and face.

Columbus Zoo officials said sea gulls are ferocious only in protecting their nest, and in getting food.

"Why, I've seen them come clear from Lake Erie (about 130 miles)," said one zoo official, "just to feast on the shad that die in the ice here. Some of the shad will be buried in the ice and you'd think the gulls would break their necks the way they dash against the ice to get the shad."

The gulls were bad, but after they decided Navarre wasn't their dish, shells from artillery using the Erie Ordnance Depot firing range began falling in the water near him.

"I never thought I'd make it," related Navarre.

Two fishermen finally picked up Navarre, after debating whether the small, dark object they sighted was a buoy or a human being.

A strong off-shore wind blew the Toledo man farther from shore after his boat overturned, preventing him from swimming for help. All he could do was sweat it out in a cushion-type life preserver.

Meidt and Navarre rented the boat Sunday afternoon. He was picked up by two Locust Point fishermen near the Niagara reef, about seven miles offshore from the Erie Ordnance Depot near Port Clinton, where he rented the boat.

Rhinoceros Has Light In Eyes But It Certainly Isn't Love

CHICAGO—(AP)—That glare in the eyes of Kashi, Brookfield Zoo Rhinoceros, wasn't love light at all.

Kashi and Miss Kamala, another member of the Indian Rhinoceros family, had their second date. Like the first, it broke up in a spat that nearly wrecked their quarters.

A number of guests had been invited to a late breakfast party, as they were last year, just to be on hand in case the pair became engaged.

Things were looking up for about 10 minutes after Kashi was admitted to Kamala's enclosure.

Kashi began to eat his breakfast of hay and soybeans. Suddenly he stopped and crowded into Kamala's bathtub along with her.

Before the guests could get another look there was a loud grunt. Mud began to fly and out stumbled Kamala, heading her 4,500 pounds for the hefty timber fence between her and the moat.

When she broke through the fence some guests remembered they had other engagements.

Kamala dropped into the moat. Keeper Cliff Jones stopped Kashi with a shout from the rear.

Zoo Director Robert Bean admitted his plans for the engagement had been set back. He said he would try again next month.

Armed Unification Proves Itself In Korean War, Leva Tells VFW

CHICAGO—(AP)—Marx Leva, assistant Secretary of Defense, says that the unification of Armed Forces has proved itself in the "ordeal by fire" of Korea.

Leva addressed the 51st National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In the afternoon, 20,000 uniformed marchers staged a giant four-hour parade down Michigan Avenue. They were joined by Chicago area units of the Marines, Air Force, Navy and Army, 20 floats and 100 musical units.

Leva told the delegates that both secretaries of defense—James Forrestal and Louis Johnson—"have made great and lasting contributions to our national security."

These contributions, he added, "were achieved in spite of great obstacles."

Much of the criticism against Johnson, he added, "springs from a political base."

Discussing achievements under the unification program, Leva quoted a recent message from General MacArthur to President Truman saying "I do not believe that history records a comparable operation which excelled the speed and precision with which the eighth Army, the Far East Air Force and the Seventh Fleet have been deployed to a distant land for immediate commitment to major operations."

Leva said through unification, the consolidated shipping line operated by the Navy is making a "phenomenal record," the services are showing teamwork which MacArthur has praised "in the most glowing terms," and newly-developed weapons have been brought into action speedily.

He said in addition the joint chiefs of staff are acting promptly on MacArthur's requests—frequently implementing them in the same day they are received.

Blackout Hides Crete Love Story Developments Again

ATHENS, Greece—(AP)—A curtain of censorship has dropped on developments in the Romeo-and-Juliet type drama that has split the Island of Crete and stirred interest around the world.

There has been a blackout on the story for several days in certain newspapers. Correspondents at the scene have been reported roughly handled.

The public prosecutor banned publication by Athens newspapers of further details in the case of dark-haired Miss Stassoula Petracogeorgi and her lover, Constantine Kephaloyannis, who are presumed to be in hiding somewhere on Mount Ida.

Government censorship measures and security moves on Crete were taken to minimize tension on the island, where a blood feud has threatened between the politically powerful families of the principals.

The girl, who was abducted last week, is the 19-year-old daughter of George Petracogeorgi, a liberal member of Greece's parliament. Kephaloyannis' brother Manuel is a Populist (Royalist) member of Parliament.

In Detroit, Mich., a young man identified himself as Stassoula's brother, Hercules Petracogeorgi, expressed doubt about unconfirmed reports that she has married Kephaloyannis.

"If necessary," said Petracogeorgi, he'll go home to "fight for my sister's honor."

The youth, who said he was working in a Detroit chemical plant, added he couldn't understand reports quoting his sister that she wants to marry her lover.

"This cannot be," he said.

"I do not want civil war, but I do not want this Constantine as a brother-in-law.

GEORGE P. MAHONEY Says,

"For these things I stand"--

MY STAND ON THE SALES TAX

I am absolutely opposed to a permanent continuation of the present Sales Tax, and, when I am elected Governor, I shall take immediate steps to secure its prompt amendment and eventual elimination.

I am opposed to this present Sales Tax because it places an undue burden upon those people in the lower income brackets who are least able to pay, and is out of all proportion to their ability to pay; it favors some business enterprises at the expense of others; it drives business across State lines; it is subject to easy and simple evasion, is difficult of effective administration and it is unfair and unjust in its application and results.

But, I would not be honest with the people of Maryland if I attempted to make them believe that I, or anybody else, upon taking office as Governor of this State, could immediately eliminate the entire Sales Tax.

Commitments involving millions upon millions of dollars have already been made by the present administration which must be paid for out of taxes. Whether justified and warranted or not, whether extravagant or not, it will take time and a sincere desire and extraordinary effort to wisely reduce our tremendous and frightening increase in expenditures, and eliminate the taxes which pay for them.

I give my solemn pledge to the people of Maryland that if I am elected, I shall immediately use my best ability, every bit of my energy, and every possible means, to achieve that end and correct the mistakes that have been made.

However, these things I know I can do, and I shall do:

I will recommend to the Legislature:

(a) the immediate increase of the exemption in the Sales Tax from 14c to 34c;

(b) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all foods, whether purchased in restaurants and public eating places, or for outside consumption;

(c) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all fuels used for household purposes;

(d) the immediate elimination of the Sales Tax from all medicines, drugs, and household remedies which are not now exempt, and from oils, powders and like articles used in the care of babies;

(e) an immediate reduction of ten per cent (10%) in income taxes on earned and unearned income of individuals.

I assure the people of Maryland these things can be done, and I pledge that I will do them without in any way detrimentally affecting teachers' salaries, the public school system, the operation and administration of our hospitals, the improvement and maintenance of our State roads, or any other vital public function, and without in any way depriving our political subdivisions of their financial aid.

I have been purposely conservative in the above reductions which I am recommending. I am convinced, however, that it will be possible to further increase the Sales Tax exemption and make other substantial reductions and eliminations in taxes after I have had the opportunity to examine our governmental and tax structures from within, instead of from the outside, as I am forced to do now.

BUDGETING AND ACCOUNTING CONTROLS

The Sales Tax and the recent tremendous increases in our other State taxes are to a large extent due to the failure to adopt and institute an adequate and approved system of fiscal accounting and budgetary controls, with competent, fearless and effective administration.

If an adequate, modern and understandable system of accounting and proper budgeting controls, with continuous scrutiny and checking, had been adopted—if the uneconomic freezing of millions of dollars of idle cash money in the State Treasury (which is held there through the antiquated system of special dedicated funds, and which takes money away from the taxpayers far in advance of any need for its use in financing State services) had been discontinued—if a stop had been put to the wasteful and profligate practice of basing requests for appropriations from the Legislature on estimated receipts by Departments (which encourages the spending of more money than is reasonably necessary)—and if, after study, changes had been made in the sprawling structure of government organization, with its innumerable independent and uncoordinated departments, boards, commissions and other agencies, over which there is now no effective control and management—all of which have been recommended time after time by the Efficiency and Economy Commission, by other experts and by the Press—there would have been no need for the tremendous increase in taxes forced upon the Legislature and the people of the State.

State agencies having general fund appropriations and special fund moneys both available, now spend those special fund moneys for purposes never contemplated or authorized by the budget and the appropriation bills approved and passed by the Legislature. There is no valid reason why special funds should not be subject to regular budgetary control just as general State funds are. Where special funds are included in the budget, no account is taken of the balances on hand. Year after year appropriations are made by the Legislature under a so-called budget based almost entirely on estimated receipts, and the balances are carried forward and expended under blanket authorizations, so that the expenditures finally far exceed the amounts actually budgeted and approved by the Legislature.

This procedure creates unlimited opportunities for extravagance and almost criminal waste in the expenditure of the hard-earned money of the people of this State.

Immediately upon my inauguration I shall take steps to abolish these vicious practices, and I shall set up a small permanent staff of experts to make a thorough study of the organization and operation of the administrative structure of the State Government for the purpose of eliminating the over-lapping and duplication which now exist in State agencies and their work, to correct our obsolete, unbusinesslike, misleading system of accounting and budgeting, and our haphazard taxing practices, and secure such legislation as may be necessary to effect the needed changes; and then I shall make that staff a continuing, day-to-day check at the operating levels of the State government.

In addition, I shall appoint an advisory board of recognized public spirited business and professional men and women who will put the interests of the people first, to give the State the benefit of their experience and judgment in these matters, and to guard the interests of the public.

ROADS

I propose to build throughout the State of Maryland the kind of roads the State needs and can afford. I am opposed, however, to the State roads building program which will cost another Five Hundred Million Dollars, according to Govenor Lane and his State Roads Commission, in addition to the Two Hundred Million Dollars which already has been committed for or spent by them. I am opposed to the building of fancy "denied-access" roads throughout this State, which cost from Eight Hundred Thousand to One Million Dollars a mile to build, and which will, if Mr. Lane builds them, saddle the State with a debt from which it can never extricate itself, require the raising of the tax on gasoline to fifteen cents or twenty cents a gallon, or the doubling or perhaps tripling of the present Sales Tax, or the putting of toll gates across the roads of Maryland and the making of toll charges against the citizens of this State who are compelled to use its roads.

What Maryland really needs, and what I shall give it, are plenty of good dual-lane highways, honestly constructed, the majority of which can be built for anywhere from Two Hundred Thousand to Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars a mile, and at the most Four Hundred Thousand Dollars a mile, instead of roads now being built costing from Eight Hundred Thousand to One Million Dollars a mile.

STATE HIGHWAY EXPLOITATIONS

I am in favor of legislation which will control the use and development of land bordering on State highways so as to eliminate road-side slums, dangers to life, and unbridled exploitation by billboards and business establishments of land immediately adjacent to our roads.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS AND DAMAGE OF STATE ROADS

I promise an immediate study and proposal of effective legislation to reduce the deplorable and tragic number of deaths and accidents occurring on State roads, and the damage and destruction of those roads as a result of uncontrolled overweight trucks, improper and unsafe motor vehicles, and the lack of adequate inspection.

MENTAL HOSPITALS

I shall immediately correct the deplorable conditions which still exist in our mental hospitals and proceed with the improvements so long neglected; and I shall take steps to inaugurate and operate a mental care hospital program, with the emphasis on treatment and cure rather than on bricks and mortar, which will not call for the spending of millions of dollars on the erection of buildings and the expenditure of many more millions for their maintenance and operation, but will be primarily designed to properly staff our institutions and establish and carry on mental hygiene clinics in the cities and counties of the State, where unfortunate mental cases can be diagnosed, treated, and cured, and complete mental breakdowns prevented.

COMMUNISM AND SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES

I am opposed to Communism and to the coddling of Communists in this State and in this Country. I believe with every fibre of my being that the State should take every proper constitutional measure to protect itself, its citizens and its institutions against the infiltration of Communism, anti-democratic processes and subversive activities, and that this State should use its influence with the Federal Government to the same end.

HOME RULE

In am in favor of legislation that will give to the cities, towns and counties of Maryland the kind of home rule that will enable them to have a greater measure of self-government. This is a vital part of the democratic process in which I believe.

PUBLIC EDUCATION

It is my conviction that the subject of public education is a matter of primary importance. The very best in educational facilities for every child in the State is a requisite for good citizenship. A modern, progressive system of education, completely divorced from politics, with continuing aid to cities and counties, with planned programs for higher educational facilities, for handicapped children, vocational education, in-service training for teachers, and above all, adequate salaries sufficient to attract well qualified men and women to the teaching profession, are a necessary part of such a progressive system of education. They are merely sensible, businesslike investments, the dividends from which are intelligent, independent, wage-earning citizens, who, in turn, add to the wealth of the State and help to provide the means for maintaining other public needs as well as adequate educational facilities.

CONSERVATION AND FISHERIES

I propose to put an end to the practice of making our problems of conservation of natural resources and tidewater industries a political football. The judgment and advice of practical, qualified, intelligent and honest tidewater county citizens and of experts, who can work harmoniously with each other and with the Governor, should be sought and utilized in establishing a program of research, experiment, and enforcement which will rehabilitate our oyster, crab and fish industries, and encourage and protect this great source of livelihood for our tidewater county citizens.

WELFARE PROGRAM

I promise an immediate study and improvement of our State Welfare program having to do with relief aid, old age assistance, child care, the blind and deaf, and other disadvantaged groups.

ORGANIZED LABOR

I believe that Organized Labor should be represented on those Boards and Commissions of the State that are engaged in public functions which affect the working men and women of the State; and I shall appoint to office qualified representatives from the ranks of labor to the State Industrial Accident Commission and the State Unemployment Security Board.

WOMEN'S PART IN STATE GOVERNMENT

I stand for giving the women of Maryland a greater opportunity to take the important part which they are qualified to take in the management of State affairs, instead of the minor part that has been thrown to them in the past as a political sop. I promise to make appointments of women to those positions in which they are particularly qualified to act.

OFFICES OF CLERKS OF COURT AND ORPHANS' COURTS

I am in favor of legislation looking to the eventual consolidation of the offices of the clerks of court and the abolition of the present Orphans' Court system. However, I believe, and will insist, that fair and reasonable consideration and protection should be given to those persons now serving in such offices who would be affected by these changes.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

The best legal and disinterested political thought in the State is divided on the question as to (a) whether there is a real need for a new State Constitution, (b) whether a Constitutional Convention is the best and most practical means for making such changes as may be determined to be proper and necessary, and (c) whether this State should embark, at this period of domestic and world-wide upheaval upon the rewriting in its entirety of our State Constitution.

In any event, this question is more properly one for the people in November, when it will be voted upon by all the voters of the State. In the meantime, a general and full discussion of the subject can be had, an attempt can be made to secure crystalization of competent opinion, and the respective candidates for legislative and executive offices of both dominant political parties can make known their positions and their platform promises on the subject.

Then if a majority of the voters indicate their desire for a constitutional convention, I will do everything I can, as Governor, to carry out their wishes.

REPRESENTATION IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

I believe that the City and the counties of the State should have fair and reasonable representation in the General Assembly.

VETERANS' BONUS

I believe the matter of a State bonus for Veterans should be determined in the democratic way by a referendum to the voters of Maryland. If the Legislature passes a proper Act with provision for a referendum, I pledge, that I, as Governor, will sign it forthwith.

JUDICIAL REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE ASSESSMENTS

I believe that there should be some provision made for judicial review of the facts as well as the law under decisions of the State Tax Commission respecting valuations and assessments on real estate.

VETO POWER

I believe the Governor of the State should not have the power to pigeonhole enactments of the State Legislature until after the adjournment of the General Assembly and then thwart the will of the Legislature by a veto when it is impossible for the Legislature to override his veto.

REGISTRATION

The experience, in recent times in Baltimore City, with the operation of the permanent registration system for voters, has demonstrated to the public, I believe, and has convinced me, that some revision of the law and practices in connection with registration must be made, so as to better serve the public convenience and guarantee fair and honest elections.

HOUSING ACCOMMODATIONS

I believe the State has been derelict in not grappling with the statewide problem of insufficient housing accommodations. I propose to have a study made of these conditions with a view to having the State assist in ameliorating them.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF STATE INDUSTRIES

I believe that, to every extent possible, the purchases of supplies should be of Maryland commodities and Maryland products and in aid of Maryland industries, so that such industries, as coal mining in Western Maryland, for instance, can be encouraged, and residents of mining communities can be gainfully employed.

And, finally, I promise that:

(a) I shall attend to the business of this State day in and day out, and be available to and in continuous touch with department heads; and I promise that no vacancies will be allowed to exist in important State positions and Boards;

(b) I will periodically visit every city and county in the State and keep myself informed of their problems and views;

(c) No business I am engaged in or financially interested in will have, at any time, any business dealings with the State of Maryland while I am Governor;

(d) I will be available to the Press for interrogation, so the people can be informed on all matters of public interest; and I shall be accessible at all reasonable times to the people themselves;

I am not now, and I will not be, obligated to or controlled by any political bosses, so that when elected, I shall be a free Governor of the Free State of Maryland.

8,837 Persons Are X-Rayed In Allegany County

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, has announced that 8,837 persons have been checked in the mass chest X-ray program in Allegany County during the past few weeks.

The program was sponsored by the Maryland State Health Department and the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, according to Dr. Frantz.

The purpose was to detect cases of tuberculosis in the early stages so that prompt treatment would result in halting the disease and uring full recovery.

The program was held with X-rays being taken free of charge. A mobile unit toured the various county communities and another unit was parked in City Hall plaza to take chest X-rays of Cumberlanders.

A total of 4,361 X-rays were taken in Cumberland while the county figure was 4,476.

Totals for the various communities follow:

Bowman's Addition, 106; Mt. Savage, 203; LaVale, 195; Eckhart, 243; Frostburg, 848; Midland, 289; Lonaconing, 840; Barton, 407; Westernport, 727; Cresaptown, 414; Oldtown, 103, and Little Orleans, 101.

The chest X-rays will be checked and in cases where traces of the disease are found the persons will be notified by the Health Department.

Treatment may then be arranged. Dr. Frantz said the program's success is becoming more evident each year and with early diagnosis of the disease those afflicted are fairly certain of recovery with proper treatment.

Funds to operate the X-ray units are made available through the sale of Christmas Seals.

Police Prepare For Labor Day

No weekend leaves will be granted state troopers as the Maryland State Police of the Cumberland Barracks make ready for the Labor Day holiday, according to Sgt. Harry Holsinger.

Sgt. Holsinger, who is acting commander in the absence of Lt. W. E. O'Hara proposed the following rules for an accidentless weekend:

(1) Drive cautiously at all times, (2) adjust your speed to the road, weather and traffic conditions, and (3) observe posted speed limits.

Meanwhile, it was announced from State Police headquarters in Pikesville by Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent, that the electromatic speed meter will be used over the weekend on the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard.

This machine, which was recently demonstrated in LaVale, measures the speed of motor vehicles going in both directions. Col. Jarman said when a speed violation is noted, the operator of the machine will radio a trooper, located a mile or so away, who will stop the speeding vehicle.

Drivers when stopped in this manner will be requested to cooperate in curtailing highway fatalities and crippling injuries by complying with the three simple rules of the road.

Cumberland Is Coal Center For Area Over 100 Years

A total of 371,918,164 tons of "black gold" were handled through Cumberland in 108 years of the coal trade in this area, including 1842 to 1949.

This is according to statistics of the Cumberland coal trade compiled from official sources in the auditor's office of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad here.

The figures include tonnage hauled by railroads and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal through the main terminal at Cumberland.

B. & O. Main Carrier

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has carried coal since the birth of mining as an industry in Western Maryland and northern West Virginia.

Over the 108 years, it has hauled a total of 155,752,766 tons through Cumberland.

The next in importance as a carrier has been the Western Maryland Railway, which started operations in 1872, with a total of 155,280,275.

During the 75 years of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, 21,507,138 tons were drawn by boat through its waters to Georgetown.

Through the years, besides the three carriers mentioned previously, there have been the following railroads, some of them now defunct, hauling coal through here:

Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad; Cumberland Coal and Iron Company Railroad; West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh Railway Company; George's Creek Railroad; Hampshire Railroad; Pennsylvania Railroad; George's Creek and Cumberland Railroad and Empire and West Virginia.

Three Peak Years

The peak years of coal hauling were in 1906, 1907, and 1918, each going over the 7,000,000 ton mark.

During 1906 and 1907, were the years when the excellent big vein bituminous was being mined in the George's Creek section. The rise in 1918 was due to the wartime use of coal, especially for the coal burning ships.

After 1926, when 6,013,000 tons were hauled, the total gradually declined to a 40-year low of 3,261,000 in 1938.

World War II created a coal demand and the total trade through here rose to a peak of 6,652,000 tons in 1947.

Since then the total dropped to 3,885,000 tons for last year.

W. Va. Boy Injured When Rifle Backfires

Kenneth Sherman, 11-year-old son of Letus Sherman, Moore, W. Va., was admitted to Parsons City Hospital Tuesday for treatment of a gunshot wound in his head, according to Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten.

The child told Sheriff Crosten and West Virginia State Trooper G. H. Phillips that his .22 calibre rifle backfired while he was hunting Tuesday.

According to the sheriff, the bullet entered the side of the boy's right temple, grazed the white of his left eye and is lodged in his left temple. Young Sherman is reported in serious condition; no effort has been made to remove the bullet.

The sheriff and trooper are continuing the investigation.

Ohio Fisherman Survives Gull Attack In Lake

Spends 20 Hours In Erie Waters

TOLEDO, O.—(AP)—Thomas Navarre of Toledo — who survived 20 hours in Lake Erie, the attacks of sea gull bomber squadrons and artillery shells — swore off lake fishing.

"It was a terrible experience," the Toledo truck driver told rescuers. "They'll never get me out on that lake again."

An older companion, Harold P. Meidt, 50,-Toledo, died after their fishing boat overturned.

But, Navarre, 33, managed to survive, beating off sharp-billed sea gulls with exhausted, numb arms while he waited for someone to pick him up.

The sea gulls swooped down in squads of four or five to peck at his head and face.

Columbus Zoo officials said sea gulls are ferocious only in protecting their nest, and in getting food.

"Why, I've seen them come clear from Lake Erie (about 130 miles)," said one zoo official, "just to feast on the shad that die in the ice here. Some of the shad will be buried in the ice and you'd think the gulls would break their necks the way they dash against the ice to get the shad."

The gulls were bad, but after they decided Navarre wasn't their dish, shells from artillery using the Erie Ordnance Depot firing range began falling in the water near him.

"I never thought I'd make it," related Navarre.

Two fishermen finally picked up Navarre, after debating whether the small, dark object they sighted was a buoy or a human being.

A strong off-shore wind blew the Toledo man farther from shore after his boat overturned, preventing him from swimming for help. All he could do was sweat it out in a cushion-type life preserver.

Meidt and Navarre rented the boat Sunday afternoon. He was picked up by two Locust Point fishermen near the Niagara reef, about seven miles offshore from the Erie Ordnance Depot near Port Clinton, where he rented the boat.

There must be some better method of living than building a bomb-proof piano with a revolving turret. Folks are so scared of booby-traps they are opening eggs with billiard cues.

Rhinoceros Has Light In Eyes But It Certainly Isn't Love

CHICAGO—(AP)—That glare in the eyes of Kashi, Brookfield Zoo Rhinoceros, wasn't love light at all.

Kashi and Miss Kamala, another member of the Indian Rhinoceros family, had their second date. Like the first, it broke up in a spat that nearly wrecked their quarters.

A number of guests had been invited to a late breakfast party, as they were last year, just to be on hand in case the pair became engaged.

Things were looking up for about 10 minutes after Kashi was admitted to Kamala's enclosure.

Kashi began to eat his breakfast of hay and soybeans. Suddenly he stopped and crowded into Kamala's bathtub along with her.

Before the guests could get another look there was a loud grunt. Mud began to fly and out stumbled Kamala, heading her 4,500 pounds for the hefty timber fence between her and the moat.

When she broke through the fence some guests remembered they had other engagements.

Kamala dropped into the moat. Keeper Cliff Jones stopped Kashi with a shout from the rear.

Zoo Director Robert Bean admitted his plans for the engagement had been set back. He said he would try again next month.

Program In Schools

County Board Urges Dam And Flood Control

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has sent telegrams to President Truman, Col. Allen J. McCutcheon, district engineer, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, and William Batt, assistant secretary of labor, urging the completion of the Savage River Dam and local flood control work.

Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the county board, said the telegrams were sent by him due to the urgency of the situation.

The telegrams stated that approval of federal appropriations for the Savage River Dam work and Cumberland flood control was of vital interest here.

It was stated completion of the dam was the key to securing new industry for this area as the dam would provide a uniform flow of water in the Potomac River for use by industry.

Stopping the flood control work would result in danger to the city from floods and complicate the serious economic situation here, Wilkinson said.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A friend of Herb Caen's was pained to observe that the contents of a fine old bottle of bourbon were shrinking mysteriously from day to day, although he had not touched the bottle himself. Suspecting a new maid, he made a pencil mark on the label at the level of the bottle's contents before leaving for his office the next day. That evening he found a note from the maid on his dressing table. "Please don't put any more pencil marks on the bottle," it pleaded, "because I don't want to put water in such good bourbon."

Joseph Henry Jackson overheard the most priceless line of the season. Two society leaders were lunching at San Francisco's Top of the Mark, discussing Jimmy Roosevelt's gubernatorial ambitions in California. "I heard him on the radio last night," sniffed one of the ladies. "He'll never go far. Sounds just like his father."

Temporarily Apart, Mouse Twins To Be In Same Unit

Although temporarily separated by the Marines for the first time in 22 years, identical twins, Paul J. Mouse, Jr., and Francis C. Mouse, formerly of 420 Valley Street, have been informed by their officers that they will again be together on September 15.

The two brothers left last month with the local Marine Reserve unit for induction into active Marine Corps duty. Shortly after their arrival at Camp LeJeune, N. C., they were separated, and, according to their parents, it was the first time they had been parted.

Paul Mouse, Sr., the men's father and veteran of the Marine Corps in World War I, learned of the situation in letters from his sons.

Immediately he contacted Rep. J. Glenn Beall relative to the twins' separation. Rep. Beall urged the commandant of the Marine Corps to allow them to serve together.

Evidently, the efforts of the father and his congressman bore some fruit, as on September 15 they again will be in the same unit, their officers have informed them.

Francis is currently attending a six-week engineer course at Court House Bay in Camp LeJeune while Paul is serving with his company 20 miles away.

The Mouse twins have been a tradition in Cumberland. They were born June 30, 1928. After two years at St. Patrick's School, they transferred to Columbia Street. In 1946 they both received their diplomas from Allegany High School.

The twins selected woodwork for a trade and started their apprentice training at the South Cumberland Planing Mill.

Francis and Paul joined the local Marine Reserve unit in June, 1948, and both advanced to corporal.

After years of living together, enjoying hunting and fishing as an inseparable two-some, the Mouse twins will be serving their country together, come September 15.

8,837 Persons Are X-Rayed In Allegany County

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, has announced that 8,837 persons have been checked in the mass chest X-ray program in Allegany County during the past few weeks.

The program was sponsored by the Maryland State Health Department and the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, according to Dr. Frantz.

The purpose was to detect cases of tuberculosis in the early stages so that prompt treatment would result in halting the disease and bring full recovery.

The program was held with X-rays being taken free of charge. A mobile unit toured the various county communities and another unit was parked in City Hall plaza to take chest X-rays of Cumberlanders.

A total of 4,361 X-rays were taken in Cumberland while the county figure was 4,476.

Totals for the various communities follow:

Bowman's Addition, 106; Mt. Savage, 203; LaVale, 195; Eckhart, 243; Frostburg, 848; Midland, 289; Lonaconing, 840; Barton, 407; Westernport, 727; Cresaptown, 414; Oldtown, 103, and Little Orleans, 101.

The chest X-rays will be checked and in cases where traces of the disease are found the persons will be notified by the Health Department.

Treatment may then be arranged. Dr. Frantz said the program's success is becoming more evident each year and with early diagnosis of the disease those afflicted are fairly certain of recovery with proper treatment.

Funds to operate the X-ray units are made available through the sale of Christmas Seals.

Police Prepare For Labor Day

No weekend leaves will be granted state troopers as the Maryland State Police of the Cumberland Barracks make ready for the Labor Day holiday, according to Sgt. Harry Holsinger.

Sgt. Holsinger, who is acting commander in the absence of Lt. W. E. O'Hara proposed the following rules for an accidentless weekend:

(1) Drive cautiously at all times, (2) adjust your speed to the road, weather and traffic conditions, and (3) observe posted speed limits.

Meanwhile, it was announced from State Police headquarters in Pikesville by Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent, that the electromatic speed meter will be used over the weekend on the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard.

This machine, which was recently demonstrated in LaVale, measures the speed of motor vehicles going in both directions. Col. Jarman said when a speed violation is noted, the operator of the machine will radio a trooper, located a mile or so away, who will stop the speeding vehicle.

Drivers when stopped in this manner will be requested to cooperate in curtailing highway fatalities and crippling injuries by complying with the three simple rules of the road.

Cumberland Is Coal Center For Area Over 100 Years

A total of 371,918,164 tons of "black gold" were handled through Cumberland in 108 years of the coal trade in this area, including 1842 to 1949.

This is according to statistics of the Cumberland coal trade compiled from official sources in the auditor's office of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad here.

The figures include tonnage hauled by railroads and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal through the main terminal at Cumberland.

B. & O. Main Carrier

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has carried coal since the birth of mining as an industry in Western Maryland and northern West Virginia.

Over the 108 years, it has hauled a total of 155,752,766 tons through Cumberland.

The next in importance as a carrier has been the Western Maryland Railway, which started operations in 1872, with a total of 155,280,275.

During the 75 years of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, 21,507,138 tons were drawn by boat through its waters to Georgetown.

Through the years, besides the three carriers mentioned previously, there have been the following railroads, some of them now defunct, hauling coal through here:

Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad; Cumberland Coal and Iron Company Railroad; West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh Railway Company; George's Creek Railroad; Hampshire Railroad; Pennsylvania Railroad; George's Creek and Cumberland Railroad and Empire and West Virginia.

Three Peak Years

The peak years of coal hauling were in 1906, 1907, and 1918, each going over the 7,000,000 ton mark.

During 1906 and 1907, were the years when the excellent big vein bituminous was being mined in the George's Creek section. The rise in 1918 was due to the wartime use of coal, especially for the coal burning ships.

After 1926, when 6,013,000 tons were hauled, the total gradually declined to a 40-year low of 3,261,000 in 1938.

World War II created a coal demand and the total trade through here rose to a peak of 6,652,000 tons in 1947.

Since then the total dropped to 3,885,000 tons for last year.

W. Va. Boy Injured When Rifle Backfires

Kenneth Sherman, 11-year-old son of Letus Sherman, Moore, W. Va., was admitted to Parsons City Hospital Tuesday for treatment of a gunshot wound in his head, according to Tucker County Sheriff D. E. Crosten.

The child told Sheriff Crosten and West Virginia State Trooper G. H. Phillips that his .22 calibre rifle backfired while he was hunting Tuesday.

According to the sheriff, the bullet entered the side of the boy's right temple, grazed the white of his left eye and is lodged in his left temple. Young Sherman is reported in serious condition; no effort has been made to remove the bullet.

The sheriff and trooper are continuing the investigation.

Banana Layer Cake
Beverage

For an impressive, yet quick dessert, bake four layers of featherylike cake, then frost with fluffy whipped cream and decorate with banana slices and maraschino cherries. Quick? It's an Easy Cake recipe and as its name implies, is quite simply prepared.

Instead of creaming the lard with the sugar as in the usual cake mixing method, the lard is creamed with a portion of the flour, then the remainder of the ingredients are added (with the exception of eggs, which are added one at a time near the end of mixing.) Made especially rich and tender with lard, it's the perfect complement for bananas and whipped cream.

Quick Cake To Talk About

This quick four-layer cake is frosted with fluffy whipped cream, then decorated with plump ripe banana slices and red maraschino cherries.

Spice Cake, Too

If you prefer a loaf cake to a layer cake, bake it in that form. Or make it into cup cakes. And if you want a simple spice cake recipe, follow the recipe below and add 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cloves and ¼ teaspoon allspice to the flour before creaming it with the lard.

Banana layer cake is a grand surprise for dessert, bridge or club refreshment. Or if for dinner dessert, plan the main course of the meal around stuffed pork chops. Include parsleyed potatoes and buttered peas. Your salad may be a chopped lettuce and endive combination temptingly served with Roquefort dressing. To make the dressing, add 4 tablespoons of crumbled Roquefort cheese to French dressing.

The following recipe makes sufficient bater for a two layered cake. Double the ingredients for four layers of this luscious cake.

EASY CAKE

1¾ cups sifted cake flour
½ cup lard
⅞ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs

Cream ½ cup flour and lard together thoroughly. Add the remaining flour, the sugar, baking powder, salt, vanilla and ⅓ cup milk. Stir and beat vigorously until smooth and fluffy. Add remaining milk. Beat again until thoroughly combined. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Pour into two round 8-inch cake pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F) for about 20 to 25 minutes.

Frost with sweetened, flavored whipped cream and arrange banana slices and maraschino cherries on top.

Quick Main Dishes With Canned Milk

If cooking facilities are limited at vacation camps, many main dishes can still be easily assembled with the nutrition that canned milk offers. A savory fish and noodle or rice main dish may be made with a pound can of salmon, a can of cream of mushroom soup, plus one cup of evaporated milk. As soon as the fish and liquids are heated, the sauce is ready for serving over rice or noodles. Incidentally, there are cans of ready cooked rice now on the market.

Evaporated milk can also be used in canned tomato and pea cream soups. Dilute the evaporated milk, using equal parts of water and milk, before adding to the soups.

Scrambled eggs, cheese rabbit, and creamed ham and potatoes are all enriched and simply achieved with canned milk.

Oysters Good In September

The popular, versatile oyster comes back on the menu September first, according to the old "R-month" tradition. Although oysters are eaten at all times of the year, it is at this season that they are said to be especially plump and flavorful.

Oysters are favorites during the fall and winter principally because they are prime and plentiful on the market. They not only stir appetites, but also have a special appeal to busy homemakers — for oysters are easy to buy, prepare and serve. Most cooks know or use only a few recipes which include oysters, but at least 98 recipes are known to home economists. Here are two of them.

Oysters Rockefeller

36 shell oysters
2 cups spinach, cooked
4 tablespoons onion
2 bay leaves
1 tablespoon parsley
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon salt
6 drops Tabasco sauce
½ cup bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter.

Shuck and drain oysters; place on deep half shells. Put spinach, onion, bay leaves, and parsley through food grinder. Add seasonings to spinach, and cook in butter for 5 minutes. Add bread crumbs and mix well. Spread mixture over oysters, and bake in hot over 400° F. for about 10 minutes. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Angels On Horseback

1 pint select oysters
12 slices bacon
½ teaspoon salt.
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons parsley.

Drain oysters and lay each oyster across half a slice of bacon. Sprinkle with seasonings and chopped persley. Roll bacon around oyster and fasten with toothpick. Place oysters on a rack in shallow baking pan and bake in hot oven 450° F. for about 10 minutes or until bacon is crisp. Remove toothpicks and serve. Serves 6.

Rice Ring And Stuffed Eggs Will Round Out Buffet Menu

With hundreds of salad recipes in circulation, here is one to catch the eye and captivate the appetite. Rice Ring with Stuffed Eggs is one salad suggestion for rounding out a buffet menu.

This is a salad planned for a warm summer evening. Easy to make — easy to serve — Rice Ring with Stuffed Eggs tastes as good as it looks. You can cook your rice ahead of time, and hard boil your eggs—reducing last minute preparations to a minimum.

Here is almost a complete meal with a minimum of effort, and a delicious meal too!

Rice Ring With Stuffed Eggs

3 cups cooked rice
½ cup cooked carrots, finely diced
½ cup green beans, finely diced
¼ cup French dressing.

Blend all ingredients together lightly with a fork. Arrange mixture in lightly oiled ring mold. Store in refrigerator.

Stuffed Eggs

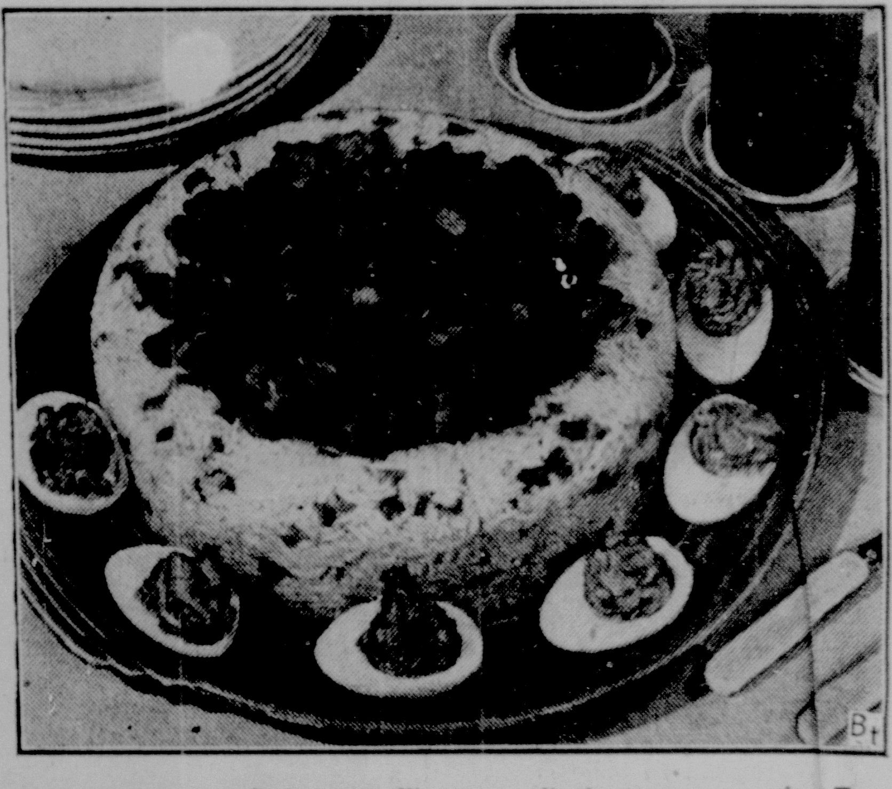
6 hard cooked eggs
¼ cup margarine or butter
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup grated tuna fish
3 tablespoons cream
2 teaspoons grated onion.

Shell eggs and cut in half lengthwise. Remove yolk and mash. Cream margarine and blend with yolks. Add salt, cayenne pepper, tuna fish, cream and grated onion. Blend well. Pile your mixture in egg white halves. Unmold chilled rice ring on large serving plate. Arrange stuffed eggs around rice. Garnish center of ring with watercress. Serves 6.



Rice ring with stuffed eggs will tempt wilted summer appetites Easy to make—and you can prepare it ahead of time. The well-seasond egg stuffing combines yolks blended to creamy smoothness with margarine, plus tuna fish and onions for flavor and texture. Diced vegetable give color to the rice ring.

A rich biscuit dough may be fitted into an eight-inch layer pan, and the dough pressed about one-quarter-inch up the sides of the pan, then spread with a layer of thick jam and covered with another circle of dough. Bake in a moderately hot oven about twenty minutes and serve warm in wedges.

---

If there's any secret to cooking chicken it's to use a low temperature; high temperatures toughen the protein in poultry.

County Board Urges Dam And Flood Control

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has sent telegrams to President Truman, Col. Allen J. McCutcheon, district engineer, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, and William Batt, assistant secretary of labor, urging the completion of the Savage River Dam and local flood control work.

Charles N. Wilkinso, president of the county board, said the telegrams were sent by him due to the urgency of the situation.

The telegrams stated that approval of federal appropriations for the Savage River Dam work and Cumberland flood control was of vital interest here.

It was stated completion of the dam was the key to securing new industry for this area as the dam would provide a uniform flow of water in the Potomac River for use by industry.

Stopping the flood control work would result in danger to the city from floods and complicate the serious economic situation here, Wilkinson said.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A friend of Herb Caen's was pained to observe that the contents of a fine old bottle of bourbon were shrinking mysteriously from day to day, although he had not touched the bottle himself. Suspecting a new maid, he made a pencil mark on the label at the level of the bottle's contents before leaving for his office the next day. That evening he found a note from the maid on his dressing table. "Please don't put any more pencil marks on the bottle," it pleaded, "because I don't want to put water in such good bourbon."

Joseph Henry Jackson overheard the most priceless line of the season. Two society leaders were lunching at San Francisco's Top of the Mark, discussing Jimmy Roosevelt's gubernatorial ambitions in California. "I heard him on the radio last night," sniffed one of the ladies. "He'll never go far. Sounds just like his father."

Temporarily Apart, Mouse Twins To Be In Same Unit

Although temporarily separated by the Marines for the first time in 22 years, identical twins, Paul J. Mouse, Jr., and Francis C. Mouse, formerly of 420 Valley Street, have been informed by their officers that they will again be together on September 15.

The two brothers left last month with the local Marine Reserve unit for induction into active Marine Corps duty. Shortly after their arrival at Camp LeJeune, N. C., they were separated, and, according to their parents, it was the first time they had been parted.

Paul Mouse, Sr., the men's father and veteran of the Marine Corps in World War I, learned of the situation in letters from his sons.

Immediately he contacted Rep. J. Glenn Beall relative to the twins' separation. Rep. Beall urged the commandant of the Marine Corps to allow them to serve together.

Evidently, the efforts of the father and his congressman bore some fruit, as on September 15 they again will be in the same unit, their officers have informed them.

Francis is currently attending a six-week engineer course at Court House Bay in Camp LeJeune while Paul is serving with his company 20 miles away.

The Mouse twins have been a tradition in Cumberland. They were born June 30, 1928. After two years at St. Patrick's School, they transferred to Columbia Street. In 1946 they both received their diplomas from Allegany High School.

The twins selected woodwork for a trade and started their apprentice training at the South Cumberland Planing Mill.

Francis and Paul joined the local Marine Reserve unit in June, 1948, and both advanced to corporal.

After years of living together, enjoying hunting and fishing as an inseparable two-some, the Mouse twins will be serving their country together, come September 15.

Outdoor Snack Bar

Add zest to the season's out-of-door parties by serving from a portable snack bar. Everything the hostess needs for her party can be served from a home-constructed snack bar like the one shown above. Best of all, the event may take place in any outdoor location such as the yard or garden. With its curved surface made of Masonite Leatherwood, an embossed hardboard that is both handsome and durable, the snack bar will enhance any setting and add to the enjoyment of the "snack-fest."

Snack Bar Adds Fun To Outdoor Meal

The great American pastime of "eating a snack" moves into the out-of-doors every summer and autumn. At the least excuse, there's a picnic, a breakfast at the beach, supper on the porch or an after-the beach snack in the yard.

Outdoor eating can be delightful for any group, and the fun can be shared by the hostess if she will just do a little advance planning and preparation. Then it will become a gala occasion for all and the hostess won't feel like saying, "It's too much work."

The right equipment, plenty of snacks and beverages, and serving in pleasant surroundings spell out success for an outdoor "snack-fest." An indispensable prop for the hostess who want's to do a perfect job of entertaining in a portable snack bar, which can be built for a few dollars by any man who can use a saw and hammer. In winter, it can be used in the recreation room.

With this snack bar, which is in the shape of a half circle and has shelves for supplies, the hostess is at liberty to center her "snack-fest" in the yard or garden, on the porch

If lemonade is to be served, prepare it ahead of time. Have a reserve supply and extra ice-cubes on the snack bar shelf. Enjoyable snacks to tide over ravenous appetites after a swim are popcorn, potato chips, cheese tidbits, or pretzels.

To add zest to the tidbits, have a dunking bowl of cheese spread on hand. This can be made by blending cream cheese with finely chopped chives and enough cream to give it the proper dunking consistency.

Why not plan a garden or lawn party as a surprise for the young folks after their next swim?

Baked eggs with cheese make a delicious luncheon dish. Break the eggs into a hot, well-greased, shallow baking dish. Pour enough milk just to cover the eggs. Sprinkle with a mixture of grated or crumbled soft yellow cheese and dry bread crumbs. Bake in a very moderate oven until the eggs are set.

Labor Day Buffet

DRY MILK . . . Mix it with beef for extra nutrition.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS . . . Prepared in advance.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

Fine for a buffet party on Labor Day are Swedish Meat Balls and Gravy. They can be prepared before your guests come and then be reheated at the last minute. With them serve boiled new potatoes, crisp rye crackers Scandinavian-style, and a delicious salad of cooked and raw vegetables. Snap beans, corn, carrots, peas, tomato slices, and onion rings can all go on a bed of crisp greens for the salad. Cook all the vegetables except the tomatoes and onions ahead of time, chill and coat them with a tangy French dressing. For an easy dessert arrange a platter of fresh fruit — adding cookies or cake if you like.

To give extra food value to the main dish add nonfat dry milk to the meat mixture, as well as to the gravy, as the following recipe specifies. Nonfat dry milk may be used in most recipes that call for milk — and it's a good way of adding food value. It's just milk with the fat and water removed; all the important milk nutrients — calcium, protein, riboflavin and lactose — are left in. It's economical, too, for a one-pound package costs about 35 cents and makes 5 quarts of nonfat milk.

Swedish Meat Balls and Gravy

Ingredients: 2 cups soft bread crumbs (lightly packed), ¾ cup water, 1 pound ground beef, 6 tablespoons nonfat dry milk, 1 egg (slightly beaten), 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup flour (about), ¼ cup fat.

Method: Soak bread crumbs in water. Add to ground beef. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk over meat mixture and blend thoroughly. Add egg, onion, salt, nutmeg and pepper, mixing well. Form into 1-inch balls. Roll in flour. Melt fat in heavy frying pan. Turn balls into frying pan and brown. Cover and cook over low heat 5 minutes. Remove balls from the pan. Measure remaining fat in frying pan. Add more fat to make 4 tablespoons. Combine ½ cup nonfat dry milk, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Sprinkle over 2 cups water in bowl. Beat until well blended. Add to melted butter in pan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Return meat balls to gravy, reheat and serve. Makes about 38 one-inch balls.

Fried Chicken Top Favorite For Sunday

Fried chicken is only one of the "best" foods that summer offers. But to many families it has top billing on the list of Sunday dinner favorites. To keep its good reputation, however, chicken must be fried so that it is temptingly brown on the outside and as tender as butter inside.

There are, of course, dozens of variations of standard methods of frying chicken. Those who like the crustiness of chicken fried in deep fat will want to try this method. First the chicke nis browned and partially cooked in deep fat. Then it is put into the oven and cooked until "fork-tender."

Tender Deep-Fried Chicken

Cut young chicken into pieces. Dip into milk for additional flavor. Then coat by dipping in seasoned flour (or a mixture of half bread crumbs and half flour). Let the pieces dry a bit before frying to prevent spattering.

Thermometer Needed

It is very important to use a theormometer for frying chicken in deep fat. The fat must be kept at the right temperature and guessing may mean poor results. A thermometer that is especially easy to use is made of non-breakable stainless steel. It has a round, clock-like face printed with easy-to-read temperatures and fastens to the edge of the frying kettle by an adjustable clip.

Heat enough fat to cover the chicken in a deep kettle. The temperature should be 3[illegible] degrees F. when the chicken goes into the fat. Lower the chicken into the fat a few pieces at a time, cooking meaty pieces first. Brown chicken on all sides, keeping the cooking temperature at 325 degrees F.

When chicken is evenly browned, lift from fat, drain and place in a covered casserole or skillet [illegible] cooking in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes or until the chicken is tender. Remove cover the last 10 minutes of cooking time.

Elbow-deep In Canning?

You can eliminate one chore in the canning routine to make that task a little less arduous. In prewashing the mason jars and jelly glasses, use one of the all-purpose detergents, fo ra sudsmaker. Rinse well i nhot water and drain dry. No need to towel dry.

Here's Easy Banana Cake Recipe

MENU
Stuffed Pork Chops

Chopped Lettuce, Endive with Roquefort Cheese Dressing
Corn Sticks
Butter or Margarine
Banana Layer Cake
Beverage

For an impressive, yet quick dessert, bake four layers of feathery-like cake, then frost with fluffy whipped cream and decorate with banana slices and maraschino cherries. Quick? It's an Easy Cake recipe and as its name implies, is quite simply prepared.

Instead of creaming the lard with the sugar as in the usual cake mixing method, the lard is creamed with a portion of the flour, then the remainder of the ingredients are added (with the exception of eggs, which are added one at a time near the end of mixing.) Made especially rich and tender with lard, it's the perfect complement for bananas and whipped cream.

Spice Cake, Too

If you prefer a loaf cake to a layer cake, bake it in that form. Or make it into cup cakes. And if you want a simple spice cake recipe, follow the recipe below and add 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cloves and ¼ teaspoon allspice to the flour before creaming it with the lard.

Banana layer cake is a grand surprise for dessert, bridge or club refreshment. Or if for dinner dessert, plan the main course of the meal around stuffed pork chops. Include parsleyed potatoes and buttered peas. Your salad may be a chopped lettuce and endive combination temptingly served with Roquefort dressing. To make the dressing, add 4 tablespoons of crumbled Roquefort cheese to French dressing.

The following recipe makes sufficient bater for a two layered cake. Double the ingredients for four layers of this luscious cake.

EASY CAKE

1¾ cups sifted cake flour
½ cup lard
⅞ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs

Cream ½ cup flour and lard together thoroughly. Add the remaining flour, the sugar, baking powder, salt, vanilla and ⅓ cup milk. Stir and beat vigorously until smooth and fluffy. Add remaining milk. Beat again until thoroughly combined. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Pour into two round 8-inch cake pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F) for about 20 to 25 minutes.

Frost with sweetened, flavored whipped cream and arrange banana slices and maraschino cherries on top.

Quick Main Dishes With Canned Milk

If cooking facilities are limited at vacation camps, many main dishes can still be easily assembled with the nutrition that canned milk offers. A savory fish and noodle or rice main dish may be made with a pound can of salmon, a can of cream of mushroom soup, plus one cup of evaporated milk. As soon as the fish and liquids are heated, the sauce is ready for serving over rice or noodles. Incidentally, there are cans of ready cooked rice now on the market.

Evaporated milk can also be used in canned tomato and pea cream soups. Dilute the evaporated milk, using equal parts of water and milk, before adding to the soups.

Scrambled eggs, cheese rabbit, and creamed ham and potatoes are all enriched and simply achieved with canned milk.

Oysters Good In September

The popular, versatile oyster comes back on the menu September first, according to the old "R-month" tradition. Although oysters are eaten at all times of the year, it is at this season that they are said to be especially plump and flavorful.

Oysters are favorites during the fall and winter principally because they are prime and plentiful on the market. They not only stir appetites, but also have a special appeal to busy homemakers — for oysters are easy to buy, prepare and serve. Most cooks know or use only a few recipes which include oysters, but at least 98 recipes are known to home economists. Here are two of them.

Oysters Rockefeller

36 shell oysters
2 cups spinach, cooked
4 tablespoons onion
2 bay leaves
1 tablespoon parsley
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon salt
6 drops Tabasco sauce
½ cup bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter.

Shuck and drain oysters; place on deep half shells. Put spinach, onion, bay leaves, and parsley through food grinder. Add seasonings to spinach, and cook in butter for 5 minutes. Add bread crumbs and mix well. Spread mixture over oysters, and bake in hot over 400° F. for about 10 minutes. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Angels On Horseback

1 pint select oysters
12 slices bacon
½ teaspoon salt.
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons parsley.

Drain oysters and lay each oyster across half a slice of bacon. Sprinkle with seasonings and chopped persley. Roll bacon around oyster and fasten with toothpick. Place oysters on a rack in shallow baking pan and bake in hot oven 450° F. for about 10 minutes or until bacon is crisp. Remove toothpicks and serve. Serves 6.

A rich biscuit dough may be fitted into an eight-inch layer pan, and the dough pressed about one-quarter-inch up the sides of the pan, then spread with a layer of thick jam and covered with another circle of dough. Bake in a moderately hot oven about twenty minutes and serve warm in wedges.

If there's any secret to cooking chicken it's to use a low temperature; high temperatures toughen the protein in poultry.

Rice Ring And Stuffed Eggs Will Round Out Buffet Menu

With hundreds of salad recipes in circulation, here is one to catch the eye and captivate the appetite. Rice Ring with Stuffed Eggs is one salad suggestion for rounding out a buffet menu.

This is a salad planned for a warm summer evening. Easy to make — easy to serve — Rice Ring with Stuffed Eggs tastes as good as it looks. You can cook your rice ahead of time, and hard boil your eggs—reducing last minute preparations to a minimum.

Here is almost a complete meal with a minimum of effort, and a delicious meal too!

Rice Ring With Stuffed Eggs

3 cups cooked rice
½ cup cooked carrots, finely diced
½ cup green beans, finely diced
¼ cup French dressing.

Blend all ingredients together lightly with a fork. Arrange mixture in lightly oiled ring mold. Store in refrigerator.

Stuffed Eggs

6 hard cooked eggs
¼ cup margarine or butter
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup grated tuna fish
3 tablespoons cream
2 teaspoons grated onion.

Shell eggs and cut in half lengthwise. Remove yolk and mash. Cream margarine and blend with yolks. Add salt, cayenne pepper, tuna fish, cream and grated onion. Blend well. Pile your mixture in egg white halves. Unmold chilled rice ring on large serving plate. Arrange stuffed eggs around rice. Garnish center of ring with watercress. Serves 6.

Rice ring with stuffed eggs will tempt wilted summer appetites Easy to make—and you can prepare it ahead of time. The well-seasond egg stuffing combines yolks blended to creamy smoothness with margarine, plus tuna fish and onions for flavor and texture. Diced vegetabls give color to the rice ring.

Outdoor Snack Bar

Add zest to the season's out-of-door parties by serving from a portable snack bar. Everything the hostess needs for her party can be served from a home-constructed snack bar like the one shown above. Best of all, the event may take place in any outdoor location such as the yard or garden. With its curved surface made of Masonite Leatherwood, an embossed hardboard that is both handsome and durable, the snack bar will enhance any setting and add to the enjoyment of the "snack-fest."

Snack Bar Adds Fun To Outdoor Meal

The great American pastime of "eating a snack" moves into the out-of-doors every summer and autumn. At the least excuse, there's a picnic, a breakfast at the beach, supper on the porch or an after-the beach snack in the yard.

Outdoor eating can be delightful for any group, and the fun can be shared by the hostess if she will just do a little advance planning and preparation. Then it will become a gala occasion for all and the hostess won't feel like saying, "It's too much work."

The right equipment, plenty of snacks and beverages, and serving in pleasant surroundings spell out success for an outdoor "snack-fest." An indispensable prop for the hostess who want's to do a perfect job of entertaining in a portable snack bar, which can be built for a few dollars by any man who can use a saw and hammer. In winter, it can be used in the recreation room.

With this snack bar, which is in the shape of a half circle and has shelves for supplies, the hostess is at liberty to center her "snack-fest" in the yard or garden, on the porch

If lemonade is to be served, prepare it ahead of time. Have a reserve supply and extra ice-cubes on the snack bar shelf. Enjoyable snacks to tide over ravenous appetites after a swim are popcorn, potato chips, cheese tidbits, or pretzels.

To add zest to the tidbits, have a dunking bowl of cheese spread on hand. This can be made by blending cream cheese with finely chopped chives and enough cream to give it the proper dunking consistency.

Why not plan a garden or lawn party as a surprise for the young folks after their next swim?

Baked eggs with cheese make a delicious luncheon dish. Break the eggs into a hot, well-greased, shallow baking dish. Pour enough milk just to cover the eggs. Sprinkle with a mixture of grated or crumbled soft yellow cheese and dry bread crumbs. Bake in a very moderate oven until the eggs are set.

Labor Day Buffet

DRY MILK . . . Mix it with beef for extra nutrition.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS . . . Prepared in advance.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Fine for a buffet party on Labor Day are Swedish Meat Balls and Gravy. They can be prepared before your guests come and then be reheated at the last minute. With them serve boiled new potatoes, crisp rye crackers Scandinavian-style, and a delicious salad of cooked and raw vegetables. Snap beans, corn, carrots, peas, tomato slices, and onion rings can all go on a bed of crisp greens for the salad. Cook all the vegetables except the tomatoes and onions ahead of time, chill and coat them with a tangy French dressing. For an easy dessert arrange a platter of fresh fruit — adding cookies or cake if you like.

To give extra food value to the main dish add nonfat dry milk to the meat mixture, as well as to the gravy, as the following recipe specifies. Nonfat dry milk may be used in most recipes that call for milk — and it's a good way of adding food value. It's just milk with the fat and water removed; all the important milk nutrients — calcium, protein, riboflavin and lactose — are left in. It's economical, too, for a one-pound package costs about 35 cents and makes 5 quarts of nonfat milk.

Swedish Meat Balls and Gravy

Ingredients: 2 cups soft bread crumbs (lightly packed), ¾ cup water, 1 pound ground beef, 6 tablespoons nonfat dry milk, 1 egg (slightly beaten), 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup flour (about), ¼ cup fat.

Method: Soak bread crumbs in water. Add to ground beef. Sprinkle nonfat dry milk over meat mixture and blend thoroughly. Add egg, onion, salt, nutmeg and pepper, mixing well. Form into 1-inch balls. Roll in flour. Melt fat in heavy frying pan. Turn balls into frying pan and brown. Cover and cook over low heat 5 minutes. Remove balls from the pan. Measure remaining fat in frying pan. Add more fat to make 4 tablespoons. Combine ½ cup nonfat dry milk, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Sprinkle over 2 cups water in bowl. Beat until well blended. Add to melted butter in pan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Return meat balls to gravy, reheat and serve. Makes about 38 one-inch balls.

Elbow-deep In Canning?

You can eliminate one chore in the canning routine to make that task a little less arduous. In prewashing the mason jars and jelly glasses, use one of the all-purpose detergents, fo ra sudsmaker. Rinse well i nhot water and drain dry. No need to towel dry.

Fried Chicken Top Favorite For Sunday

Fried chicken is only one of the "best" foods that summer offers. But to many families it has top billing on the list of Sunday dinner favorites. To keep its good reputation, however, chicken must be fried so that it is temptingly brown on the outside and as tender as butter inside.

There are, of course, dozens of variations of standard methods of frying chicken. Those who like the crustiness of chicken fried in deep fat will want to try this method. First the chicke nis browned and partially cooked in deep fat. Then it is put into the oven and cooked until "fork-tender."

Tender Deep-Fried Chicken

Cut young chicken into pieces. Dip into milk for additional flavor. Then coat by dipping in seasoned flour (or a mixture of half bread crumbs and half flour). Let the pieces dry a bit before frying to prevent spattering.

Thermometer Needed

It is very important to use a theormometer for frying chicken in deep fat. The fat must be kept at the right temperature and guessing may mean poor results. A thermometer that is especially easy to use is made of non-breakable stainless steel. It has a round, clock-like face printed with easy-to-read temperatures and fastens to the edge of the frying kettle by an adjustable clip.

Heat enough fat to cover the chicken in a deep kettle. The temperature should be 3[illegible] degrees F. when the chicken goes into the fat. Lower the chicken into the fat a few pieces at a time, cooking meaty pieces first. Brown chicken on all sides, keeping the cooking temperature at 325 degrees F.

When chicken is evenly browned, lift from fat, drain and place in a covered casserole or skillet [illegible] cooking in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes or until the chicken is tender. Remove cover the last 10 minutes of cooking time.

Advance Of Pershing Tanks Described By AP's Lambert

By TOM LAMBERT

WITH U. S. FORCES IN SOUTH KOREA—(AP)—The road lay warm and yellow in the mid-afternoon sun, winding alongside rich green rice paddies on the floor of the valley.

On the grey sandy ridges above the valley, ridges laced with erosion ruts and sparsely covered with scrubby undergrowth, were the Reds.

American tanks and infantry began moving at 4 p. m., flanked by South Korean allies, to clear the hills.

In single file the tanks edged along the road, with "Belle Starr" commanded by Staff Sgt. Ernest W. Belcher, Hazy, W. Va., in the lead.

"Belle Starr" is a Pershing tank, 46 tons of steel with a 90 MM gun. The other Pershings, "Bama Belle," "Bucket O'Bolts" and "Bewildered" followed.

The GI's commanded by Second Lt. Henry E. Davis, Los Angeles, stalked warily along the flanks of the steel monsters or edged gingerly up the slopes of the ridges.

The tanks' machine guns hammered harshly at a few Reds who fled their approach, or at targets pointed out by tense doughboys.

"Belle Starr" had just rounded a twist in the road when the Reds reacted. There was a ripping burst of machine-gun fire and a lieutenant and two men on the slopes staggered, slumped and fell. The tanks and the soldiers halted.

While angry eyes scanned the hillside and the shallow ravines which scarred them, soldiers slid cursing down the shale slope carrying the wounded men.

The fight was forgotten for a moment now, especially by the rookies.

The wounded were placed on litters and laid on a tank, alongside the turret, under the big gun which swung menacingly toward the hills.

The fire and blood halted the action, except for quick sniping shots by GIs and the occasional hasty stuttering rat-tat-tat of a Red burp gun.

Then the Marines flew in, four of them in Corsair fighters, laden with bullets, rockets and napalm bombs of jellied gasoline.

They circled the area once, carefully, then for approximately 20 minutes lashed viciously at the Reds.

The flying Leathernecks circled the Red-held hills like riders on a merry-go-round. Each time they swung past the Red-held positions they strafed. The napalm bombs dropped lazily, bursting into flames and towering columns of smoke.

Then the Marines fired their rockets.

On the hills and in the valley the tankers and GIs still tense, talked about the first lap of the fight for the hill.

Sgt. Belcher, a man with a mustache and fierce goatee, said he'd fired on Reds "who were moving all around that Monday to get into their position before we got there."

Pfc. Donald Taylor, Detroit, fired a few fast rounds from his Browning automatic rifle and grinningly announced he'd brought down 'a moving Korea tree" which actually was a heavily camouflaged North Korean.

High on a slope, Sgt. First Class Bert Hensley, Commerce, Texas, said the Reds "had jumped up like quail, just like a covey of quail" as U. S. riflemen moved into the draw.

Lt. Davis clawed his way up the hill and asked Hensley about those casualties.

"One of them was that new kid, that replacement," replied one sergeant.

Davis grabbed up a handful of scrawny grass and threw it down fiercely in a gesture of anger.

Then the command to "move out" came out of the valley road and Second Lt. Dennis H. Hunter, Capac, Mich., tank platoon commander, outlined the plan of attack.

Sgt. Belcher discussed tactics of the new move with Sgt. Edward Kleinfleter, Rossford, Ohio, whose rifle squad was to accompany "Belle Star" to the crest of the road.

Master Sgt. Walter P. Turner, Denver, Ky., altered the crews of his Pershing "Bucket O'Bolts."

"Belle Star" took the lead again. She lumbered up the road threateningly, a cluster of riflemen crouched on her back.

Then came "'Bama Belle," "Bewildered" and "Bucket O'Bolts."

The tanks rounded one turn, then another. They were still in view of the infantrymen behind them on the slopes.

Suddenly "Belle Starr" opened up—and jolted with the effort. Dust spurted from her cleated tracks.

The shell burst on the hillside, to the right of a saddle on which we could see the reds running up a ridge.

The other tanks opened up, and the machine-gunners. Their actions seemed to touch off almost every gun on our hillside between them. The burp gun gave a hasty answer.

Then the rear tank began backing down, back towards us. Three of them came back, then "Belle Starr."

The attack was stalled for the moment. Red automatic weapons gunners had brought the tanks under fire and pinned down their accompanying infantrymen.

The burp gun chattered again. On the ridge a GI stood up boldly against the skyline and, in a furious burst, fired a futile clip of ammunition.

Then came "'Bama Belle," "Bewildered" and "Bucket O'Bolts."

The tanks rounded one turn, then another. They were still in view of the infantrymen behind them on the slopes.

Suddenly "Belle Starr" opened up —and jolted with the effort. Dust spurted from her cleated tracks.

The shell burst on the hillside, to the right of a saddle on which we could see the reds running up a ridge.

The other tanks opened up, and the machine-gunners. Their actions seemed to touch off almost every gun on our hillside between them. The burp gun gave a hasty answer.

Then the rear tank began backing down, back towards us. Three of them came back, then "Belle Starr."

The attack was stalled for the moment. Red automatic weapons gunners had brought the tanks under fire and pinned down their accompanying infantrymen.

The burp gun chattered again. On the ridge a GI stood up boldly against the skyline and, in a furious burst, fired a futile clip of ammunition.

"Shocking Conditions" In Cook County (Chicago) Jail Reported

CHICAGO—(AP)—State's Attorney John S. Boyle reports some Cook County (Chicago) jail prisoners have been getting women, whisky and fine food—for a price.

He said an investigation by an assistant, James Condon, showed "shocking conditions" in the jail.

Sheriff Elmer Michael Walsh, a Republican, asserted that politics were behind the charges. He added, "I am satisfied that in every instance attempts to violate jail regulations have been quickly detected and thwarted."

The county jail is under his jurisdiction. The jail warden, Col. Chester L. Fordney, said "conditions are not as bad as the state's attorney thinks."

However he said it was "no secret" that narcotics and other items — knives, razor blades and hypodermic needles—have been smuggled into the jail.

Boyle, a Democrat, said Condon began the investigation after an escape plot was discovered July 20. Duplicate jailhouse keys were found among prisoners in a cell tier known as "Little Alcatraz," where four murderers were waiting execution.

Boyle said Condon's report showed prisoners could meet a woman privately in a locked cell for a half an hour for $3. The money, he said, was split up by jail employes and trustees who arranged the tryist.

He said some prisoners had bought whiskey, narcotics or steaks—not on the prison menu. Stainless steel food trays from the jail infirmary were sold for 50 cents each and turned into homemade knives, he said. Such knives were found among prisoners.

He said he will ask the September grand jury to look into conditions disclosed by Condon.

Father Kills Three Children And Self

NAPOLEON, O., Aug. 31 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Shirley Hefflinger didn't go to the state fair with the Napoleon High School band yesterday.

She was ready to go; dressed in her uniform, her camera slung over her shoulder and waiting for her parents to take her to the high school.

Then her father shot and killed her; killed Shirley's baby brothers — Floyd, 3, and Joseph, 2 — and killed himself.

He shot at his wife, Marjorie, 48, but missed her.

Coroner B. L. Johnson, in a verdict of murder and suicide, said that Floyd Joseph Hefflinger, 51, had been despondent. He didn't know why.

Bauer Gives Up U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Frederick E. Bauer, 45, who said he was a former non-practicing Nazi spy, chose yesterday to give up the United States rather than be separated from his family.

Bauer withdrew a court appeal and submitted to deportation as an alien. The government has been trying to get him out of the country since 1945 although he was a naturalized American.

The 49 Liberty Bell replicas used in the latest United States Savings Bond drive were complete except for the crack in the original. It was omitted because these bells must ring.

RELIEVE THE REAL CAUSE OF YOUR STOMACH DISTRESS

Indigestion, Gas Pains, Heartburn, Bloating when Due to Vitamin $B_1$, $B_2$, Iron and Niacin Deficiencies

ONE OF THE GREATEST BLESSINGS OF THE TIMES!

Here is some wonderful news for you folks who suffer so from stomach disturbances (indigestion, gas, heartburn, sour 'risings' in your throat after meals) because your system lacks the important Vitamins $B_1$, $B_2$, Iron and Niacin.

Now—thanks to the great new HADACOL—you can actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of such stomach disturbances caused by these deficiencies. A marked improvement is often noticed within a few days' time. And continued use of HADACOL not only gives continuous, complete relief but helps prevent such distress from coming back. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

Anyone would be very foolish indeed to be satisfied with symptomatic relief, when HADACOL now makes it possible to relieve the VERY CAUSE of this stomach distress due to such deficiencies—know the joy of eating the foods you like without belching and suffering gas pains, heartburn and torturing indigestion afterwards!

How HADACOL Works . . .

HADACOL not only supplies weak, run-down, deficient systems with extra quantities of Vitamins $B_1$, $B_2$, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—so vital to help maintain good health.

And these Vitamins and Minerals come in special liquid form so that they can be more easily and quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood—ready to go right to work at once. HADACOL even reinforces your red blood cells (when iron is needed) to carry these healthful elements to every organ in your body—to the kidneys, lungs, liver and heart.

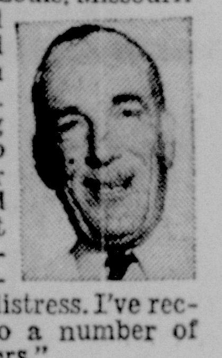
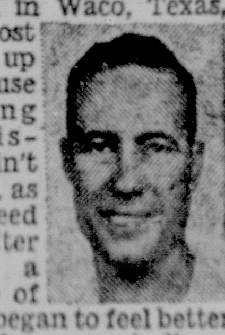
Just a Few of Thousands of Folks With Such Deficiencies Who Have Been Helped!

Tess Kinman, advertising clerk of 1202 Main Street, Cincinnati, Ohio: "I had a nervous stomach. Fried foods, radishes, and other gas-forming foods didn't agree with me. I had no appetite. Indigestion was a chronic worry and bother. Now I have a wonderful appetite. And I eat anything I want to with no fear of indigestion or gas. I owe it all to HADACOL."

Bethel G. Jones, Florida Power Corporation load dispatcher: "I've suffered from stomach distress for quite some time and spent thousands of dollars on medicine and X-rays. I had been reading about HADACOL in the newspapers. I started by buying a small bottle. I am now on my fourth large bottle, and HADACOL has relieved me tremendously. I noticed the difference in the way I felt after a few days. I can't praise HADACOL enough for what it has done for me."

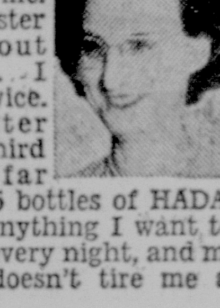


Mr. James Keelan, Jr., 5565 Labadie Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri: "Recently I'd been troubled with heartburn and indigestion. Since taking HADACOL, I no longer suffer heartburn and now I can eat anything without ever suffering after-meal distress. I've recommended it to a number of my fellow-workers."



W. E. Hoxworth, a skilled maintenance man in Waco, Texas, says: "I almost had to give up my job because of suffering stomach distress. I couldn't hold my food, as no food agreed with me. After completing a second bottle of HADACOL, I began to feel better and I suffered no more indigestion. I now take HADACOL regularly to help stay well."

Pretty Mrs. Alma Kincaid, 2125 East Adelaide Street, St. Louis, Missouri, told us this: "I want you to know how much better I feel since I've taken HADACOL. I've had stomach distress for quite a while. But nothing did me any good. They just said I had a nervous stomach. This is my second bottle of HADACOL and I really feel fine. I'm not nervous; I never feel tired. I can eat anything I want to."



Mrs. Hilton Shuff, Rt. 1, Box 42, Ville Platte, La.: "At night I couldn't rest and no matter what I ate, it didn't agree with me. Then my sister told me about HADACOL. I took her advice. I felt better after the third bottle. So far I've taken 15 bottles of HADACOL. I eat anything I want to. I sleep well every night, and my housework doesn't tire me at all."

"Shocking Conditions" In Cook County (Chicago) Jail Reported

CHICAGO—(AP)—State's Attorney John S. Boyle reports some Cook County (Chicago) jail prisoners have been getting women, whisky and fine food—for a price.

He said an investigation by an assistant, James Condon, showed "shocking conditions" in the jail.

Sheriff Elmer Michael Walsh, a Republican, asserted that politics were behind the charges. He added, "I am satisfied that in every instance attempts to violate jail regulations have been quickly detected and thwarted."

The county jail is under his jurisdiction. The jail warden, Col. Chester L. Fordney, said "conditions are not as bad as the state's attorney thinks."

However he said it was "no secret" that narcotics and other items — knives, razor blades and hypodermic needles—have been smuggled into the jail.

Boyle, a Democrat, said Condon began the investigation after an escape plot was discovered July 20. Duplicate jailhouse keys were found among prisoners in a cell tier known as "Little Alcatraz," where four murderers were waiting execution.

Boyle said Condon's report showed prisoners could meet a woman privately in a locked cell for a half an hour for $3. The money, he said, was split up by jail employes and trustees who arranged the tryist.

He said some prisoners had bought whiskey, narcotics or steaks—not on the prison menu. Stainless steel food trays from the jail infirmary were sold for 50 cents each and turned into homemade knives, he said. Such knives were found among prisoners.

He said he will ask the September grand jury to look into conditions disclosed by Condon.

Father Kills Three Children And Self

NAPOLEON, O., Aug. 31 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Shirley Hefflinger didn't go to the state fair with the Napoleon High School band yesterday.

She was ready to go; dressed in her uniform, her camera slung over her shoulder and waiting for her parents to take her to the high school.

Then her father shot and killed her; killed Shirley's baby brothers — Floyd, 3, and Joseph, 2 — and killed himself.

He shot at his wife, Marjorie, 48, but missed her.

Coroner B. L. Johnson, in a verdict of murder and suicide, said that Floyd Joseph Hefflinger, 51, had been despondent. He didn't know why.

Bauer Gives Up U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Frederick E. Bauer, 45, who said he was a former non-practicing Nazi spy, chose yesterday to give up the United States rather than be separated from his family.

Bauer withdrew a court appeal and submitted to deportation as an alien. The government has been trying to get him out of the country since 1945 although he was a naturalized American.

The 49 Liberty Bell replicas used in the latest United States Savings Bond drive were complete except for the crack in the original. It was omitted because these bells must ring.

Don't Be Satisfied With Symptomatic Relief!
RELIEVE THE REAL CAUSE OF YOUR STOMACH DISTRESS
Indigestion, Gas Pains, Heartburn, Bloating when Due to Vitamin B1, B2, Iron and Niacin Deficiencies
ONE OF THE GREATEST BLESSINGS OF THE TIMES!

Here is some wonderful news for you folks who suffer so from stomach disturbances (indigestion, gas, heartburn, sour 'risings' in your throat after meals) because your system lacks the important Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin.

Now—thanks to the great new HADACOL—you can actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of such stomach disturbances caused by these deficiencies. A marked improvement is often noticed within a few days' time. And continued use of HADACOL not only gives continuous, complete relief but helps prevent such distress from coming back. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

Anyone would be very foolish indeed to be satisfied with symptomatic relief, when HADACOL now makes it possible to relieve the VERY CAUSE of this stomach distress due to such deficiencies—know the joy of eating the foods you like without belching and suffering gas pains, heartburn and torturing indigestion afterwards!

How HADACOL Works...

HADACOL not only supplies weak, run-down, deficient systems with extra quantities of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—so vital to help maintain good health.

And these Vitamins and Minerals come in special liquid form so that they can be more easily and quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood—ready to go right to work at once. HADACOL even reinforces your red blood cells (when iron is needed) to carry these healthful elements to every organ in your body—to the kidneys, lungs, liver and heart.

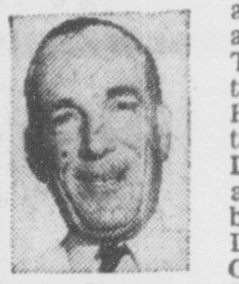
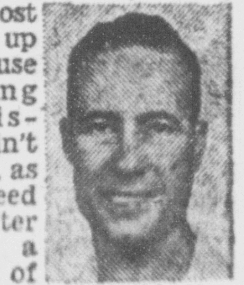
Just a Few of Thousands of Folks With Such Deficiencies Who Have Been Helped!

Tess Kinman, advertising clerk of 1202 Main Street, Cincinnati, Ohio: "I had a nervous stomach. Fried foods, radishes, and other gas-forming foods didn't agree with me. I had no appetite. Indigestion was a chronic worry and bother. Now I have a wonderful appetite. And I eat anything I want to with no fear of indigestion or gas. I owe it all to HADACOL."

Bethel G. Jones, Florida Power Corporation load dispatcher: "I've suffered from stomach distress for quite some time and spent thousands of dollars on medicine and X-rays. I had been reading about HADACOL in the newspapers. I started by buying a small bottle. I am now on my fourth large bottle, and HADACOL has relieved me tremendously. I noticed the difference in the way I felt after a few days. I can't praise HADACOL enough for what it has done for me."



Mr. James Keelan, Jr., 5565 Labadie Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri: "Recently I'd been troubled with heartburn and indigestion. Since taking HADACOL, I no longer suffer heartburn and now I can eat anything without ever suffering after-meal distress. I've recommended it to a number of my fellow-workers."



W. E. Hoxworth, a skilled maintenance man in Waco, Texas, says: "I almost had to give up my job because of suffering stomach distress. I couldn't hold my food, as no food agreed with me. After completing a second bottle of HADACOL, I began to feel better and I suffered no more indigestion. I now take HADACOL regularly to help stay well."

Pretty Mrs. Alma Kincaid, 2125 East Adelaide Street, St. Louis, Missouri, told us this: "I want you to know how much better I feel since I've taken HADACOL. I've had stomach distress for quite a while. But nothing did me any good. They just said I had a nervous stomach. This is my second bottle of HADACOL and I really feel fine. I'm not nervous; I never feel tired. I can eat anything I want to."

Mrs. Hilton Shuff, Rt. 1, Box 42, Ville Platte, La.: "At night I couldn't rest and no matter what I ate, it didn't agree with me. Then my sister told me about HADACOL. I took her advice. I felt better after the third bottle. So far I've taken 15 bottles of HADACOL. I eat anything I want to. I sleep well every night, and my housework doesn't tire me at all."

Keyser Legion Approves Plans For Building

$70,000 Structure Would Be Leased

KEYSER, W. Va. — Boyce-Heuser No. 41, American Legion, approved negotiations Wednesday night by Legion officials for the construction of a building to cost $70,000 on the former Carskadon property on South Main Street, to be leased to the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company for use as a super market.

The membership votes gave permission to the board of trustees of the Memorial Home Corporation to proceed with the financial arrangements for completing a contract with the company and a builder.

The proposed cost of $70,000 was considered favorably a few weeks ago, but the Korean war situation may have changed the entire setup, due to rising costs which may prevent constructing a suitable building at that price, officials said.

If the project is carried through, a large parking lot will be located on the northern part of the property, with the building on the southern end.

Legion Home Work Finished

MEYERSDALE, Pa. — Improvements to the second floor of the Legion home have been completed, William Grasser reported at the regular meeting of Charles E. Kelly Post 112, American Legion.

Installation of fixtures, furniture and other items which have been awaited for the past week will complete the project, Grasser said.

M. Frank Beamer was named as a delegate to the national convention, which will be held in Los Angeles, Calif. Purchase of a television set was discussed.

Keyser Legion Approves Plans For Building

$70,000 Structure Would Be Leased

KEYSER, W. Va. — Boyce-Heuser No. 41, American Legion, approved negotiations Wednesday night by Legion officials for the construction of a building to cost $70,000 on the former Carskadon property on South Main Street, to be leased to the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company for use as a super market.

The membership votes gave permission to the board of trustees of the Memorial Home Corporation to proceed with the financial arrangements for completing a contract with the company and a builder.

The proposed cost of $70,000 was considered favorably a few weeks ago, but the Korean war situation may have changed the entire setup, due to rising costs which may prevent constructing a suitable building at that price, officials said.

If the project is carried through, a large parking lot will be located on the northern part of the property, with the building on the southern end.

Legion Home Work Finished

MEYERSDALE, Pa. — Improvements to the second floor of the Legion home have been completed, William Grasser reported at the regular meeting of Charles E. Kelly Post 112, American Legion.

Installation of fixtures, furniture and other items which have been awaited for the past week will complete the project, Grasser said.

M. Frank Beamer was named as a delegate to the national convention, which will be held in Los Angeles, Calif. Purchase of a television set was discussed.

2 Noblewomen, TV Star Evicted

NEW YORK, (INS)—Two British noblewomen, a TV star, and a Hollywood secretary were evicted from a gas-era brownstone mansion owned by the banking family of Rothschild.

The eviction was ordered in Municipal Court when it was proved that Lady Josephine Sharp, 79, had sliced up the mansion into room-and-bath suites for rental in violation of the original lease providing the premises be preserved as a Rothschild family relic.

With Lady Josephine, who identified herself as a descendant of "the Earl of Milford" and "Lord Drummond" of the British peerage, went her widowed daughter, Mrs. Gladys Gleason. They carried a collection of knickknacks said to have been gifts to their forebears from Queen Victoria.

Among the sub-tenants made homeless by the eviction were Diane Corday, TV star, and Melanie Romera, recently arrived from Hollywood where she had been social secretary to Leopold Stokowski, and Opera Star Rise Stevens.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The latest in beauty contests. Yes, sir, a group of television stations is conducting a contest from coast to coast to discover "Miss U.S. Television" and the results will be worth watching.

The winner must have looks, as she'll get real competition from Gorgeous George.

After the contest, "Miss U. S. Television" will probably have her picture on billboards with the caption: "She's young . . . she's engaged . . . she's beautiful even on kinescope."

But this contest proves that television is popular with women, and that's understandable. In what other medium could mother go to the wrestling matches and still keep an eye on the kiddies?

Beauty contest winners sometimes marry millionaires. But that probably won't happen with "Miss U. S. Television." TV being what it is, she'll probably marry an optician.

Yanks Belt Bob Lemon, 7-5, And Up Lead To Two Games

Smack Four Homers In Sweeping Series

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Blasting Bob Lemon for four home runs into all sections of the stands, the New York Yankees went on to conquer the Cleveland Indians, 7-5, today and increase their American League lead to two full games.

In making a clean sweep of the four game series with the injury riddled Tribe, the Yankees picked up another game on the second place Detroit Tigers who suffered a 2-1 setback in Washington.

Faced with the unhappy prospect of falling five games off the pace, Manager Lou Boudreau's men did not give up without a battle. Trailing 7-3 as they came up for their last time at bat, the Indians rallied for two runs against Joe Page and had the potential tying run at the plate with only one out. Tom Ferrick replaced Page at this point and snuffed out the rally with but three pitches.

Page had halted an earlier Indian uprising, coming to the rescue of starter Tommy Byrne after the southpaw had been slugged for three runs.

Of the ten hits the Yankees made off Lemon before they sent him to the showers in the eighth, four went for the distance. Each homer landed in a different section of the stands. Johnny Mize powered his 16th four-bagger into the centerfield bleachers, 400 feet away, in the fourth. Cliff Mapes hit his 10th into the stands in right center in the fifth. Yogi Berra belted his 19th into deep right in the sixth and little Phil Rizzuto rapped his fourth into the left field seats in the eighth.

It was the eighth defeat for Cleveland's 20-game winner and half of his losses have been dealt him by the Yankees. Box:

Hockman's Tossers Claim Forfeit Win, C. & P. Tops Wilson's

The C. & P. Telephone Company defeated Wilson Hardware Company, 4-2, and Hockman's Esso claimed a forfeit victory over Pen-Mar Brick in American Division games of the City Recreation Softball League yesterday.

Larrick hurled the Phonemen to their 20th win of the season. Luttrell banged a triple and single for the winners.

Scoring six runs in the top of the 6th to take a 9-4 lead, Hockman's charged that Pen-Mar Brick deliberately stalled so the inning could not be completed.

In claiming the game via forfeit, Hockman's quoted Rule 7, Section 4, which states that a team can lose a game by forfeit if it employs tactics palpably designed to delay the contest. Basilio and Wolford were the umpires.

Wilson's base-cleaning double put Hockman's out in front in the 6th inning. Scores:

The Fraternal Order of Eagles and the B.P.O. Elks won the opening games of the Rocking Chair Softball League playoff series last night at Penn Avenue Field.

Allan Sheetz, Eagles' ace, who won eleven games and lost two during the regular campaign, blanked the Moose for the third time, letting the opposition down with two hits, one of the infield variety, while throwing the third strike past 14 batsmen. He whiffed at least one batsman in every inning and issued two passes. The shutout was the 8th of the season for Sheetz.

The lone tally came in the initial frame off Ray Frye when Doyle George singled, advanced to third on two passes balls, Jim Angellatta walked and Jim Rice singled home George.

There were no extra base hits in the game and no player got more than one hit.

Harry Minnicks played a bangup game at first base, making several nice stops of line drives.

Jim Wilkinson was returned the winner over Jim Morrison as the Elks edged the Outdoor Club in the opener of their best-of-three-games 6-5. No other particulars were furnished on this game.

The series will be resumed Tuesday with the Eagles and Moose meeting at 6 p. m. and the Elks and Outdoor Club clashing at 7:15 p. m. at Penn Avenue Field. Score of Moose-Eagles game:

Barrelville Files Protest After Game Ends In 1-1 Draw

Wellersburg and Barrelville of the Pen-Mar Baseball League battled to a 2-2 tie yesterday in a 7-inning game played under protest by Barrelville.

With two away and two on the paths in the last of the 7th and Wellersburg leading 2-1, Duckworth was stealing third base when Kennell, Wellersburg catcher, committed a passed ball and the runner raced home with the tally that knotted the score.

As Duckworth scored the catcher had retrieved the ball and the latter's throw to Pitcher Horwath struck a batsman in the back. Wellersburg charged interference. When the umpire ordered Duckworth to return to third base, Barrelville protested. At this point the game ended.

Only nine hits were made by the teams. Athey with a double and single and Duckworth with two singles accounted for four of Barrelville's five safeties. Score:

Maryland Mile Tracks Reduce Stakes Program

Laurel And Pimlico Make Cuts For Fall

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — It's getting tougher all the time for racing horse owners to win money in Maryland.

Big money, anyway.

More reductions and eliminations of stakes are contained in the fall schedule announced for Laurel and Pimlico, the state's principal distributors of racing wealth.

Four stakes will be offered during each 13-day meeting. Laurel's will be worth a total of $57,500 and Pimlico's $70,000. In all, ten stakes run last year and worth $85,000 are missing.

The four stakes complete each track's program for the year. Both had 12-day meetings in the spring. Putting them all together shows a terrific drop in dollar values.

Laurel's stakes program this year consisted of six worth $72,500. Last year there were 12 totalling $122,500.

Pimlico carded seven in 25 racing days for $145,000 this year. The same money was contained in eight days of racing in the spring of 1949. Just three years ago, Pimlico was advertising a stake a day in the spring alone of 1947 they were worth $237,500.

The cuts haven't been confined to Laurel and Pimlico, but since they had been the most lavish their reductions are more startling.

Havre de Grace, which ran its 25 days last spring, trimmed $25,000 from its six stakes. Bowie is dropping two stakes worth $17,500 at its fall meeting.

Fewer purses and decline in betting have been going on hand in hand at Maryland tracks the last few years. Now it's become somewhat of a "which came first, the chicken or the egg?" question.

The tracks argue you can't offer big money unless you take it in. Others predict that cheap programs will only serve to make business worse than natural.

The highlight of Laurel's fall racing starting Oct. 17 will be the $25,000 Selima Stakes for 2-year-old fillies on Oct. 28. A race for 2-year-olds, The Futurity on Nov. 17, likewise will top Pimlico's purse program at $25,000.

Pimlico's opening day special, the invitation affair for the year's best thoroughbreds, offers $15,000 on Nov. 3. All horses qualifying for the Special won more than that in any one of the many stakes making them eligible.

Hamey Denies Pirates, Seals Have Agreement

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31 (AP) Roy Hamey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said today there was "absolutely nothing" to a Pittsburgh report that the National Leaguers may buy or set up a working agreement with the San Francisco Seals.

Hamey told questioners he had seen Paul Fagan, principal owners of the Seals, during his current visit here but that nothing like a purchase or agreement had been discussed.

"We can't set up an agreement with the Seals, we have one with Indianapolis," he said.

Nancy Chaffee Is Victor Over Louise Brough

Bromwich And Drobny Lose To Americans

By HOWARD SIGMAND

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 31 (INS)) — Glamor and determined youth flashed through the national tennis championships today to kayo the second best woman player in the world and every foreign entrant but the favorite.

Stunning upsets were the order of the day as both the men and women completed the fields for the quarter finals.

Beautiful Nancy Chaffee, the shapely 21-year-old glamour-bun from Ventura, Cal., scored what many considered to be the major upset of the tourney when she straight-setted Wimbledon queen Louise Brough, 6-2, 7-5.

Then Dick Savitt, 23-year-old Cornell University star from Orange, N. J., outlasted Australia's courageous John Bromwich, 3-6, 6-0, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Red-headed Art Larsen of San Francisco eliminated second foreign seeded Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Only Frank Sedgman, Australian Davis Cup Star and the men's favorite, managed to tentatively weather the third round red, white and blue storm that struck the overseas entries.

The 22-year-old Aussie powderkeg was ahead of Earl Cochell, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1, but trailed 4 games to 2 in the fourth set when their match was called because of darkness. It will be resumed tomorrow.

Tom Brown, Jr., of San Francisco, took care of another of the Aussies' holy terrors. The fledgling lawyer who gave the U. S. its only Davis Cup win, eliminated Young George Worthington, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5.

Third ranked Gardinar Mulloy disposed of Sweden's Torsten Johanssen, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. Sid Schwartz put out Filipino Felicisimo Ampon, 4-6, 6-2, 10-8, 7-5.

Top-American seeded Herbie Flam moved into the quarter final round with a straight set, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, win over Jim Brink.

Billy Talbert had to go five sets before he took Vic Seixas, 6-1, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In other third round women's matches, second-seeded Doris Hart easily ousted Elaine Lewicki, 6-2, 6-1; Shirley Fry beat Mrs. Elfi Carroll, 6-1, 6-1; Barbara Scofield ousted Mrs. Magda Rurac, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2; Beverly Baker defeated Barbara Kimbrell, 6-3, 6-0, and Betty Rosenquest eliminated Lois Felix, 6-2, 6-4.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 31 (AP)—Clarence (Doc) Spears, former football coach, is critically ill in University hospital, his dauhgter disclosed today.

His daughter, Mrs. A. C. Lefever, said Spears still is on the hospital's critical list but was "somewhat improved" today. She said her father is suffering from a heart condition and entered the hospital last Saturday.

Bob Spears, son of the former coach, telephoned Yale authorities today that he would be unable to report for football practice tomorrow because of his father's condition. Young Spears is a fullback on the Yale squad.

Spears won renown as a football coach at Wisconsin and later coached at several other colleges and in pro football before he retired. For several years he has been a practicing physician here.

Manager Joe Geatz's Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose took a half game lead over Moorefield in the battle for the 4th place playoff spot in the Interstate Baseball League by defeating the Romney Rockets yesterday at Stitcher Field by the score of 5 to 4.

Prior to yesterday's game the Moose and Moorefield teams were deadlocked for 4th place with records of 14-13.

Two games remain on the Moose schedule, a postponed tilt with Ridgeley which will be played Saturday at 4 p. m. at Stitcher Field and a contest with the Centerville Reds on the same field Labor Day, September 4.

Moorefield plays a single game at Hyndman on Sunday and invades Everett for a doubleheader on Monday.

Jack Kauffman gave up 11 hits out of seven yesterday in posting his 4th win of the season against a single loss. Tommy Allen, who supplanted Gordon Gardner in the 7th frame, took the loss.

A muff by left fielder Wagoner enabled the Moose to score their winning marker in the ninth inning. Manager Geatz singled, moved to second on Clay Ingram's sacrifice, advanced to third on a wild pitch and raced home with the run that broke a 4-4 deadlock when Wagoner dropped Cecil's line drive to left field.

Jim Gaffney belted a two-run homer that knotted the count at 3-3 in the 6th. He also smacked a two-bagger. Charley Cumiskey collected two singles. For Romney, Henderson had three singles and Corbin larruped a double and single. The score:

2 Noblewomen, TV Star Evicted

NEW YORK, (INS)—Two British noblewomen, a TV star, and a Hollywood secretary were evicted from a gas-era brownstone mansion owned by the banking family of Rothschild.

The eviction was ordered in Municipal Court when it was proved that Lady Josephine Sharp, 79, had sliced up the mansion into room-and-bath suites for rental in violation of the original lease providing the premises be preserved as a Rothschild family relic.

With Lady Josephine, who identified herself as a descendant of "the Earl of Milford" and "Lord Drummond" of the British peerage, went her widowed daughter, Mrs. Gladys Gleason. They carried a collection of knickknacks said to have been gifts to their forebears from Queen Victoria.

Among the sub-tenants made homeless by the eviction were Diane Corday, TV star, and Melanie Romera, recently arrived from Hollywood where she had been social secretary to Leopold Stokowski, and Opera Star Rise Stevens.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

The latest in beauty contests. Yes, sir, a group of television stations is conducting a contest from coast to coast to discover "Miss U.S. Television" and the results will be worth watching.

The winner must have looks, as she'll get real competition from Gorgeous George.

After the contest, "Miss U. S. Television" will probably have her picture on billboards with the caption: "She's young . . . she's engaged . . . she's beautiful even on kinescope."

But this contest proves that television is popular with women, and that's understandable. In what other medium could mother go to the wrestling matches and still keep an eye on the kiddies?

Beauty contest winners sometimes marry millionaires. But that probably won't happen with "Miss U. S. Television." TV being what it is, she'll probably marry an optician.

Taylor Entry Is First, Third In New Jersey

Magnet Beats Penson At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31 (AP)—The William P. Taylor entry of Magnet and Play Toy ran first and third, respectively, in the Linwood purse, feature event at Atlantic City today.

With Play Toy cutting out the early pace Magnet came fast through the stretch to beat Mrs. William E. Snell's Penson by two lengths.

It was the first victory for Magnet since his fall at Garden State Park. The son of Fenelon and Dorothy Owsley, winner of the Capitol Handicap earlier in the spring, was at his best today. The 4-year-old gelding was clocked in 1:10 flat for the six furlongs to give Jockey Logan Batcheller his second riding victory of the day. The lightweight rider was up on Tuscany in the fourth event.

The mutuel payoffs on the winning entry were $16.20, $8.80, $12.20 and Penson returned $13.60 and $9.60. The attendance was 11,401.

There was a $436.20 daily double payoff on the "12-9" combination when Recluse at $80.00 straight won the first race and Hankie raced to an $11.20 triumph in the second race.

Hot Cops 'Chase

AQUEDUCT, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Rigan McKinney's Hot had the easiest sort of time winning the 33rd edition of the Harbor Hill, a $10,000 added Steeplechase Handicap, before an estimated crowd of 17,000 fans here today.

Taking the lead at the flagfall, Hot opened up a five length lead and was only galloping at the end Pat Smithwick had the mount on the 6-year-old son of Teufel-Sun Rouge, who was clocked in 3:47 2-5 for the two mile journey around the rain-soaked course.

Twelve lengths back of Hot came his stablemate, Allier, who was running in the silks of Mrs. Corliss Sullivan, mother of owner-trainer McKinney, a former amateur jump rider. McKinney's Navigate won the stake in 1946.

The Hot-Allier entry, favored in the betting, returned a mutuel of $5.20 and $4.20. There was no show wagering.

Four Games Carded In County League

Four games are on tap in the County Softball League today.

Corriganville plays at LaVale, Wellersburg at Ellerslie, Hyndman at Stringtown and Potomac Valley at Narrows Park.

Ellerslie claimed a forfeit victory over Narrows Park yesterday at the Park but the home team protested, charging that Ellerslie had also failed to field nine players to start the game.

Yanks Belt Bob Lemon, 7-5, And Up Lead To Two Games

Smack Four Homers In Sweeping Series

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP)—Blasting Bob Lemon for four home runs into all sections of the stands, the New York Yankees went on to conquer the Cleveland Indians, 7-5, today and increase their American League lead to two full games.

In making a clean sweep of the four game series with the injury riddled Tribe, the Yankees picked up another game on the second place Detroit Tigers who suffered a 2-1 setback in Washington.

Faced with the unhappy prospect of falling five games off the pace, Manager Lou Boudreau's men did not give up without a battle. Trailing 7-3 as they came up for their last time at bat, the Indians rallied for two runs against Joe Page and had the potential tying run at the plate with only one out. Tom Ferrick replaced Page at this point and snuffed out the rally with but three pitches.

Page had halted an earlier Indian uprising, coming to the rescue of starter Tommy Byrne after the southpaw had been slugged for three runs.

Of the ten hits the Yankees made off Lemon before they sent him to the showers in the eighth, four went for the distance. Each homer landed in a different section of the stands. Johnny Mize powered his 16th four-bagger into the centerfield bleachers, 400 feet away, in the fourth. Cliff Mapes hit his 10th into the stands in right center in the fifth. Yogi Berra belted his 19th into deep right in the sixth and little Phil Rizzuto rapped his fourth into the left field seats in the eighth.

It was the eighth defeat for Cleveland's 20-game winner and half of his losses have been dealt him by the Yankees. Box:

Bearden Scores 2-1 Win Over Detroit

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31 (AP)—The Sagging Detroit Tigers slipped another game out of first place by taking a 2 to 1 beating from Washington's Senators.

The New York Yankees, who took over the American League lead last night, meanwhile completed a sweep of their four-game series with the Cleveland Indians. The 7 to 5 win put the Yanks two full games on top.

Gene Bearden allowed the Tigers nine hits and managed to cut them off with a single run in a ninth-inning rally built around a walk and two hits. Box:

Hockman's Tossers Claim Forfeit Win, C. & P. Tops Wilson's

The C. & P. Telephone Company defeated Wilson Hardware Company, 4-2, and Hockman's Esso claimed a forfeit victory over Pen-Mar Brick in American Division games of the City Recreation Softball League yesterday.

Larrick hurled the Phonemen to their 20th win of the season. Luttrell banged a triple and single for the winners.

Scoring six runs in the top of the 6th to take a 9-4 lead, Hockman's charged that Pen-Mar Brick deliberately stalled so the inning could not be completed.

In claiming the game via forfeit, Hockman's quoted Rule 7, Section 4, which states that a team can lose a game by forfeit if it employs tactics palpably designed to delay the contest. Basilio and Wolford were the umpires.

Wilson's base-cleaning double put Hockman's out in front in the 6th inning. Scores:

Sheetz Beats Moose, 1-0

Elks Edge ODC, 6-5, In Series Opener

The Fraternal Order of Eagles and the B.P.O. Elks won the opening games of the Rocking Chair Softball League playoff series last night at Penn Avenue Field.

Allan Sheetz, Eagles' ace, who won eleven games and lost two during the regular campaign, blanked the Moose for the third time, letting the opposition down with two hits, one of the infield variety, while throwing the third strike past 14 batsmen. He whiffed at least one batsman in every inning and issued two passes. The shutout was the 8th of the season for Sheetz.

The lone tally came in the initial frame off Ray Frye when Doyle George singled, advanced to third on two passes balls, Jim Angellatta walked and Jim Rice singled home George.

There were no extra base hits in the game and no player got more than one hit.

Harry Minnicks played a bangup game at first base, making several nice stops of line drives.

Jim Wilkinson was returned the winner over Jim Morrison as the Elks edged the Outdoor Club in the opener of their best-of-three-games 6-5. No other particulars were furnished on this game.

The series will be resumed Tuesday with the Eagles and Moose meeting at 6 p. m. and the Elks and Outdoor Club clashing at 7:15 p. m. at Penn Avenue Field. Score of Moose-Eagles game:

Barrelville Files Protest After Game Ends In 1-1 Draw

Wellersburg and Barrelville of the Pen-Mar Baseball League battled to a 2-2 tie yesterday in a 7-inning game played under protest by Barrelville.

With two away and two on the paths in the last of the 7th and Wellersburg leading 2-1, Duckworth was stealing third base when Kennell, Wellersburg catcher, committed a passed ball and the runner raced home with the tally that knotted the score.

As Duckworth scored the catcher had retrieved the ball and the latter's throw to Pitcher Horwath struck a batsman in the back. Wellersburg charged interference. When the umpire ordered Duckworth to return to third base, Barrelville protested. At this point the game ended.

Only nine hits were made by the teams. Athey with a double and single and Duckworth with two singles accounted for four of Barrelville's five safeties. Score:

Maryland Mile Tracks Reduce Stakes Program

Laurel And Pimlico Make Cuts For Fall

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP) — It's getting tougher all the time for racing horse owners to win money in Maryland.

Big money, anyway.

More reductions and eliminations of stakes are contained in the fall schedule announced for Laurel and Pimlico, the state's principal distributors of racing wealth.

Four stakes will be offered during each 13-day meeting. Laurel's will be worth a total of $57,500 and Pimlico's $70,000. In all, ten stakes run last year and worth $85,000 are missing.

The four stakes complete each track's program for the year. Both had 12-day meetings in the spring. Putting them all together shows a terrific drop in dollar values.

Laurel's stakes program this year consisted of six worth $72,500. Last year there were 12 totalling $122,500.

Pimlico carded seven in 25 racing days for $145,000 this year. The same money was contained in eight days of racing in the spring of 1949. Just three years ago, Pimlico was advertising a stake a day in the spring alone of 1947 they were worth $237,500.

The cuts haven't been confined to Laurel and Pimlico, but since they had been the most lavish their reductions are more startling.

Havre de Grace, which ran its 25 days last spring, trimmed $25,000 from its six stakes. Bowie is dropping two stakes worth $17,500 at its fall meeting.

Fewer purses and decline in betting have been going on hand in hand at Maryland tracks the last few years. Now it's become somewhat of a "which came first, the chicken or the egg?" question.

The tracks argue you can't offer big money unless you take it in. Others predict that cheap programs will only serve to make business worse than natural.

The highlight of Laurel's fall racing starting Oct. 17 will be the $25,000 Selima Stakes for 2-year-old fillies on Oct. 28. A race for 2-year-olds, The Futurity on Nov. 17, likewise will top Pimlico's purse program at $25,000.

Pimlico's opening day special, the invitation affair for the year's best thoroughbreds, offers $15,000 on Nov. 3. All horses qualifying for the Special won more than that in any one of the many stakes making them eligible.

Hamey Denies Pirates, Seals Have Agreement

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31 (AP) Roy Hamey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, said today there was "absolutely nothing" to a Pittsburgh report that the National Leaguers may buy or set up a working agreement with the San Francisco Seals.

Hamey told questioners he had seen Paul Fagan, principal owners of the Seals, during his current visit here but that nothing like a purchase or agreement had been discussed.

"We can't set up an agreement with the Seals, we have one with Indianapolis," he said.

Nancy Chaffee Is Victor Over Louise Brough

Bromwich And Drobny Lose To Americans

By HOWARD SIGMAND

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 31 (INS)) — Glamor and determined youth flashed through the national tennis championships today to kayo the second best woman player in the world and every foreign entrant but the favorite.

Stunning upsets were the order of the day as both the men and women completed the fields for the quarter finals.

Beautiful Nancy Chaffee, the shapely 21-year-old glamour-bun from Ventura, Cal., scored what many considered to be the major upset of the tourney when she straight-setted Wimbledon queen Louise Brough, 6-2, 7-5.

Then Dick Savitt, 23-year-old Cornell University star from Orange, N. J., outlasted Australia's courageous John Bromwich, 3-6, 6-0, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Red-headed Art Larsen of San Francisco eliminated second foreign seeded Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Only Frank Sedgman, Australian Davis Cup Star and the men's favorite, managed to tentatively weather the third round red, white and blue storm that struck the overseas entries.

The 22-year-old Aussie powderkeg was ahead of Earl Cochell, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1, but trailed 4 games to 2 in the fourth set when their match was called because of darkness. It will be resumed tomorrow.

Tom Brown, Jr., of San Francisco, took care of another of the Aussies' holy terrors. The fledgling lawyer who gave the U. S. its only Davis Cup win, eliminated Young George Worthington, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5.

Third ranked Gardinar Mulloy disposed of Sweden's Torsten Johanssen, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. Sid Schwartz put out Filipino Felicisimo Ampon, 4-6, 6-2, 10-8, 7-5.

Top-American seeded Herbie Flam moved into the quarter final round with a straight set, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, win over Jim Brink.

Billy Talbert had to go five sets before he took Vic Seixas, 6-1, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In other third round women's matches, second-seeded Doris Hart easily ousted Elaine Lewicki, 6-2, 6-1; Shirley Fry beat Mrs. Elfi Carroll, 6-1, 6-1; Barbara Scofield ousted Mrs. Magda Rurac, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2; Beverly Baker defeated Barbara Kimbrell, 6-3, 6-0, and Betty Rosenquest eliminated Lois Felix, 6-2, 6-4.

Manager Joe Geatz's Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose took a half game lead over Moorefield in the battle for the 4th place playoff spot in the Interstate Baseball League by defeating the Romney Rockets yesterday at Stitcher Field by the score of 5 to 4.

Prior to yesterday's game the Moose and Moorefield teams were deadlocked for 4th place with records of 14-13.

Two games remain on the Moose schedule, a postponed tilt with Ridgeley which will be played Saturday at 4 p. m. at Stitcher Field and a contest with the Centerville Reds on the same field Labor Day, September 4.

Moorefield plays a single game at Hyndman on Sunday and invades Everett for a doubleheader on Monday.

Jack Kauffman gave up 11 hits out of seven yesterday in posting his 4th win of the season against a single loss. Tommy Allen, who supplanted Gordon Gardner in the 7th frame, took the loss.

A muff by left fielder Wagoner enabled the Moose to score their winning marker in the ninth inning. Manager Geatz singled, moved to second on Clay Ingram's sacrifice, advanced to third on a wild pitch and raced home with the run that broke a 4-4 deadlock when Wagoner dropped Cecil's line drive to left field.

Jim Gaffney belted a two-run homer that knotted the count at 3-3 in the 6th. He also smacked a two-bagger. Charley Cumiskey collected two singles. For Romney, Henderson had three singles and Corbin larruped a double and single. The score:

Taylor Entry Is First, Third In New Jersey

Magnet Beats Penson At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 31 (AP)—The William P. Taylor entry of Magnet and Play Toy ran first and third, respectively, in the Linwood purse, feature event at Atlantic City today.

With Play Toy cutting out the early pace Magnet came fast through the stretch to beat Mrs. William E. Snell's Penson by two lengths.

It was the first victory for Magnet since his fall at Garden State Park. The son of Fenelon and Dorothy Owsley, winner of the Capitol Handicap earlier in the spring, was at his best today. The 4-year-old gelding was clocked in 1:10 flat for the six furlongs to give Jockey Logan Batcheller his second riding victory of the day. The lightweight rider was up on Tuscany in the fourth event.

The mutuel payoffs on the winning entry were $16.20, $8.80, $12.20 and Penson returned $13.60 and $9.60. The attendance was 11,401.

There was a $436.20 daily double payoff on the "12-9" combination when Recluse at $80.00 straight won the first race and Hankie raced to an $11.20 triumph in the second race.

Hot Cops 'Chase

AQUEDUCT, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Rigan McKinney's Hot had the easiest sort of time winning the 33rd edition of the Harbor Hill, a $10,000 added Steeplechase Handicap, before an estimated crowd of 17,000 fans here today.

Taking the lead at the flagfall, Hot opened up a five length lead and was only galloping at the end Pat Smithwick had the mount on the 6-year-old son of Teufel-Sun Rouge, who was clocked in 3:47 2-5 for the two mile journey around the rain-soaked course.

Twelve lengths back of Hot came his stablemate, Allier, who was running in the silks of Mrs. Corliss Sullivan, mother of owner-trainer McKinney, a former amateur jump rider. McKinney's Navigate won the stake in 1946.

The Hot-Allier entry, favored in the betting, returned a mutuel of $5.20 and $4.20. There was no show wagering.

X-Ray Exam Shows Danny Murtaugh's Skull Fractured

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31 (AP)—An X-ray examination at Presbyterian Hospital today showed that Danny Murtaugh, 33-year-old second baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has a fractured skull. He was struck on the back of the head with a pitch thrown by Sal Maglie of the New York Giants last night.

Danny Murtaugh

Believed not to be hurt seriously, Murtaugh was ordered to the hospital as a precautionary measure. Pictures were taken and showed what Dr. Norman C. Ochsenheirt, Pittsburgh club physician, announced as a "linear fracture."

The veteran infielder will remain in the hospital for at least ten days, then go home to Chester, Pa. He will not play any more this year.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY MANNERS

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31—(INS)—Wait 'till you see the background shots in Alfred Hitchcock's "Two Strangers On A Train." Hitchy has been at Forest Hills making tennis shots for the Warner movie all week and concentrating on Ginger Rogers playing in the Pimms Cup tournament.

Ginger Rogers

Bet this is the first movie in which Ginger ever appeared without screen credit!

She's all over the place in the background looking cuter than peanuts in her white shorts and her hair in pigtails playing like a champ. Just to make her sports conquest complete—Ginger plays an exhibition golf tournament before she leaves New York.

Sarah Churchill and Tony Beauchamp have bought a house, sight unseen, in the suburbs of London solely on the advice of Sarah's mother who wrote—"It's a bargain. Take it."

"All we know about it," laughs the charming Sarah, "is that it is cottage style, with quite delightful carpets and drapes and an enchanting garden."

Some "romancing" for Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor touring the canals of Venice in a flower-bedecked gondola, complete with cushions and singing gondoliers—followed by eight gondolas filled with reporters, photographers and publicity men!

"I'd thought getting Taylor alone in a gondola in Venice would be romance plus," writes Barbara, "but when the press showed up in such flattering numbers—the harm came out in us. So we made the tour with all the privacy of lead ponies in a circus parade."

Edward Small is putting "Teen-Age Report," a documentary on our shocking teen-age problems, into production soon for Columbia. Such a film should jolt us to the realization of how far afield we have gone in our responsibilities to the youth of our country.

This case of Tommy Cook, 17-year-old murder defendant, and the unbelievable "cheering section" conduct of teen-agers at his trial, is just one among many deplorable examples of how deeply we have failed to care for our postwar youth.

Small says there will be no stars in the cast. Unknowns will play actual case histories on file in juvenile courts from all over the country.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Rica Soma (Mrs. John Huston) resumes her career in "She Stoops To Conquer" September 4 at the Globe Theater here. Everything all right at home?

Charlton Heston wound up his 26 cities appearance tour in Hollywood where he gets the press, radio and publicity treatment for the next three days.

Shirley Temple and her beau, Charles Black, came to the Rory Calhouns' anniversary party—seeming as interested in each other as ever. The dinner at the Beverly Hills Hotel was on the sentimental side until Richard Sale and Mary Loos started showing everybody how to talk in Indian sign language, which they learned making "Tomahawk." Very funny—if you keep your signs straight.

Later, the Keenan Wynns and Lita and Rory went on to Ciro's to hear Mary McCarty. By the way, the Singing Alexanders open there (with holdover Mary) tomorrow night.

Marlon Brando has been catching up on the old John Barrymore pictures.

Ruth Hussey is the first actress to entertain the Korean war wounded. She was "on" for over an hour at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

Nina Foch and Jack Merivale a woosome at Jay's Beach Cafe.

Lenore Ulric having the success she deserves playing summer stock in the East.

Jim Frasher took Debbie Reynolds to look at the stars at Griffith Observatory—real ones, not movie. I hear this boy is good in "Raton Pass."

Lorraine Cugat is getting new lawyers to fight her case against Cugie.

Ilona Massey, once in the vitamin pills business, is now in a new venture—pills to curl the hair!

Tyronne Power is the latest to buy a Jaguar 120 racing car and right from the factory in London. He will drive it on the continent and bring it home.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Duszas, brutally slain with their three children.

Edwin Reynolds

REVELATION by his wife that his friend and boarder, Edwin Reynolds, 27, was the father of his wife's unborn child, led to the deaths of Fred Dusza, 39, his wife, Beatrice, 31, and their three children, aged 11, 8 and 3. Slayings took place at the Duszas' East Greenwich, R. I., home after the two men quarreled. Reynolds admits killing Dusza with an ax and strangling the other four over a period of four hours, then setting the house afire. His pet dog led police to his hiding place. (International Soundphoto)

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

LOS ANGELES (INS)—RINT TALKS with Navy men Korea, Tokyo and Pearl rbor indicate that their ief concern—and it is a deep—is not so much the situation Korea as in Formosa.

Fthe shocking reason that Navyn have been singled out and seve penalized by Navy Secretaryatthews and Defense Chief Louhnson, for expressing truths whio the Navy men seem self evid and in the public interest, I wpt quote them by name. But theords are nonetheless authoritat.

S of them wonder if the Sevt Fleet, whose job it is to "nelize" Formosa, pro and con, is dble of stopping any determ- inedvasion of Chiang Kai-Shek's stroold by a Red Chinese invasionet. The Seventh Fleet, like eventher branch of the Navy, suffi proportionately greater thamer services in the inevitable disament processes which went intoect after V-J Day.

"Vknow the Chinese Reds coulnd about 4,000 junks against Fornn beaches," one veteran Navyan with a background of servin China told me. "And we knowoo, that a great many of thenould get through and discharroops, tanks, guns and supplies.

"Tjunk is a much misunderstoodaft. Americans forget that mostthem are built to withstand the ds of the bigger Chinese riverad that they may not only be brbottomed but also be built of 8-i teak logs. They're hard to sink, der to set on fire, and, wheny do start burning, their crewsw how to douse the flames.

"Evif they came swarming acrosse strait without warship or aei protection, an awful lot of therould escape our guns. And when y discharged their loads on theaches . . ." He paused and shrugg"Well, you can only guess what wd happen within Chiang's army."

Navyen I spoke to shared the concerf Army, Air Force and Marineficers who wonder what role thl be called upon to play in thent of a red invasion of Fomoshe consensus seems to be that would have to fight the Chineseds, or tacitly renege on our offain on-again pledges to Chiang

But timmediate question they raise ifight with what?" The probabruth is that we've got an alarmipercentage of our Sunday punch mitted now in Korea, and it is bar enough. For us to take on Rechina's teeming millions of trainand victory-happy troops at thisne could have only the direst sequences, especially in view the fact that England, Francedia and other United Nations mbers now giving material or mo support to the fight in Korea bably would refuse to join in thermosa battle because they have ched their diplomatic recognit from Chiang to Mao.

Navmen feel with considerable justifion that the Korean mess placed proper focus the so-called "revc which cost Adm. Denfeld, CpCrommelin and others their jbs.

"y had miserable public relaion during that period," a famed Navy man told as he stopped over oridy at Pearl Harbor.

"The newspapers and radio seemed to get the wrong slant, too, and played up the alleged revolt—whereas what we were punching for was a form of unification that did not bleed the national defense white by cutting us and the Marines to ribbons and by telling us what weapons we could and could not buy with funds appropriated to us.

"It is obvious, of course, that we could have done a lot more damage to the North Koreans if we had been able to rim his shores with carriers. It is equally obvious that marines, by special training and instinct, are the ideal opponents of a fast moving, tricky enemy like the North Koreans.

"This is no reflection on any other service. We've all worked better together in this one than ever before, and we'll keep working together. But perhaps the Korean experience has been good for all our planners in Washington. It has made them comprehend a point some of us tried to bring out a year and more ago; that maybe the next war we got into would be a dirty, toe-to-toe job in which the 'push-button' was in no way involved.

Perhaps there'll be a 'push-button' war some day, too, and it will be nice to be ready for it. But there are wars and wars, and this is the kind that needs the sort of fighting that, say, the marines have been doing, with their own aircraft working as close as 50 yards ahead of them with perfect coordination. Yes, there are wars and wars, and even in this day of the a-bomb and the guided missile, such things as a junk take on great portions."

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: "VILLAS" NOW, WITH SOUNDING NAMES, ALL NAME AND DOOR—LE GALLIENNE.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By DOROTHY MANNERS

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 31—(INS)—Wait 'till you see the background shots in Alfred Hitchcock's "Two Strangers On A Train." Hitchy has been at Forest Hills making tennis shots for the Warner movie all week and concentrating on Ginger Rogers playing in the Pimms Cup tournament.

Ginger Rogers

Bet this is the first movie in which Ginger ever appeared without screen credit!

She's all over the place in the background looking cuter than peanuts in her white shorts and her hair in pigtails playing like a champ. Just to make her sports conquest complete—Ginger plays an exhibition golf tournament before she leaves New York.

Sarah Churchill and Tony Beauchamp have bought a house, sight unseen, in the suburbs of London solely on the advice of Sarah's mother who wrote—"It's a bargain. Take it."

"All we know about it," laughs the charming Sarah, "is that it is cottage style, with quite delightful carpets and drapes and an enchanting garden."

•—•—•

Some "romancing" for Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor touring the canals of Venice in a flower-bedecked gondola, complete with cushions and singing gondoliers—followed by eight gondolas filled with reporters, photographers and publicity men!

•—•—•

"I'd thought getting Taylor alone in a gondola in Venice would be romance plus," writes Barbara, "but when the press showed up in such flattering numbers—the harm came out in us. So we made the tour with all the privacy of lead ponies in a circus parade."

•—•—•

Edward Small is putting "Teen-Age Report," a documentary on our shocking teen-age problems, into production soon for Columbia. Such a film should jolt us to the realization of how far afield we have gone in our responsibilities to the youth of our country.

This case of Tommy Cook, 17-year-old murder defendant, and the unbelievable "cheering section" conduct of teen-agers at his trial, is just one among many deplorable examples of how deeply we have failed to care for our postwar youth

Small says there will be no stars in the cast. Unknowns will play actual case histories on file in juvenile courts from all over the country.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Rica Soma (Mrs. John Huston) resumes her career in "She Stoops To Conquer" September 4 at the Globe Theater here. Everything all right at home?

Charlton Heston wound up his 26 cities appearance tour in Hollywood where he gets the press, radio and publicity treatment for the next three days.

Shirley Temple and her beau, Charles Black, came to the Rory Calhouns' anniversary party—seeming as interested in each other as ever. The dinner at the Beverly Hills Hotel was on the sentimental side until Richard Sale and Mary Loos started showing everybody how to talk in Indian sign language, which they learned making "Tomahawk." Very funny—if you keep your signs straight.

Later, the Keenan Wynns and Lita and Rory went on to Ciro's to hear Mary McCarty. By the way, the Singing Alexanders open there (with holdover Mary) tomorrow night.

Marlon Brando has been catching up on the old John Barrymore pictures.

Ruth Hussey is the first actress to entertain the Korean war wounded. She was "on" for over an hour at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

Nina Foch and Jack Merivale a woosome at Jay's Beach Cafe.

Lenore Ulric having the success she deserves playing summer stock in the East.

Jim Frasher took Debbie Reynolds to look at the stars at Griffith Observatory—real ones, not movie. I hear this boy is good in "Raton Pass."

Lorraine Cugat is getting new lawyers to fight her case against Cugie.

Ilona Massey, once in the vitamin pills business, is now in a new venture—pills to curl the hair!

Tyronne Power is the latest to buy a Jaguar 120 racing car and right from the factory in London. He will drive it on the continent and bring it home.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Duszas, brutally slain with their three children.

Edwin Reynolds

REVELATION by his wife that his friend and boarder, Edwin Reynolds, 27, was the father of his wife's unborn child, led to the deaths of Fred Dusza, 39, his wife, Beatrice, 31, and their three children, aged 11, 8 and 3. Slayings took place at the Duszas' East Greenwich, R. I., home after the two men quarreled. Reynolds admits killing Dusza with an ax and strangling the other four over a period of four hours, then setting the house afire. His pet dog led police to his hiding place. (International Soundphoto)

Cards of Thanks

We take this means of expressing sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful following the death of our beloved husband and father, Leslie William Fair. We are grateful for the use of motor cars for the funeral, to those who sent floral tributes and to all others who in any manner rendered assistance.
MRS. ISABELLE FAIR and Family

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved mother, Mary Reager, who died nine years ago today, August 29th, 1941.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a love done gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.
Sadly missed by
Her CHILDREN, 637 Elm St.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, A. W. Buck Penner who passed away Sept. 1, 1922.

Our family circle is broken
The voice we loved is still
Your place is vacant in our hearts
No one can ever fill
Flowers we place upon your grave
Will wither and decay
But love for you who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER & SISTER

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles H. Perrin, who passed away 4 years ago, September 1, 1946.

This day to us will always be
One of sad remembrance.
For one we loved with all our hearts,
Four years ago was taken from us.
Gone from this world of sin and sorrow,
To a land of glory and rest.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where you are laid.
"He is sleeping, not dead."
Sadly missed by his wife,
MRS. ROSIE PERRIN,
and children,
THOMAS, MICHAEL & BERTHA SMITH.

By BOB CONSIDINE

LOS ANGELES (INS)—R NT TALKS with Navy men Korea, Tokyo and Pearl rbor indicate that their ief concern—and it is a deep—is not so much the situation Korea as in Formosa.

Fhe shocking reason that Navn have been singled out and seve penalized by Navy Secretaryatthews and Defense Chief Louhnson, for expressing truths whio the Navy men seem self evid and in the public interest, I wt quote them by name. But theords are nonetheless authoritat

S of them wonder if the Sev Fleet, whose job it is to "nelize" Formosa, pro and con, is cble of stopping any determinevasion of Chiang Kai-Shek's stroold by a Red Chinese invasionet. The Seventh Fleet, like eventher branch of the Navy, suff proportionately greater thaner services in the inevitable disament processes which went intoct after V-J Day.

"Vknow the Chinese Reds coulnd about 4,000 junks against Fornn beaches," one veteran Navan with a background of servin China told me. "And we knowoo, that a great many of theould get through and discharroops, tanks, guns and supplies.

"Tjunk is a much misunderstoodaft. Americans forget that mostthem are built to withstand the ds of the bigger Chinese riversd that they may not only be brbottomed but also be built of 8-i teak logs. They're hard to sink, der to set on fire, and, wheny do start burning, their crews w how to douse the flames.

"Evif they came swarming across e strait without warship or ae protection, an awful lot of theould escape our guns. And when y discharged their loads on theaches . . ." He paused and shrugg "Well, you can only guess what d happen within Chiang's army."

Navyen I spoke to shared the concerf Army, Air Force and Marineficers who wonder what role th be called upon to play in theent of a red invasion of Fomosahe consensus seems to be that would have to fight the Chineseds, or tacitly renege on our offain on-again pledges to Chiang

But timmediate question they raise ifight with what?" The probabruth is that we've got an alarmipercentage of our Sunday punch mitted now in Korea, and it is bar enough. For us to take on ReChina's teeming millions of trainand victory-happy troops at thisne could have only the direst sequences, especially in view the fact that England, Francedia and other United Nations mbers now giving material or mo support to the fight in Korea bably would refuse to join in thermosa battle because they have ched their diplomatic recognit from Chiang to Mao.

Namen feel with considerable justifion that the Korean mess place proper focus the so-called "revc which cost Adm. Denfeld, CpCrommelin and others their jbs.

"y had miserable public relation during that period," a famed Nay man told as he stopped over oridy at Pearl Harbor.

"The newspapers and radio seemed to get the wrong slant, too, and played up the alleged revolt—whereas what we were punching for was a form of unification that did not bleed the national defense white by cutting us and the Marines to ribbons and by telling us what weapons we could and could not buy with funds appropriated to us.

"It is obvious, of course, that we could have done a lot more damage to the North Koreans if we had been able to rim his shores with carriers. It is equally obvious that marines, by special training and instinct, are the ideal opponents of a fast moving, tricky enemy like the North Koreans.

"This is no reflection on any other service. We've all worked better together in this one than ever before, and we'll keep working together. But perhaps the Korean experience has been good for all our planners in Washington. It has made them comprehend a point some of us tried to bring out a year and more ago; that maybe the next war we got into would be a dirty, toe-to-toe job in which the 'push-button' was in no way involved.

Perhaps there'll be a 'push-button' war some day, too, and it will be nice to be ready for it. But there are wars and wars, and this is the kind that needs the sort of fighting that, say, the marines have been doing, with their own aircraft working as close as 50 yards ahead of them with perfect coordination. Yes, there are wars and wars, and even in this day of the a-bomb and the guided missile, such things as a junk take on great portions."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Stock Market Action Dull, Narrow And Inconclusive

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Narrow, dull, inconclusive — those are the words to describe today's stock market action.

The list ended a little lower, but the movement downward was not pronounced enough to have any significance.

The most active issue was Socony Vacuum, unchanged at 23. Second most active was United Corp., off ⅛ at 3⅞. In the final hour one block of 16,000 United sold at 3⅞.

Volume of trading amounted to 1,130,000 shares, as compared with 1,490,000 shares Wednesday. As a yardstick of activity — the slowest day this year was 1,060,000 shares on March 13.

There was little unanimity in any of the major goups except rubbers. There the rise among the leaders was from ¼ at 45 for U. S. Rubber to 2¾ at 108¾ for Goodrich.

After the market closed, Chrysler Corp., in a surprise move declared a $3 dividend on common. Chrysler previously declared a $1.75 dividend in June and $1.50 each in three preceding quarters.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .1 of a point to 78.2 with the industrial component off .1 of a point, rails of .3 and utilities up .1 of a point.

There were 1,068 individual issues traded of which 372 advanced and 414 declined with 36 new highs for the year established and three new lows.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROBE FOR INFORMATION

IT IS NOT necessary, as a rule, to make an out and out guess as to the location of an outstanding queen, which must be prevented from winning a trick when you have the other honors and are able to finesse in either direction. It is not even necessary to make a logical deduction from the bidding and opening lead, which may show the likelihood of one defender holding the crucial card. Sometimes you can make absolutely certain of how to play your combination by probing for information first in playing tricks of other suits. You may get an exact count on one defender which tells the tale.

North:
♠ K 10 7 6
♥ J 8 4
♦ K J 10
♣ A 8 6

West:
♠ 8 5 3
♥ A K 9 6 3 2
♦ 7
♣ Q 4 3

East:
♥ 7
♦ Q 8 6 4 3 2
♣ J 10 9 7 2

South:
♠ A Q J 9 2
♥ Q 10 5
♦ A 9 5
♣ K 5

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♠ | 2 ♥ | 2 ♠ | Pass |
| 4 ♠ | | | |

Everybody reached that contract in a social duplicate, but the hand got three different kinds of play from declarers of different grades. It started the same everywhere, with West scoring the heart K and A, leading a third heart for East to ruff and the club J coming back to the K. Each declarer then drew trumps in three rounds and was ready for the crucial play of the diamonds.

Who had the queen? That was the question. Some of the Souths decided West was the more likely to hold it because he had made a bid. These laid down the A, then led the 5. When West discarded a heart, they knew East was bound to take the setting trick.

Several luckier declarers reckoned East was the dangerous man because West held so many hearts that East was more likely to have the protected queen. So they scored the diamond K first, then led the J and so made their contracts.

A wiser declarer, after drawing trumps, scored the club A and ruffed the club 8. West had already shown that he originally had six hearts, he had followed suit to three spades and now he followed suit to a third club. That makes twelve cards. So West had only one diamond. South therefore disposed of it with the diamond K, then took the sure-thing marked finesse of the J against East.

What should North lead if West had bid hearts and East spades, and West lands in 3-Diamonds doubled by South?

Cards of Thanks

We take this means of expressing sincere thanks to those of our friends and neighbors who were so sympathetic and helpful following the death of our beloved husband and father, Leslie William Fair. We are grateful for the use of motor cars for the funeral, to those who sent floral tributes and to all others who in any manner rendered assistance.

MRS. ISABELLE FAIR and Family

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved mother, Mary Reager, who died nine years ago today, August 29th, 1941.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a love done gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

Sadly missed by
Her CHILDREN, 637 Elm St.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, A. W. Buck Penner who passed away Sept. 1, 1922.

Our family circle is broken
The voice we loved is still
Your place is vacant in our hearts
No one can ever fill
Flowers we place upon your grave
Will wither and decay
But love for you who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER & SISTER

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles H. Perrin, who passed away 4 years ago, September 1, 1946.

This day to us will always be
One of sad remembrance.
For one we loved with all our hearts,
Four years ago was taken from us.
Gone from this world of sin and sorrow,
To a land of glory and rest.
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where you are laid.
"He is sleeping, not dead."

Sadly missed by his wife,
MRS. ROSIE PERRIN,
and children,
THOMAS, MICHAEL & BERTHA SMITH.

Strike Closes Textile Mill In Lonaconing

No Immediate Settlement Seen

The approximately 120 employes of the General Textile Mill at Lonaconing went out on strike Wednesday night, and both company and union officials said yesterday there is no immediate hope of a setlement.

Charles Walters, mill superintendent, said the plant is completely shut down, with only a watchman on duty.

Members of the Lonaconing sub-local of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, have asked a flat 10-cent an hour wage increase across the board for all employes.

Earl L. Snyder, president of Local 1874, said the Lonaconing workers rejected a company proposal to continue an incentive piece work plan which had been in efect on a trial basis for 60 days.

Agreed To Plan

Employes at the mill had agreed to try the plan as a part of the new contract which was negotiated after the previous one-year contract expired last May 7.

All parts of the new contract had been agreed upon except sections pertaining to pay, Snyder said.

The plant was shut down for four days last spring after the old contract expired and before the incentive plan was agreed upon.

The trial period ended August 15, Snyder said. Two days previously, employes voted against continuing the plan and asked for the flat 10-cent increase, he added.

A week later, the sub-local committee met with Walters and Leonard Frieder, New York City, president of the General Textile Mills Company, but no agreement was reached.

Snyder said the Lonaconing workers rejected the incentive plan because of different rates paid depending on variations of yarn.

The membership instructed the negotiating committee on August 23 to call a strike Wednesday night at 11 o'clock unless agreement was reached before that time.

Majority Are Women

Majority of the employes are women, and all reside in the Lonaconing area.

Walters, who was contacted last night at his home in Lonaconing, said base pay at present is 93 cents an hour.

The flat 10-cent increase asked by the employes would bring wages only to $1.03 an hour, whereas under the incentive plan would be better for both sides," he commented.

The superintendent said he talked by telephone with Frieder yesterday but that no compromise proposal has been offered by either side.

The plant, established in 1907, processes real silk and rayon. Last February and March it employed 210 persons, but a seasonal downswing in the business has decreased the number of workers to about 120 at present.

An upswing is expected in the fall, Walters added.

Officers of the Lonaconing sub-local are Mrs. Viola Tasher, president; Mrs. Maybelle Wilson, vice-president; Miss Gladys Brown, recording secretary; and Robert Shockey, committeeman from the spinning department.

Maps Submitted To Housing Authority

Property line, topographic and utility maps were submitted to the Cumberland Housing Authority yesterday by the Small-Paye Engineering Company.

The maps refer to the proposed 125-unit housing site located in the vicinity of First Street, according to Chairman Howard M. Spiker.

The group passed a resolution changing the by-laws regarding the location of the headquarters office, which was moved from City Hall to the Clark-Keating Building.

Spiker said the group will hold a regular meeting next Wednesday, September 6.

VFW Group To March

The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will leave the post home tonight at 7 o'clock in cars to take part in the Homecoming parade to be held in Romney, W. Va.

Speaks Here

Mahoney Outlines Salient Points Of His Platform

Charging the Gov. Lane "hasn't the slightest idea of what is going on in Maryland and might as well be in Ethiopia," George P. Mahoney, Baltimore contractor who is a Democratic primary candidate for governor, last night outlined salient points of a 22-point platform on which he is basing his campaign.

At a Mahoney-for-Governor rally in the Fort Cumberland Hotel, attended by about 200 persons representing all parts of the county, two other speakers lauded Mahoney as "a great humanitarian," "a man of the people," and "and engineer who knows his business and knows how to run the state."

They were Lawrence Lockwood, a Baltimore contractor, and W. Lee Elgin, former state motor vehicle commissioner.

Predicts Support

Lockwood predicted that six districts of Baltimore, Baltimore County and nine counties on the Eastern Shore will be in the Mahoney column after the September 18 primary.

Elgin said in all his years in public life he has never met a man who has a better understanding of the state and its people's problems than Mahoney. He predicted that five Eastern Shore counties will fall to Mahoney, five of the six Baltimore districts and Washington, Allegany and Garrett Counties.

Charles F. Heller, former city commissioner, introduced Mahoney.

The candidate spoke almost an hour, attacking the Lane administration and charging that "the people of Maryland have been sold down the river."

He told his audience that he is the youngest of 11 children and his father was a police officer who earned about $12 a week. He said he took a job as a water boy on a construction job at an early age, later went to night school, studied engineering and entered the contracting business where he has been successful.

Mahoney said, "I speak the language of the people and know and understand your problems." He promised that if elected he would not wait for the people to come to him in time of emergency, but he would come to the people and try to help solve their problems.

He declared he believes his experience and training qualifies him to build roads and bridges more economically and at greater savings to the taxpayers than Lane.

Cites Coal Industry

The candidate promised to put the miners of Western Maryland back to work by finding markets for their coal. He said he will start sales tax at 35 cents instead of 15 cents and will remove the sales tax on restaurant foods, fuels, baby clothing, lotions, etc.

He pledged continued and more speedy state-wide improvements to schools, hospitals, roads and other institutions of a public nature. The

The Weather

Climatically speaking, yesterday was a rather usual summer day for Cumberland — hot, humid, uncertain. The temperature in the afternoon was 85 in Constitution Park and 87 downtown. About 9 o'clock there was a slight sprinkle of rain, but the heat continued with a 68 low in the Park and a 71 low downtown. Today should be cooler, but cloudy with showers and probably scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon.

Mahoney Group Answers Wilson With Statement

A reply was made yesterday by Michael F. Prendergast, chairman of Mahoney for Governor headquarters here, to a statement made on Wednesday by William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee.

Prendergast's statement follows:

"The statement that appeared in The Cumberland Times yesterday (Wednesday) that William L. Wilson would introduce George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for governor, was not made by anyone at Mahoney headquarters.

"A copy of the invitation to him as chairman of the County Committee was sent to Mr. Suter Kegg of The Times. When I saw the story in the paper I called Mr. Kegg to determine if he had checked with him, and on his authority, had written that Mr. Wilson was accepting the invitation, which as chairman he had the privilege of enjoying. Mr. Kegg said, 'I wondered about that when I read the invitation', admitting that he had not talked to Mr. Wilson. I then called Mr. John Moody of The News and told him of the inaccuracy, asking him to correct it. I said I had no reply from Mr. Wilson. This is verified by the radio announcement at 6 p. m. of Wednesday.

"Mr. Wilson states that the invitation was an attempt to embarrass him. The suggestion that he be invited to introduce Mr. Mahoney was made by his fellow alumnus, J. Goodloe Jackson, who is also president of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association here." So it was made in good faith, as far as I am concerned.

"The Mahoney headquarters has issued no misleading or untrue statements. Neither has anyone

State Group To Study Economic Area Problems

Hearings Set For Oakland, This City

Economic problems in Western Maryland will be studied next month when a state-wide commission visits this area to get a detailed picture of local conditions.

This was reported last night by Noel Speir Cook, Frostburg, an attorney and a member of the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly.

Cook is minority House member of the 15-man Welfare Committee appointed recently by Governor Lane.

As chairman of the sub-committee for Western Maryland, Cook is arranging for the full committee to visit this area September 20 through 22.

The group is headed by William Mahaney, Baltimore, chairman of the Department of Unemployment Security.

Members will tour various sections of Garrett County, including Shallmar, on September 20 and will hold a hearing in Oakland that evening.

Oakland city officials and representatives of the dairy and farm industries, as well as welfare officials and other groups, will be invited to present their views on economic problems and on potentialities for industrial expansion.

On the following day, September 21, similar hearings will get underway in Cumberland at City Hall, starting at 10 a. m. Another half-day session is planned September 22.

Cook said local labor, industrial, service, employment, welfare and similar groups will be invited to send spokesmen to the Cumberland hearings.

On the basis of information secured in Western Maryland, the governor's Welfare Committee will then make recommendations to the 1951 Legislature, he explained.

Since the Cumberland and Western Maryland area has been termed the "most distressed" in the state, committee is anxious to obtain first-hand knowledge of conditions here, Cook said.

Butler Outlines His Platform

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—John Marshall Butler said today he believes in a strong stand against Russian aggression, and rigid economy in all domestic expenditures.

Butler is a candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator. He announced today the platform on which he intends to run.

In the field of international relations, Butler recommended:

A global strategy and a streamlined war production so powerful that Russia will hesitate in further aggression.

Selection of patriots of outstanding ability and integrity to fill administrative positions at home and abroad.

Publication by the national administration of all pertinent facts on our foreign and domestic situation.

Butler's recommedations on the national fiscal policy included:

Rigid economy in all domestic measures.

Elimination of non-war expenditures not compatible with the nation's financial circumstances.

A tax policy which would avoid confiscation on the one hand, and inflation on the other.

Adoption of the Hoover Commission recommendations.

"It would seem," Butler commented, "that the only way to achieve these ends is to elect Republicans."

Keegan Injured In Auto Accident

William V. Keegan, former city commissioner of police and fire, was admitted to Allegany Hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and hospital attaches said he was injured in an automobile accident in Mt. Savage.

They added that Keegan suffered deep cuts on both knees and a possible fracture of the right shoulder. His condition was listed as good.

Keegan's car reportedly careened from Route 36, Mt. Savage's main street, when he lost control and struck a porch post at the home of James Warton.

Mother Saves Children From Burning Barn

Jennings Woman, Son In Oakland Hospital

A 30-year-old mother who rescued her two young sons from a burning hay mow was reported in fair condition last night at Garrett County Memorial Hospital at Oakland.

The woman, Mrs. Lola Yommer, suffered second degree burns about the arms and legs when fire broke out in the barn at her home, five miles south of Grantsville near Jennings.

Her younger son, Roger, 3, also was admitted to the hospital for treatment of second degree burns about the upper part of his body. His condition was listed as fair.

Roger and his five-year-old brother, Tommy, were playing in the hay mow early Monday evening when a lantern Tommy was carrying set the hay afire.

Mrs. Yommer saw smoke coming from the barn and hurried to the scene. She carried the two boys down a ladder to safety. Tommy escaped unhurt.

William Yommer, the husband and father, who operates a small farm on the property, was in Grantsville at the time.

He heard of the fire when the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department was summoned, and hurried home to help firemen fight the flames. The barn was destroyed, however.

Mrs. Yommer and her son were taken to the Oakland hospital by a neighbor, James Bittinger, of Jennings.

Probe Continues In Fatal Crash

The State's Attorney's office said yesterday several witnesses remain to be questioned concerning a fatal accident on Route 220 at Dawson early Wednesday evening.

Joseph Gardner, 35-year-old B. and O. Railroad conductor, died within five minutes after being removed from his wrecked automobile, which crashed against an oil tanker on the slippery highway.

Authorities said Eskon K. Swisher, Springfield, W. Va., identified as the driver of the tanker, was questioned yesterday.

Besides his father, Gardner is survived by four brothers, Wood T. Gardner, Route 2, Keyser; Homer E. Gardner, New Creek, and Biard and Clark W. Gardner, both of Keyser; and four sisters, Mrs. Helen Miller and Mrs. Magdalene Dellinger, both of Keyser; Mrs. Margaret Anderson, Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Virginia Bantz, Fort Ashby.

He was a conductor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Gardner was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad trainmen and Boyce Houser Post No. 41, American Legion.

The body is at the home of his brother, Clark W. Gardner, 568 South Water Street, Keyser. Services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. in First Methodist Church, Keyser, by Rev. L. A. Steele, pastor. Interment will be in Queens Point Cemetery.

59 School Buses Pass Inspection

The Board of Education completed inspection of 71 buses and 11 cars to be used in the transportation of school children and said no major defects were found. Fifty-nine were 'perfect'.

Arthur G. Ramey, director of transportation, said contractors whose equipment showed minor defects during the inspection were ordered to make repairs and report for a recheck within 10 days.

The school bus inspection is conducted four times each year, Ramey said, to insure safety of the children who are transported to and from school.

Marion Abbott, Department of Motor Vehicles, conducted the inspection with Ramey.

Postpones Meeting

Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers (CIO), postponed its regular meeting scheduled for Saturday night because of the Labor Day weekend holiday.

William Claus Retires As General Manager Of C & P

William Claus, 882 Windsor Road, The Dingle, retired yesterday as general manager of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, and thus ended a long and active career in railroading and civil engineering. He told friends yesterday that he intends to "rest, fish a great deal, make a little garden and perhaps travel some."

Claus is widely known in railroad as well as civic circles and has been a resident of Cumberland since August 10, 1914. He came here from Philadelphia, Pa., to become associated with the C & P Railroad as valuation engineer to prepare valuation of the property in accordance with methods adopted under the Federal Valuation Act in 1914. He was given charge of preparation of maps, reports, inventories and cost of the railroad property covering 100 miles of track.

On June 1, 1917, he was appointed engineer maintenance of way for the company and was responsible for design and construction of steel and concrete bridges, terminals, yards, tunnels, pumping plants, and water supply, together with construction and repair of all tracks.

He designed and constructed the long railroad bridge across the Potomac River at Piedmont, W. Va. This steel bridge was destroyed during the flood of March 1924. He built the bridge connecting the C & P with the Western Maryland at Westernport.

On January 31, 1930, Claus was elected by the board of directors of the C & P Railroad Company as a director and general manager with offices in Cumberland. The line was then owned by the Consolidation Coal Company, with headquarters New York.

On November 5, 1941, the board elected him vice president of the C & P Company. In May 1944, the Western Maryland Railway Company acquired all the holdings of the C & P and continued Claus as general manager.

Throughout the 20 years Claus was an executive of the railroad there was not a single strike or single incident of labor trouble. A number of grievences arose but all were settled in a "family-like" manner to the satisfaction of all concerned. He said yesterday that he remembers all the people who worked on the railroad as hard-working, far-minded and loyal people. He sad they gave their fullest cooperation in good times and bad.

Between 1930 and 1940 when the road employed more than 300 people the company went through a severe depression (1932-1935) and a severe flood in 1936 which wrecked the railroad in 30 or more locations and disrupted traffic for over a week.

After that experience, he recalled, business revived gradually until 1940 when coal traffic and working conditions neared normal, although not to the level enjoyed prior to 1930 when 25 or more train crews a day moved coal around the clock, and transferred two million tons or more per year.

Between 1940 and 1950, Mr. Claus recalled that the line went through four years of war with a great demand for coal. In addition to heavier traffic then and immediately after the war, Claus managed to convert part of the Mt. Savage shops of the road into war work.

Enlisting the aid of about 150 high school graduates, too young for military service but mechanically minded, he produced large quantities of gun parts, radar rings and parts for tanks under the direct supervision of the railroad's own mechanics and skilled craftsmen. All the work was done to specifications of the War Department and to the satisfaction of the Army and Navy officials. The project was financed entirely by the company, Claus said.

Claus served on several important commissions and projects of a civic nature in past years. He has always taken part in civic undertakings such as the Community Chest, Red Cross, YMCA and other campaigns. He is especially interested in youth and has worked with the Boy Scouts and other youth groups on many occasions. It is not unusual for him to take half a dozen or more scouts to his fishing cabin in West Virginia for a weekend at his favorite sport.

On February 23, 1939, the late George G. Young, then chairman of Cumberland's General Flood Committee, appointed Claus to a general sub-committee including Fred T. Small, the late Joseph B. Finan, the late William L. Geppert,

Flood Control Will Add Beauty To Local Park

Current Work Goes Through Riverside

Riverside Park is right in the line of march of the next step in flood control work here, but Army Engineers report necessary changes will add to the future attractiveness of the site.

Two large sewers and a water line will be constructed along the walk paralleling the river bank and Water Street, according to Albert S. Paye, liasion engineer for the project.

Work is expected to get underway after the Labor Day holiday next week by George and Lynch contractors.

A large sanitary sewer and a 60-inch combined storm, water and sanitary sewer will be constructed.

A new section of the 24-inch water line which is part of the large feeder belt line serving the city distribution system will be constructed parallel to the existing line but further back from the river bank in the vicinity of the Johnson Street Bridge.

Relocation Needed

Relocation of the line is necessary because of the earthen levee to be constructed in the fourth and final phase of the project, Paye said.

He explained that the line must be moved back so that it will be clear of the eight-foot levee, to make the pipe line accessible when repairs are needed in the future.

The earthen levee, which will be about a mile long, will begin at the tip of Riverside Park at the junction of Wills Creek with the river.

It will extend along the river bank to the vicinity of Kelly Boulevard.

A concrete flood wall will be constructed for a short section of the levee near the Moose Home on Beall Street, but the remainder of the levee will be of earthen construction.

When the levee is constructed, Paye said, a long gradual slope will be graded up to the top of the earthen bank along the Riverside Park frontage so that it can be seeded to grass and possibly terraced.

Ample room will be available on the top of the levee for a park walkway.

A strip of land about 100 feet wide, or about one-third of Riverside Park's present width, will be occupied by the levee, but it will be built so that it can be made an attractive part of the park.

To Be Demolished

The present bandstand will be demolished because of the impending sewer and water line work, but the historic George Washington cabin will not be affected, Paye said.

Over $5,000 Is Taken From Cars On Big Savage

Bulk Of Loot Is In U. S. Bonds

Police estimated the loot of thieves who ransacked two automobiles parked at Big Savage Inn over Thursday night at well above $5,000 and said the bulk of it was in United States Government bonds.

The bonds, police said, were taken from the automobile of Mrs. Irene G. Lillie, Silver Spring, Md. She is en route to California to join her husband stationed in the Army there.

The second car, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnhard, Pittsburgh, was stripped and luggage and clothing valued at $350 was reported missing. All the victims were staying at the inn overnight.

Trooper Glen Folk said the window vents on both automobiles were forced open in "a very professional manner." He said the thefts occurred early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Lillie told police she recently drew the bonds, her and her husband's savings, from a Silver Spring bank safe deposit box, so she could take them to California with her. They intend to reside there.

The bonds, Mrs. Lillie said, were left in the glove compartment of the car when she parked there Wednesday night. Police said the bottom of the compartment was torn away. Clothing in the Lillie car was not disturbed.

In reporting the theft to police, Mrs. Lillie told authorities the bonds, all of the Series "E" type, included twenty $100; thirty-three $50 and fifty-nine $25 bonds. She said some purchased recently were not listed.

Police said two insurance policies also were taken from the car and issued an immediate warning that the thieves may try to use them for identification purposes.

Mrs. Lillie told police she left Silver Spring Wednesday and the theft occurred on the first night of travel.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnhart told police they were enroute to Atlantic City for a week of vacation. The clothing theft, they told police, will delay the trip.

8 Polio Cases In Tucker County

Three children in a Parsons, W. Va., family of six have become victims of polio this week, bringing the total to eight polio cases in Tucker County in 19 days.

Billy Setler, 16-month-old son of Mrs. Bertha Hardy Setler, was taken to Morris Memorial Hospital at Milton, W. Va., near Charleston, yesterday afternoon.

On Monday, four-year-old Larry Setler, first child in the family to be stricken, was taken to the hospital. Six-year-old Ronald Setler was admitted there Wednesday.

So far, four Hambleton children and four from Parsons have been stricken with the disease.

J. Harold Felton, Parsons, a member of the Tucker County Tuberculosis Association, said the group does not yet consider the outbreak an epidemic.

However, county association members and medical advisory staff members will consult with Sterling Evans, Charleston, state polio association director, at a county-wide organization meeting today at Tucker County Court House, Parsons.

The meeting has been called to select a successor for Earl Moore, Parsons, who has resigned as director of the county polio group, Felton said.

Those attending the meeting, however, will take advantage of the opportunity to obtain information on precautionary measures for fighting polio.

Felton added that as far as is known now, Tucker County schools will open Tuesday as scheduled.

Negroes Form GOP Organization

A Republican Club consisting of Cumberland negroes was formed last night and elected William F. Jones president and John E. Trimble, secretary. The organization is endorsed by the Republican State Central Committee for Allegany County.

The group will hold its next meeting Sunday at 5 p. m. at 216 Carroll Street.

Big Business Boom Is Noted In Marriage Licenses Here

During the month of August a total of 450 marriage licenses was issued in the office of the clerk of court here. This is a record month for the year and represents a large volume of business, court attaches noted, when it is considered that it involved 900 people who made at least two trips to the office.

In this county, it is necessary to file an application for a marriage license and then to return for the permit after waiting 48 hours.

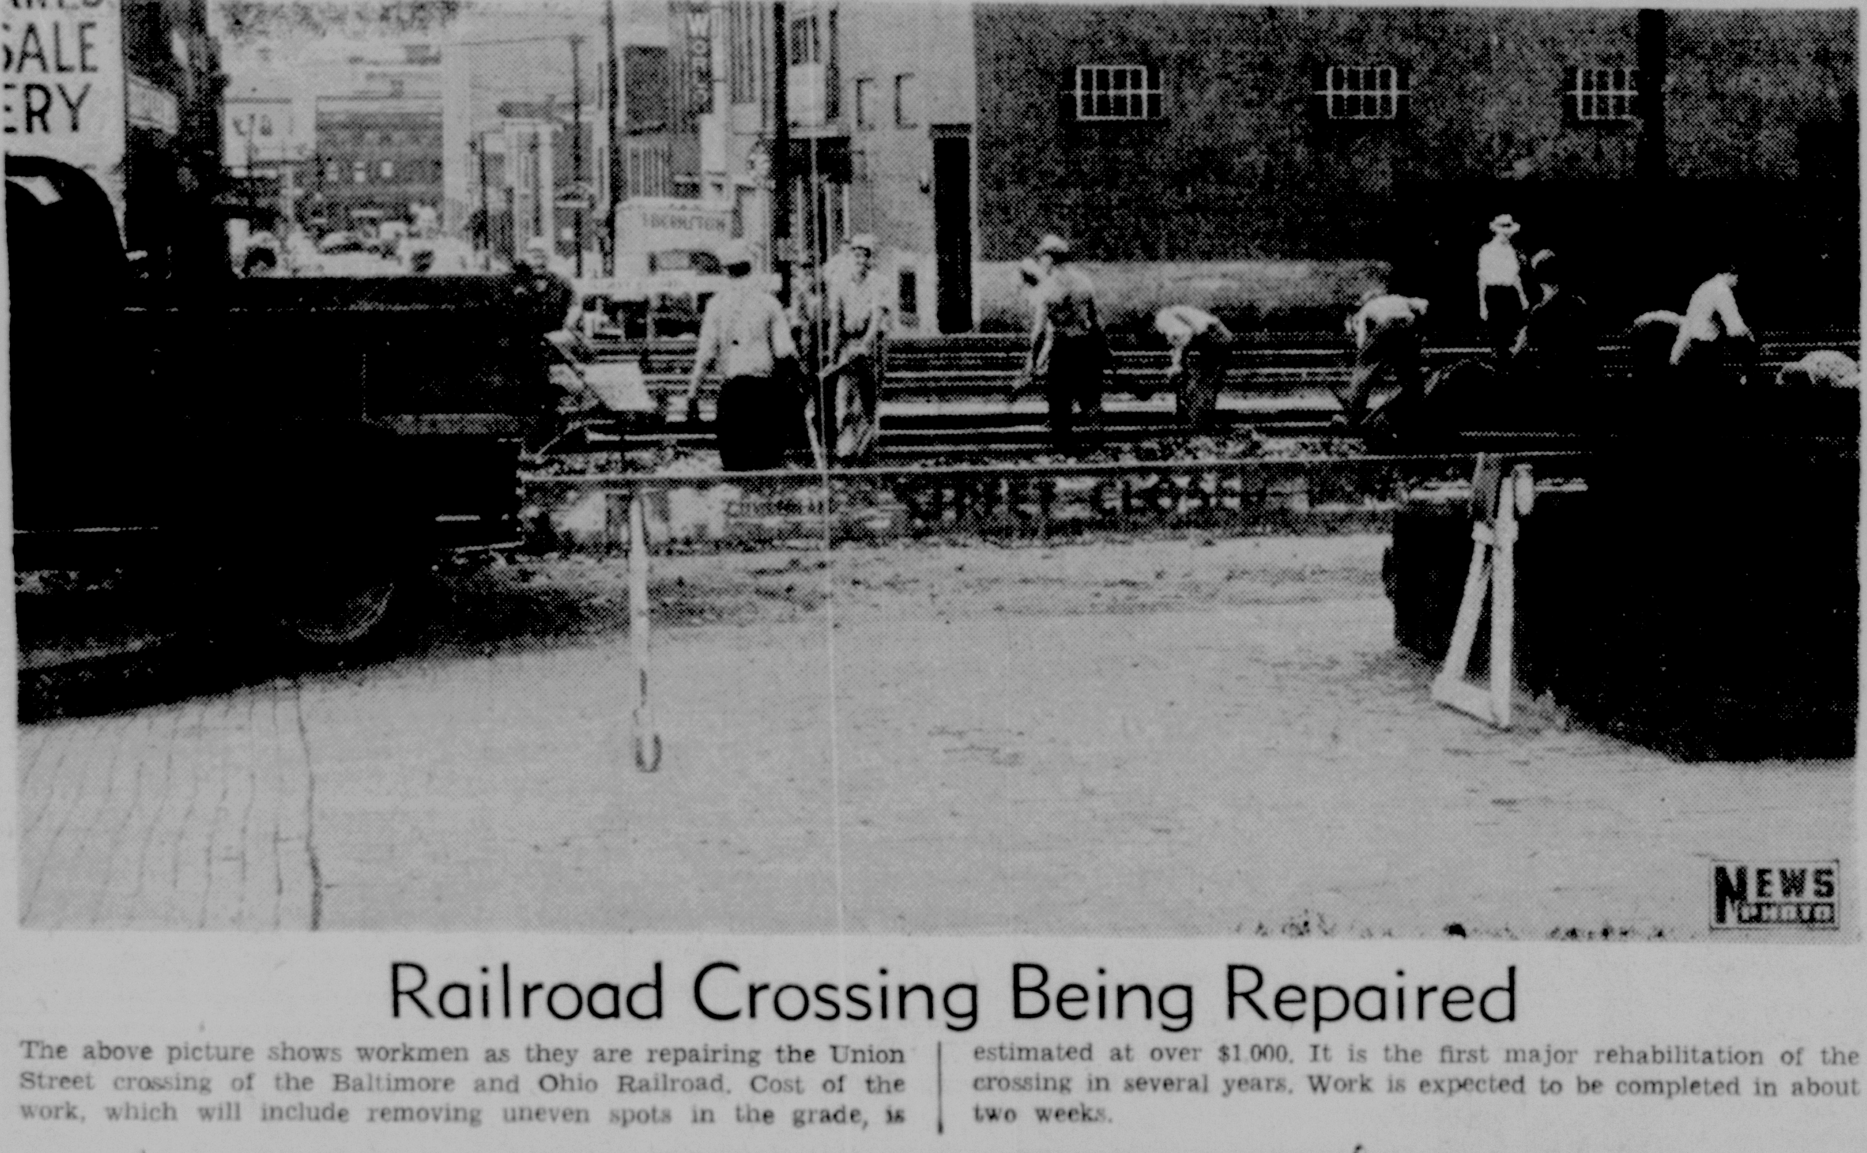
Many couples are confused about this waiting law and come here believing that licenses may be issued immediately.

Many couples also do not understand that the clerk's office closes at 4 p. m. and no applications can be accepted or licenses issued under the law after that hour. On Saturday, closing time is 12 o'clock noon.

Some couples, coming here from other towns and states, are confused about the Daylight Time, and almost every day there is at least one couple turned away from the building. Most of them return later, however, although a few go elsewhere, it is noted.

This month, wedding couples came to Cumberland from 12 states and scores of towns. West Virginia and Pennsylvania communities nearby contribute the largest share, however some travel from Ohio and Virginia. Florida, New York, Rhode Island, Illinois and Indiana were also listed this past month.

Clerks noted in the past six or eight weeks a marked increase in the number of wedding permits issued, especially to couples under 23 or 24 years of age. They believe and some couples admit, the present war situation in Korea has prompted matrimony, not only because some young men expect to go, but because others believe marriage may forestall induction, at least for a few more weeks.



Railroad Crossing Being Repaired

The above picture shows workmen as they are repairing the Union Street crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Cost of the work, which will include removing uneven spots in the grade, is estimated at over $1,000. It is the first major rehabilitation of the crossing in several years. Work is expected to be completed in about two weeks.

New Headquarters Of State Police To Be Dedicated Soon

The new Pikesville headquarters of the Maryland State Police at the Old Soldiers' Home, which is being rehabilitated for police use, will be dedicated on September 9 at 3 p. m., Colonel Carey Jarman, superintendent of Maryland State Police, has announced. The public is invited to attend.

Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., will deliver the principal address. Others scheduled to speak are Charles R. Stallings, Jr., chairman of the Arsenal and Veterans Memorial Commission; Colonel Beverly Ober, Police Commissioner of Baltimore; Christian L. Kahl, president, Baltimore County Commissioners; and John B. Funk, chief engineer of Maryland.

With the formal dedication of the Old Soldiers' Home as the Headquarters of the Maryland State Police, this historic installation enters another cycle of service to the state.

Originally this group of buildings was erected by the U. S. Government in the period immediately following the War of 1812. From 1820, when its construction was completed, until 1879, it functioned as a military installation of the United States Army.

Through an Act of Congress, in 1880, it was given to the State of Maryland. The Legislature then made it available to the Association of the Maryland Line as a soldiers' home. It served in this capacity until 1932, when, with only two veterans remaining, the installation had again completed a cycle of service and was closed as a soldiers' home.

Since 1936, by act of the Legislature, the property has been under the supervision and custody of the Arsenal and Veterans Memorial Commission. During this time the members of the Pikesville Volunteer

Stock Market Action Dull, Narrow And Inconclusive

NEW YORK, Aug. 31 (AP) — Narrow, dull, inconclusive — those are the words to describe today's stock market action.

The list ended a little lower, but the movement downward was not pronounced enough to have any significance.

The most active issue was Socony Vacuum, unchanged at 23. Second most active was United Corp., off ⅛ at 3⅞. In the final hour one block of 16,000 United sold at 3⅞.

Volume of trading amounted to 1,130,000 shares, as compared with 1,490,000 shares Wednesday. As a yardstick of activity — the slowest day this year was 1,060,000 shares on March 13.

There was little unanimity in any of the major goups except rubbers. There the rise among the leaders was from ¼ at 45 for U. S. Rubber to 2¾ at 108¾ for Goodrich.

After the market closed, Chrysler Corp., in a surprise move declared a $3 dividend on common. Chrysler previously declared a $1.75 dividend in June and $1.50 each in three preceding quarters.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .1 of a point to 78.2 with the industrial component off .1 of a point, rails of .3 and utilities up .1 of a point.

There were 1,068 individual issues traded of which 372 advanced and 414 declined with 36 new highs for the year established and three new lows.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROBE FOR INFORMATION

IT IS NOT necessary, as a rule, to make an out and out guess as to the location of an outstanding queen, which must be prevented from winning a trick when you have the other honors and are able to finesse in either direction. It is not even necessary to make a logical deduction from the bidding and opening lead, which may show the likelihood of one defender holding the crucial card. Sometimes you can make absolutely certain of how to play your combination by probing for information first in playing tricks of other suits. You may get an exact count on one defender which tells the tale.

Everybody reached that contract in a social duplicate, but the hand got three different kinds of play from declarers of different grades. It started the same everywhere, with West scoring the heart K and A, leading a third heart for East to ruff and the club J coming back to the K. Each declarer then drew trumps in three rounds and was ready for the crucial play of the diamonds.

Who had the queen? That was the question. Some of the Souths decided West was the more likely to hold it because he had made a bid. These laid down the A, then led the 5. When West discarded a heart, they knew East was bound to take the setting trick.

Several luckier declarers reckoned East was the dangerous man because West held so many hearts that East was more likely to have the protected queen. So they scored the diamond K first, then led the J and so made their contracts.

A wiser declarer, after drawing trumps, scored the club A and ruffed the club 8. West had already shown that he originally had six hearts, he had followed suit to three spades and now he followed suit to a third club. That makes twelve cards. So West had only one diamond. South therefore disposed of it with the diamond K, then took the sure-thing marked finesse of the J against East.

Strike Closes Textile Mill In Lonaconing

No Immediate Settlement Seen

The approximately 120 employes of the General Textile Mill at Lonaconing went out on strike Wednesday night, and both company and union officials said yesterday there is no immediate hope of a setlement.

Charles Walters, mill superintendent, said the plant is completely shut down, with only a watchman on duty.

Members of the Lonaconing sub-local of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, have asked a flat 10-cent an hour wage increase across the board for all employes.

Earl L. Snyder, president of Local 1874, said the Lonaconing workers rejected a company proposal to continue an incentive piece work plan which had been in efect on a trial basis for 60 days.

Agreed To Plan

Employes at the mill had agreed to try the plan as a part of the new contract which was negotiated after the previous one-year contract expired last May 7.

All parts of the new contract had been agreed upon except sections pertaining to pay, Snyder said.

The plant was shut down for four days last spring after the old contract expired and before the incentive plan was agreed upon.

The trial period ended August 15, Snyder said. Two days previously, employes voted against continuing the plan and asked for the flat 10-cent increase, he added.

A week later, the sub-local committee met with Walters and Leonard Frieder, New York City, president of the General Textile Mills Company, but no agreement was reached.

Snyder said the Lonaconing workers rejected the incentive plan because of different rates paid depending on variations of yarn.

The membership instructed the negotiating committee on August 23 to call a strike Wednesday night at 11 o'clock unless agreement was reached before that time.

Majority Are Women

Majority of the employes are women, and all reside in the Lonaconing area.

Walters, who was contacted last night at his home in Lonaconing, said base pay at present is 93 cents an hour.

The flat 10-cent increase asked by the employes would bring wages only to $1.03 an hour, whereas under the incentive plan would be better for both sides," he commented.

The superintendent said he talked by telephone with Frieder yesterday but that no compromise proposal has been offered by either side.

The plant, established in 1907, processes real silk and rayon. Last February and March it employed 210 persons, but a seasonal downswing in the business has decreased the number of workers to about 120 at present.

An upswing is expected in the fall, Walters added.

Officers of the Lonaconing sub-local are Mrs. Viola Tasher, president; Mrs. Maybelle Wilson, vice-president; Miss Gladys Brown, recording secretary; and Robert Shockey, committeeman from the spinning department.

Maps Submitted To Housing Authority

Property line, topographic and utility maps were submitted to the Cumberland Housing Authority yesterday by the Small-Paye Engineering Company.

The maps refer to the proposed 125-unit housing site located in the vicinity of First Street, according to Chairman Howard M. Spiker.

The group passed a resolution changing the by-laws regarding the location of the headquarters office, which was moved from City Hall to the Clark-Keating Building.

Spiker said the group will hold a regular meeting next Wednesday, September 6.

VFW Group To March

The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will leave the post home tonight at 7 o'clock in cars to take part in the Homecoming parade to be held in Romney, W. Va.

Speaks Here

Mahoney Outlines Salient Points Of His Platform

Charging the Gov. Lane "hasn't the slightest idea of what is going on in Maryland and might as well be in Ethiopia," George P. Mahoney, Baltimore contractor who is a Democratic primary candidate for governor, last night outlined salient points of a 22-point platform on which he is basing his campaign.

At a Mahoney-for-Governor rally in the Fort Cumberland Hotel, attended by about 200 persons representing all parts of the county, two other speakers lauded Mahoney as "a great humanitarian," "a man of the people," and "and engineer who knows his business and knows how to run the state."

They were Lawrence Lockwood, a Baltimore contractor, and W. Lee Elgin, former state motor vehicle commissioner.

Predicts Support

Lockwood predicted that six districts of Baltimore, Baltimore County and nine counties on the Eastern Shore will be in the Mahoney column after the September 18 primary.

Elgin said in all his years in public life he has never met a man who has a better understanding of the state and its people's problems than Mahoney. He predicted that five Eastern Shore counties will fall to Mahoney, five of the six Baltimore districts and Washington, Allegany and Garrett Counties.

Charles F. Heller, former city commissioner, introduced Mahoney.

The candidate spoke almost an hour, attacking the Lane administration and charging that "the people of Maryland have been sold down the river."

He told his audience that he is the youngest of 11 children and his father was a police officer who earned about $12 a week. He said he took a job as a water boy on a construction job at an early age, later went to night school, studied engineering and entered the contracting business where he has been successful.

Mahoney said, "I speak the language of the people and know and understand your problems." He promised that if elected he would not wait for the people to come to him in time of emergency, but he would come to the people and try to help solve their problems.

He declared he believes his experience and training qualifies him to build roads and bridges more economically and at greater savings to the taxpayers than Lane.

Cites Coal Industry

The candidate promised to put the miners of Western Maryland back to work by finding markets for their coal. He said he will start sales tax at 35 cents instead of 15 cents and will remove the sales tax on restaurant foods, fuels, baby clothing, lotions, etc.

He pledged continued and more speedy state-wide improvements to schools, hospitals, roads and other institutions of a public nature. The

The Weather

Climatically speaking, yesterday was a rather usual summer day for Cumberland — hot, humid, uncertain. The temperature in the afternoon was 85 in Constitution Park and 87 downtown. About 9 o'clock there was a slight sprinkle of rain, but the heat continued with a 68 low in the Park and a 71 low downtown. Today should be cooler, but cloudy with showers and probably scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon.

Mahoney Group Answers Wilson With Statement

A reply was made yesterday by Michael F. Prendergast, chairman of Mahoney for Governor headquarters here, to a statement made on Wednesday by William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Democratic State Central Committee.

Prendergast's statement follows:

"The statement that appeared in The Cumberland Times yesterday (Wednesday) that William L. Wilson would introduce George P. Mahoney, Democratic candidate for governor, was not made by anyone at Mahoney headquarters.

"A copy of the invitation to him as chairman of the County Committee was sent to Mr. Suter Kegg of The Times. When I saw the story in the paper I called Mr. Kegg to determine if he had checked with him, and on his authority, had written that Mr. Wilson was accepting the invitation, which as chairman he had the privilege of enjoying. Mr. Kegg said, 'I wondered about that when I read the invitation', admitting that he had not talked to Mr. Wilson. I then called Mr. John Moody of The News and told him of the inaccuracy, asking him to correct it. I said I had no reply from Mr. Wilson. This is verified by the radio announcement at 6 p. m. of Wednesday.

"Mr. Wilson states that the invitation was an attempt to embarrass him. The suggestion that he be invited to introduce Mr. Mahoney was made by his fellow alumnus, J. Goodloe Jackson, who is also president of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association here. So it was made in good faith, as far as I am concerned.

"The Mahoney headquarters has issued no misleading or untrue statements. Neither has anyone

State Group To Study Economic Area Problems

Hearings Set For Oakland, This City

Economic problems in Western Maryland will be studied next month when a state-wide commission visits this area to get a detailed picture of local conditions.

This was reported last night by Noel Speir Cook, Frostburg, an attorney and a member of the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly.

Cook is minority House member of the 15-man Welfare Committee appointed recently by Governor Lane.

As chairman of the sub-committee for Western Maryland, Cook is arranging for the full committee to visit this area September 20 through 22.

The group is headed by William Mahaney, Baltimore, chairman of the Department of Unemployment Security.

Members will tour various sections of Garrett County, including Shallmar, on September 20 and will hold a hearing in Oakland that evening.

Oakland city officials and representatives of the dairy and farm industries, as well as welfare officials and other groups, will be invited to present their views on economic problems and on potentialities for industrial expansion.

On the following day, September 21, similar hearings will get underway in Cumberland at City Hall, starting at 10 a. m. Another half-day session is planned September 22.

Cook said local labor, industrial, service, employment, welfare and similar groups will be invited to send spokesmen to the Cumberland hearings.

On the basis of information secured in Western Maryland, the governor's Welfare Committee will then make recommendations to the 1951 Legislature, he explained.

Since the Cumberland and Western Maryland area has been termed the "most distressed" in the state, committee is anxious to obtain first-hand knowledge of conditions here, Cook said.

Butler Outlines His Platform

BALTIMORE, Aug. 31 (AP)—John Marshall Butler said today he believes in a strong stand against Russian aggression, and rigid economy in all domestic expenditures.

Butler is a candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator. He announced today the platform on which he intends to run.

In the field of international relations. Butler recommended:

A global strategy and a streamlined war production so powerful that Russia will hesitate in further aggression.

Selection of patriots of outstanding ability and integrity to fill administrative positions at home and abroad.

Publication by the national administration of all pertinent facts on our foreign and domestic situation.

Butler's recommedations on the national fiscal policy included:

Rigid economy in all domestic measures.

Elimination of non-war expenditures not compatible with the nation's financial circumstances.

A tax policy which would avoid confiscation on the one hand, and inflation on the other.

Adoption of the Hoover Commission recommendations.

"It would seem," Butler commented, "that the only way to achieve these ends is to elect Republicans."

Keegan Injured In Auto Accident

William V. Keegan, former city commissioner of police and fire, was admitted to Allegany Hospital at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and hospital attaches said he was injured in an automobile accident in Mt. Savage.

They added that Keegan suffered deep cuts on both knees and a possible fracture of the right shoulder. His condition was listed as good.

Keegan's car reportedly careened from Route 36, Mt. Savage's main street, when he lost control and struck a porch post at the home of James Warton.

Mother Saves Children From Burning Barn

Jennings Woman, Son In Oakland Hospital

A 30-year-old mother who rescued her two young sons from a burning hay mow was reported in fair condition last night at Garrett County Memorial Hospital at Oakland.

The woman, Mrs. Lola Yommer, suffered second degree burns about the arms and legs when fire broke out in the barn at her home, five miles south of Grantsville near Jennings.

Her younger son, Roger, 3, also was admitted to the hospital for treatment of second degree burns about the upper part of his body. His condition was listed as fair.

Roger and his five-year-old brother, Tommy, were playing in the hay mow early Monday evening when a lantern Tommy was carrying set the hay afire.

Mrs. Yommer saw smoke coming from the barn and hurried to the scene. She carried the two boys down a ladder to safety. Tommy escaped unhurt.

William Yommer, the husband and father, who operates a small farm on the property, was in Grantsville at the time.

He heard of the fire when the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department was summoned, and hurried home to help firemen fight the flames. The barn was destroyed, however.

Mrs. Yommer and her son were taken to the Oakland hospital by a neighbor, James Bittinger, of Jennings.

Probe Continues In Fatal Crash

The State's Attorney's office said yesterday several witnesses remain to be questioned concerning a fatal accident on Route 220 at Dawson early Wednesday evening.

Joseph Gardner, 35-year-old B. and O. Railroad conductor, died within five minutes after being removed from his wrecked automobile, which crashed against an oil tanker on the slippery highway.

Authorities said Eskon K. Swisher, Springfield, W. Va., identified as the driver of the tanker, was questioned yesterday.

Besides his father, Gardner is survived by four brothers, Wood T. Gardner, Route 2, Keyser; Homer E. Gardner, New Creek, and Biard and Clark W. Gardner, both of Keyser; and four sisters, Mrs. Helen Miller and Mrs. Magdalene Dellinger, both of Keyser; Mrs. Margaret Anderson, Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Virginia Bantz, Fort Ashby.

He was a conductor for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Gardner was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad trainmen and Boyce Houser Post No. 41, American Legion.

The body is at the home of his brother, Clark W. Gardner, 568 South Water Street, Keyser. Services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. in First Methodist Church, Keyser, by Rev. L. A. Steele, pastor. Interment will be in Queens Point Cemetery.

59 School Buses Pass Inspection

The Board of Education completed inspection of 71 buses and 11 cars to be used in the transportation of school children and said no major defects were found. Fifty-nine were 'perfect'.

Arthur G. Ramey, director of transportation, said contractors whose equipment showed minor defects during the inspection were ordered to make repairs and report for a recheck within 10 days.

The school bus inspection is conducted four times each year, Ramey said, to insure safety of the children who are transported to and from school.

Marion Abbott, Department of Motor Vehicles, conducted the inspection with Ramey.

Postpones Meeting

Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers (CIO), postponed its regular meeting scheduled for Saturday night because of the Labor Day weekend holiday.

William Claus Retires As General Manager Of C & P

William Claus, 882 Windsor Road, The Dingle, retired yesterday as general manager of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, and thus ended a long and active career in railroading and civil engineering. He told friends yesterday that he intends to "rest, fish a great deal, make a little garden and perhaps travel some."

WILLIAM CLAUS

Claus is widely known in railroad as well as civic circles and has been a resident of Cumberland since August 10, 1914. He came here from Philadelphia, Pa., to become associated with the C & P Railroad as valuation engineer to prepare valuation of the property in accordance with methods adopted under the Federal Valuation Act in 1914. He was given charge of preparation of maps, reports, inventories and cost of the railroad property covering 100 miles of track.

On June 1, 1917, he was appointed engineer maintenance of way for the company and was responsible for design and construction of steel and concrete bridges, terminals, yards, tunnels, pumping plants, and water supply, together with construction and repair of all tracks.

He designed and constructed the long railroad bridge across the Potomac River at Piedmont, W. Va. This steel bridge was destroyed during the flood of March 1924. He built the bridge connecting the C & P with the Western Maryland at Westernport.

On January 31, 1930, Claus was elected by the board of directors of the C & P Railroad Company as a director and general manager with offices in Cumberland. The line was then owned by the Consolidation Coal Company, with headquarters New York.

On November 5, 1941, the board elected him vice president of the C & P Company. In May 1944, the Western Maryland Railway Company acquired all the holdings of the C & P and continued Claus as general manager.

Throughout the 20 years Claus was an executive of the railroad there was not a single strike or single incident of labor trouble. A number of grievences arose but all were settled in a "family-like" manner to the satisfaction of all concerned. He said yesterday that he remembers all the people who worked on the railroad as hard-working, far-minded and loyal people. He sad they gave their fullest cooperation in good times and bad.

Between 1930 and 1940 when the road employed more than 300 people the company went through a severe depression (1932-1935) and a severe flood in 1936 which wrecked the railroad in 30 or more locations and disrupted traffic for over a week.

After that experience, he recalled, business revived gradually until 1940 when coal traffic and working conditions neared normal, although not to the level enjoyed prior to 1930 when 25 or more train crews a day moved coal around the clock, and transferred two million tons or more per year.

Between 1940 and 1950, Mr. Claus recalled that the line went through four years of war with a great demand for coal. In addition to heavier traffic then and immediately after the war, Claus managed to convert part of the Mt. Savage shops of the road into war work.

Enlisting the aid of about 150 high school graduates, too young for military service but mechanically minded, he produced large quantities of gun parts, radar rings and parts for tanks under the direct supervision of the railroad's own mechanics and skilled craftsmen. All the work was done to specifications of the War Department and to the satisfaction of the Army and Navy officials. The project was financed entirely by the company, Claus said.

Claus served on several important commissions and projects of a civic nature in past years. He has always taken part in civic undertakings such as the Community Chest, Red Cross, YMCA and other campaigns. He is especially interested in youth and has worked with the Boy Scouts and other youth groups on many occasions. It is not unusual for him to take half a dozen or more scouts to his fishing cabin in West Virginia for a weekend at his favorite sport.

On February 23, 1939, the late George G. Young, then chairman of Cumberland's General Flood Committee, appointed Claus to a general sub-committee including Fred T. Small, the late Joseph B. Finan, the late William L. Geppert,

Flood Control Will Add Beauty To Local Park

Current Work Goes Through Riverside

Riverside Park is right in the line of march of the next step in flood control work here, but Army Engineers report necessary changes will add to the future attractiveness of the site.

Two large sewers and a water line will be constructed along the walk paralleling the river bank and Water Street, according to Albert S. Paye, liasion engineer for the project.

Work is expected to get underway after the Labor Day holiday next week by George and Lynch contractors.

A large sanitary sewer and a 60-inch combined storm, water and sanitary sewer will be constructed.

A new section of the 24-inch water line which is part of the large feeder belt line serving the city distribution system will be constructed parallel to the existing line but further back from the river bank in the vicinity of the Johnson Street Bridge.

Relocation Needed

Relocation of the line is necessary because of the earthen levee to be constructed in the fourth and final phase of the project, Paye said.

He explained that the line must be moved back so that it will be clear of the eight-foot levee, to make the pipe line accessible when repairs are needed in the future.

The earthen levee, which will be about a mile long, will begin at the tip of Riverside Park at the junction of Wills Creek with the river.

It will extend along the river bank to the vicinity of Kelly Boulevard.

A concrete flood wall will be constructed for a short section of the levee near the Moose Home on Beall Street, but the remainder of the levee will be of earthen construction.

When the levee is constructed, Paye said, a long gradual slope will be graded up to the top of the earthen bank along the Riverside Park frontage so that it can be seeded to grass and possibly terraced.

Ample room will be available on the top of the levee for a park walkway.

A strip of land about 100 feet wide, or about one-third of Riverside Park's present width, will be occupied by the levee, but it will be built so that it can be made an attractive part of the park.

To Be Demolished

The present bandstand will be demolished because of the impending sewer and water line work, but the historic George Washington cabin will not be affected, Paye said.

Over $5,000 Is Taken From Cars On Big Savage

Bulk Of Loot Is In U. S. Bonds

Police estimated the loot of thieves who ransacked two automobiles parked at Big Savage Inn over Thursday night at well above $5,000 and said the bulk of it was in United States Government bonds.

The bonds, police said, were taken from the automobile of Mrs. Irene G. Lillie, Silver Spring, Md. She is en route to California to join her husband stationed in the Army there.

The second car, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barnhard, Pittsburgh, was stripped and luggage and clothing valued at $350 was reported missing. All the victims were staying at the inn overnight.

Trooper Glen Folk said the window vents on both automobiles were forced open in "a very professional manner." He said the thefts occurred early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Lillie told police she recently drew the bonds, her and her husband's savings, from a Silver Spring bank safe deposit box, so she could take them to California with her. They intend to reside there.

The bonds, Mrs. Lillie said, were left in the glove compartment of the car when she parked there Wednesday night. Police said the bottom of the compartment was torn away. Clothing in the Lillie car was not disturbed.

In reporting the theft to police, Mrs. Lillie told authorities the bonds, all of the Series "E" type, included twenty $100; thirty-three $50 and fifty-nine $25 bonds. She said some purchased recently were not listed.

Police said two insurance policies also were taken from the car and issued an immediate warning that the thieves may try to use them for identification purposes.

Mrs. Lillie told police she left Silver Spring Wednesday and the theft occurred on the first night of travel.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnhart told police they were enroute to Atlantic City for a week of vacation. The clothing theft, they told police, will delay the trip.

8 Polio Cases In Tucker County

Three children in a Parsons, W. Va., family of six have become victims of polio this week, bringing the total to eight polio cases in Tucker County in 19 days.

Billy Setler, 16-month-old son of Mrs. Bertha Hardy Setler, was taken to Morris Memorial Hospital at Milton, W. Va., near Charleston, yesterday afternoon.

On Monday, four-year-old Larry Setler, first child in the family to be stricken, was taken to the hospital. Six-year-old Ronald Setler was admitted there Wednesday.

So far, four Hambleton children and four from Parsons have been stricken with the disease.

J. Harold Felton, Parsons, a member of the Tucker County Tuberculosis Association, said the group does not yet consider the outbreak an epidemic.

However, county association members and medical advisory staff members will consult with Sterling Evans, Charleston, state polio association director, at a county-wide organization meeting today at Tucker County Court House, Parsons.

The meeting has been called to select a successor for Earl Moore, Parsons, who has resigned as director of the county polio group, Felton said.

Those attending the meeting, however, will take advantage of the opportunity to obtain information on precautionary measures for fighting polio.

Felton added that as far as is known now, Tucker County schools will open Tuesday as scheduled.

Negroes Form GOP Organization

A Republican Club consisting of Cumberland negroes was formed last night and elected William F. Jones president and John E. Trimble, secretary. The organization is endorsed by the Republican State Central Committee for Allegany County.

The group will hold its next meeting Sunday at 5 p. m. at 216 Carroll Street.

Big Business Boom Is Noted In Marriage Licenses Here

During the month of August a total of 450 marriage licenses was issued in the office of the clerk of court here. This is a record month for the year and represents a large volume of business, court attaches noted, when it is considered that it involved 900 people who made at least two trips to the office.

In this county, it is necessary to file an application for a marriage license and then to return for the permit after waiting 48 hours.

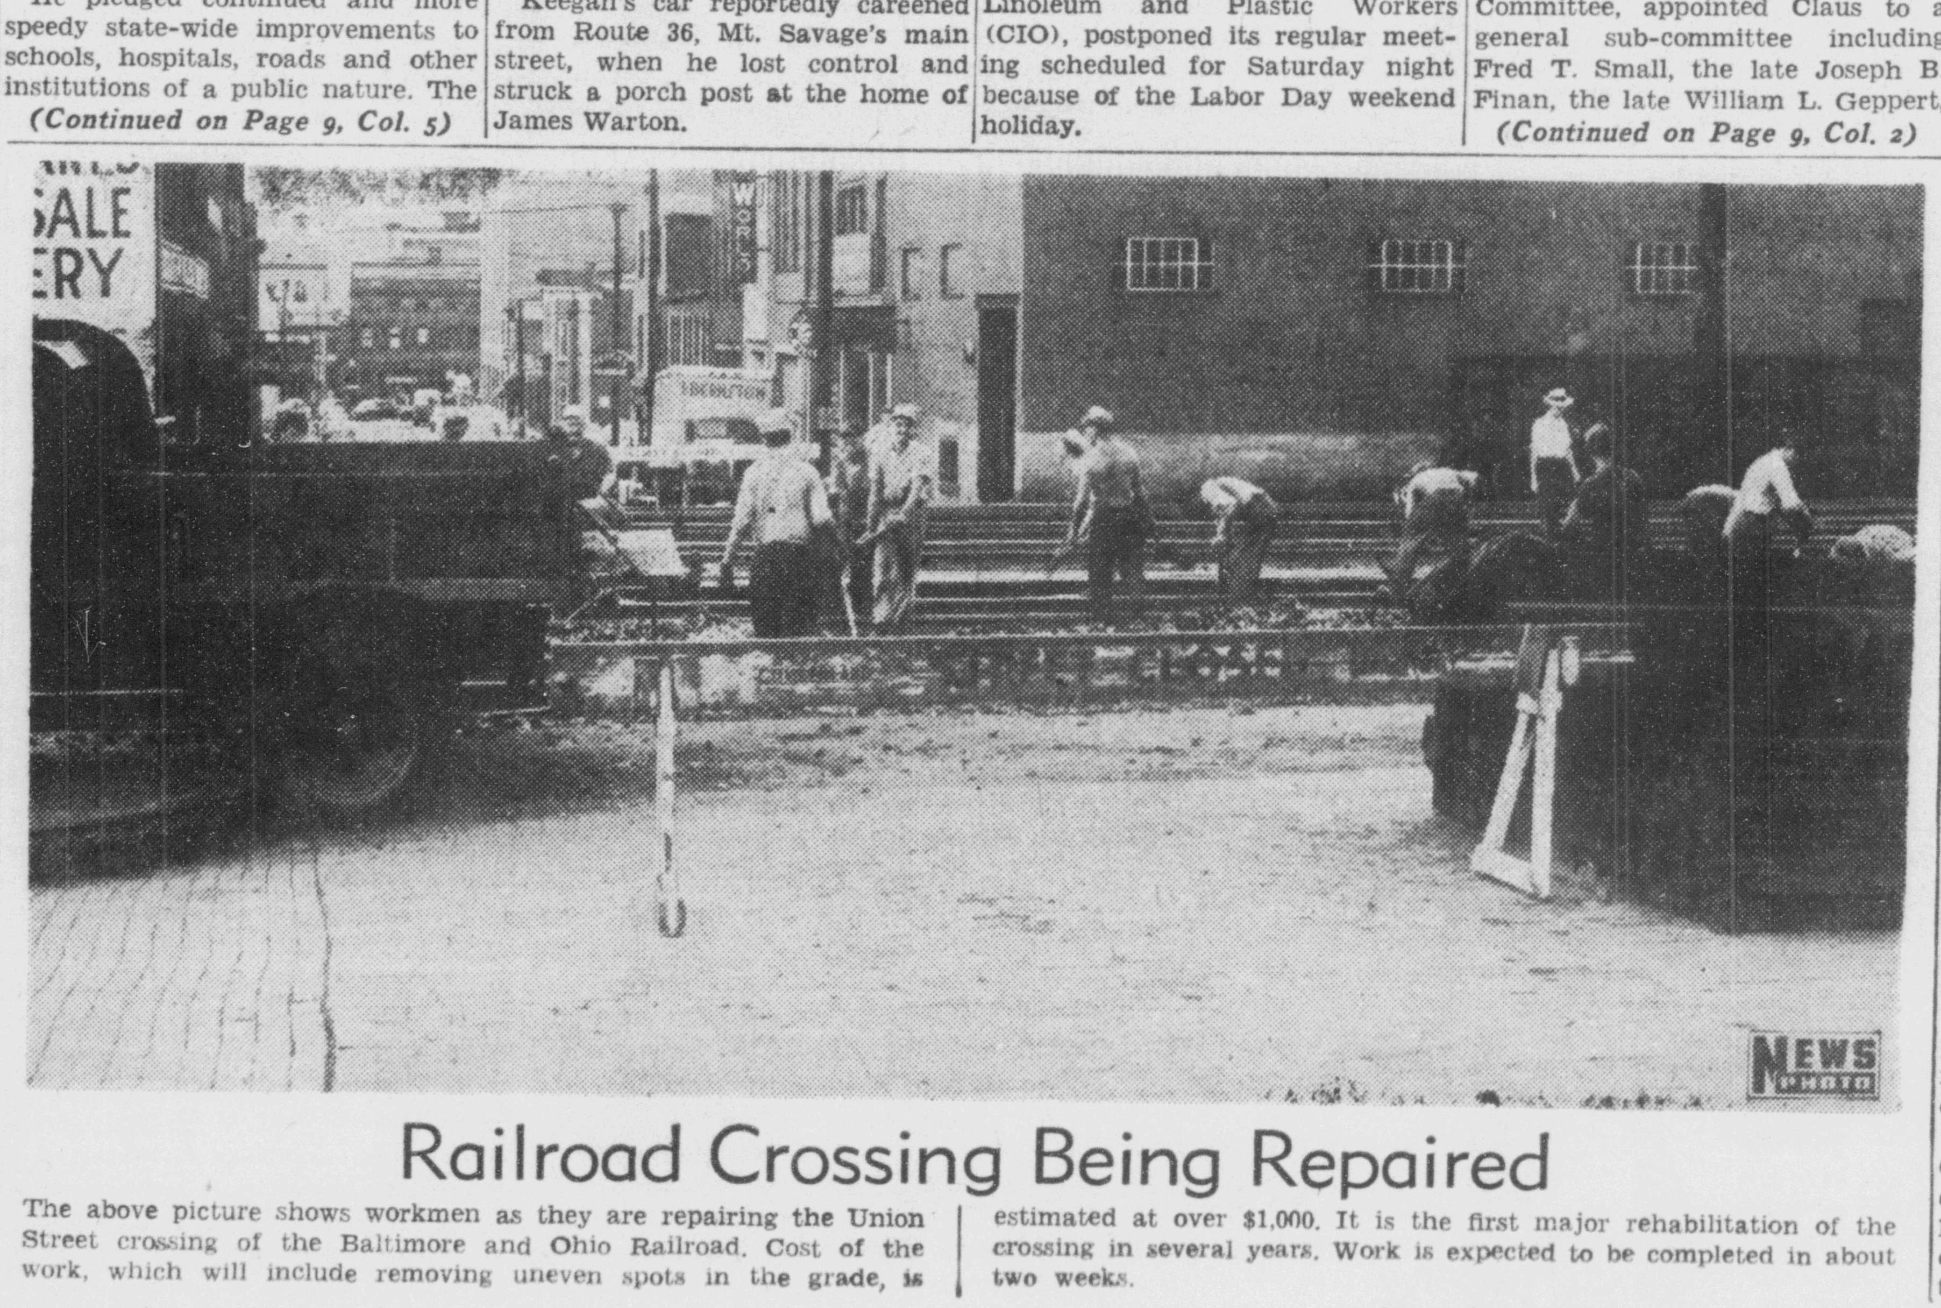
Many couples are confused about this waiting law and come here believing that licenses may be issued immediately.

Many couples also do not understand that the clerk's office closes at 4 p. m. and no applications can be accepted or licenses issued under the law after that hour. On Saturday, closing time is 12 o'clock noon.

Some couples, coming here from other towns and states, are confused about the Daylight Time, and almost every day there is at least one couple turned away from the building. Most of them return later, however, although a few go elsewhere, it is noted.

This month, wedding couples came to Cumberland from 12 states and scores of towns. West Virginia and Pennsylvania communities nearby contribute the largest share, however some travel from Ohio and Virginia. Florida, New York, Rhode Island, Illinois and Indiana were also listed this past month.

Clerks noted in the past six or eight weeks a marked increase in the number of wedding permits issued, especially to couples under 23 or 24 years of age. They believe and some couples admit, the present war situation in Korea has prompted matrimony, not only because some young men expect to go, but because others believe marriage may forestall induction, at least for a few more weeks.



Railroad Crossing Being Repaired

The above picture shows workmen as they are repairing the Union Street crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Cost of the work, which will include removing uneven spots in the grade, is estimated at over $1,000. It is the first major rehabilitation of the crossing in several years. Work is expected to be completed in about two weeks.

New Headquarters Of State Police To Be Dedicated Soon

The new Pikesville headquarters of the Maryland State Police at the Old Soldiers' Home, which is being rehabilitated for police use, will be dedicated on September 9 at 3 p. m., Colonel Carey Jarman, superintendent of Maryland State Police has announced. The public is invited to attend.

Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., will deliver the principal address. Others scheduled to speak are Charles R. Stallings, Jr., chairman of the Arsenal and Veterans Memorial Commission; Colonel Beverly Ober, Police Commissioner of Baltimore; Christian L. Kahl, president, Baltimore County Commissioners; and John B. Funk, chief engineer of Maryland.

With the formal dedication of the Old Soldiers' Home as the Headquarters of the Maryland State Police, this historic installation enters another cycle of service to the state.
